COME AND GET IT!

Balloon 'Moon' Fails In Busy U.S. Rocket Day

OCEAN AREA COMBED FOR SPACE CAPSULE

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI)—A fleet of ships and planes today searched a 10,000 square-mile section of ocean 700 miles southwest of Hawaii for a 300-pound capsule from the Discoverer V satellite.

Pentagon officials admit "there is little hope" now that the 27 by 33 inch capsule will be found.

A fleet of nine giant C-19 planes of the 6593rd Test Squadron, Hickman Air Force Base, Hawaii, waited in vain Friday to attempt to snatch the data-carrying capsule from the sky as it parachuted down.

The Pentagon said an identification signal from the capsule failed to function.

'Death-Fire' Children Forgiven By Parents

JACKSON, Mich. (AP)—Probate Judge Clarence M. Russell committed Doréen and Bruce Baker to state training homes after a hearing Friday on their admitted plot to burn their parents to death.

Doréen, 15, and Bruce, 13, admitted dousing their sleeping parents with gasoline and setting fire to them the morning of June 12. Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Baker were burned severely. Both were released recently from hospital.

The children told police they wanted to kill their parents to be free to do as they liked. The plot was discovered after a routine investigation of the fire.

Witnesses described the scene in probate court as tearful. They said both the parents and children wept. The parents raised no objection to the commitment order. They said they have forgiven the children.

New Bid for IWA Talks Ends in Harsh Words

FARMER'S 27 CHILDREN 'GREET' TAX COLLECTOR

EDMUNDSTON, N.B. (CP)—Tax collector Narcisse Prevost said he was tied to a chair and left there for an hour and a half when he called at a farmhouse Friday to deliver a county tax assessment notice.

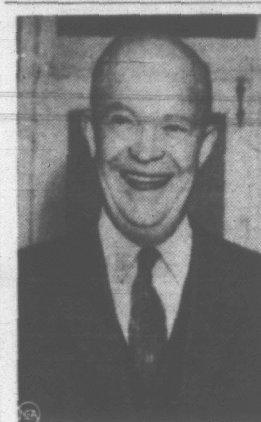

He said the farmer's wife caused several of the 27 children in the family to assault him.

He was released by the farmer when the latter came home.

Mr. Prevost said he went to the county magistrate to lay a charge but was stumped when asked who he would name as his assailant.

"There were so many of them," he said.

The Edmundston RCMP detachment is investigating.

TO VISIT QUEEN

President Eisenhower has accepted an invitation to stay with Queen Elizabeth at Balmoral Castle during his trip to Britain this month, it was announced today. The U.S. president will also spend some time at Chequers, country residence of Prime Minister Macmillan.

Heavy Quake Rocks Formosa

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—A strong earthquake struck the southern tip of Formosa today, knocking down houses and killing at least 14 persons, police reported.

Aircraft Contracts 'Not Spread'

TORONTO (CP)—A former Avro Aircraft Limited president and union spokesmen registered chagrin today at the announcement that the government has awarded a $91,500,000 contract to Canadair Limited of Montreal instead of to Avro.

John L. Plant, who resigned as president and general manager at the end of July, commented: "It doesn't look as if there was any desire to spread the work around when the contract goes to a company already building three types of aircraft."

The Canadair contract was for airframes for 200 F-104G Starfighters. Mr. Plant said Canadair also has the possibility of a trainer aircraft contract.

Orenda Engines Limited in Toronto was awarded a contract valued at $80,000,000 to build the J-79 engines for the Starfighter. Both Avro and Orenda are subsidiaries of A. V. Roe Limited.

Douglas McAllister, business representative for the International Association of Machinists which represents all Avro workers, said A. V. Roe, a British company, was being discriminated against in favor of Canadair, owned by a United States firm, General Dynamics.

Electricians Vote Strike

VANCOUVER (CP)—First results of a government-supervised strike ballot Friday indicate 1,100 mainland electrical workers will strike in support of their demand for a 35-hour week with no reduction in take-home pay.

A total of 388 out of a possible 488 men in 22 firms voted 68 per cent in favor of striking in a ballot held Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

More ballots are expected to come in by mail. The final result is expected to be known late next week.

At Vandenberg Air Force Base in California a Royal Air Force training crew successfully launched a 1,500-mile Thor missile, the kind being set up at bases in England.

Another Thor was launched at Cape Canaveral. It carried a movie camera to photograph the earth from an altitude of 300 miles. But the capsule carrying the camera was not found.

If the Cape Canaveral balloon had gone into orbit, it would have been the third successful U.S. satellite to circle the earth in a week. Last Friday a Thor-Able rocket shoved a 142-pound paddle wheel satellite into orbit, and the baby moon still is radiating back important space information.

The balloon-moon was designed to show just how much drag the super-thin atmosphere up to an altitude of 1,000 miles or so would have on such a large, light object.

It would have been the first launched by the U.S. visible to the naked eye.

Storm Slams At Brazil; 30 Killed

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI)—A tropical storm that swept across southern Brazil Friday left 30 dead, 200 injured and thousands homeless, according to reports reaching here today.

The reports said high winds and rain wrecked sections of Parana and Santa Catarina state, blocking transportation and crippling communications.

The governor of Parana state appealed for air force planes to fly emergency relief supplies to stricken areas.

PRAYER FOR TODAY

Dear God, we thank Thee for the joy in our faith. Thou hast promised us forgiveness and redemption. There is joy in heaven over the return of one sinner. May we have that joy in our lives today as we seek to follow Thee. So make our lives winsome to others as we try to represent Thee in our daily walk; in Jesus' name. Amen.

Bolshoi Dancers 'Walk Out'

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Members of the touring Bolshoi Ballet walked out of their hotel here today because they said it was below the standard they expected.

When the Russian dancers arrived at the hotel they told the proprietor they had expected a room with a bath for each dancer, Soviet-style meals with breakfast at 10 a.m., lunch at 1 p.m., and dinner at 11 p.m.

Later the dancers were taken to another hotel, their demands settled.

WIRE BRIEFS

Woman in Long Swim

NEW YORK (UPI)—Diane Struble, 26-year-old blonde mother of three, swam around Manhattan Island today, completing the gruelling trip in 11 hours and 18 minutes. She is the first woman in history to make the 30-mile trip.

Bombings Charged

TUNIS (Reuters)—The government said tonight that French planes made two separate bombing attacks on Tunisian soil today and flew a reconnaissance mission over Tunisian territory.

Haiti 'Invaded'

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (UPI)—The government rushed 150 troops to southwestern Haiti today to repel an invasion by 30 men who captured a Haitian town. There were no immediate reports of fighting or casualties.

Island Centres Facing Setback In Long Strike

The troubled situation in B.C. coast loggers' strike bristled with harsh words and some ill-feeling today as the walkout neared the end of its sixth week without any positive sign of an early settlement.

The developments, in capsule, were:

● Two Island mayors blasted Labor Minister Wicks for saying their mediation attempts were only aggravating the situation.

● Head of the lumber operators scoffed at the mayors' settlement try as "mistaken good intentions."

● Courtenay loggers' union officials accused of misappropriation of funds.

● B.C. Federation of Labor promises new support drive for strikers.

● Opposition Leader Robert Strachan blames large lumber operators for prolonging walk-out.

● Logging industry spokesman warns continuance of strike or settlement at woodworkers' terms would cripple Island centres.

● Newly-appointed B.C. Power Commission chairman Dr. Hugh Keenleyside mentioned as a possible mediator.

DELAY CHARGED

The attack on Mr. Wicks quickly followed his assertion Friday that attempts by the mayors of Nanaimo, Port Alberni and Courtenay to bring the two sides together had caused "a substantial delay in moves toward a settlement."

He described their intervention as "most unfortunate."

In reply, Nanaimo Mayor Maffeo called on the minister to explain his remark, while Mayor William Moore of Courtenay snapped, "This is a typical Wicks' statement."

"All we were trying to do is get the two sides at the bargaining table again. How this can cause any harm to the situation is beyond my comprehension."

"We simply did what he (Mr. Wicks) should have done a month ago."

Mr. Moore said he had "suspicions that Wicks and the premier are going to do something about the strike soon."

Mayor Loran Jordan of Port Alberni was not available for comment.

OFFER APPRECIATED

In Vancouver, John Billings, president of Forest Industrial Relations, representing the lumber operators, said the mayors' offer to help was "understandable and the spirit in which it was made is appreciated."

"But the offer is based on the mistaken belief that if the two parties could only be brought together an agreement would automatically follow."

"Our trouble in settling this strike does not come from lack of talks or inability to contact."

WHITE GANG BEATS NEGRO IN LONDON

LONDON (Reuters)—A gang of white men attacked a 60-year-old Negro in the race-tense Notting Hill district of London.

Olanzo Briggs was taken to hospital with a suspected fracture of the cheek and skull.

An iron bar and knife were found after the attack.

About 6,000 West Indians live in Notting Hill, the centre of activity by groups seeking to drive non-white immigrants out of Britain.

The area was the scene of serious racial clashes last summer.

B.C. Golfers Lead Cup Play

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia barged into an eight-stroke lead at the one-quarter mark of the interprovincial golf team championships for the Willingdon Cup here today.

Paced by Ron Willey, 23-year-old B.C. and Pacific Northwest amateur champion, who carded a 34, the B.C. team fired a three under 141 team total.

Quebec, with 149, held second spot, one stroke ahead of Manitoba and five ahead of a surprising Nova Scotia team.

Marlene Wins Sixth Title

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Marlene Stewart Streitt of Toronto won an unprecedented sixth Canadian women's open golf championship today with a clear-cut 7 and 6 decision over Mrs. Bruce McGhie of New York.

Mrs. Streitt was three up at the turn.

A shirt-sleeved crowd of about 800 braved the blistering 90-degree heat to follow them around the tough St. George's layout.

'Mostly Sun' For Sunday

A weather disturbance passing over Victoria tonight will cause cloudy skies this evening and a few showers after midnight, weatherman William Mackie said today.

Skies will clear to "mostly sunny" Sunday.

BATTLE OF WITS WITH CRAFTY ISLANDERS

Hunt On For Irish Moonshiners

DUBLIN (UPI)—Police authorities today were organizing a nationwide crackdown on home-made whisky.

Focal point of the campaign was along Ireland's rugged western seaboard where the trade has flourished for generations.

Tiny islands hidden in lakes and off the coast have been the traditional headquarters for moonshining. Police intend a house-by-house search in these areas in the stepped-up battle of wits against the locals.

Armed with centuries of experience, few believed the sturdy, wind-whipped islanders would be caught napping by the intensified police action.

The permanent war between the moonshiners and the police took a new turn this year because authorities feared Ireland's booming tourist industry was boosting the trade.

With tourists rapidly becoming a predominant part of Ireland's economy, tourist officials were fearful the "slightly colled" native brew could have a boomerang effect on the industry.

Sometimes the annual battle takes a queer twist. Last year, for instance, a fine crop of carefully hidden stills was found because a rookie policeman couldn't handle an oar.

The blue-uniformed police had jumped off at dawn from three starting places to raid a small loch island.

Watched by placid islanders, they rowed silently toward their prey. A careful inch-by-inch search showed the island was "clean."

Baffled police were treated to tea before they began their cold journey back to the mainland.

Then the rookie qualified for promotion. He dug his oar too deep down in the water, stumbled from his seat and came up with three sunken stills.

"It would have to be a young one," said one of the islanders, spitting disgustedly.

Trouble with th' logging' industry, it jist ain't boomin'.

Far's loanin' money goes, th' banks are losin' interest.

Sure are th' dog days—an' th' dog's jawnin'.

GLASGOW, Scotland—Peter Marshall, 35, pleaded guilty Friday to a breach of the peace consisting of an attempt to kiss a mounted policeman's horse.

The offence occurred outside Ibrox Park just before kickoff time in a soccer match between Glasgow Rangers and Motherwell Wednesday.

"The horse," said prosecutor W. A. Grindlay, "resisted Marshall's attempt to kiss it. When asked to go away, Marshall challenged the policeman to fight."

Marshall, pleading guilty, explained:

"I had just one too many to drink."

He was fined £1.

PONTARDAWE, Wales—A marriage that lasted 77 years ended Friday with the death of Mrs. Ann Haggood, 97. She and her husband, Fred, 96, claimed to be the longest-married couple in Britain.

MEXICO CITY—A downpour flooded sections of the Mexican capital Friday night.

A reporter called the weather bureau for information.

"I'm sorry," came the reply, "I can't give out the information. The gauge is outside and I cannot go out. It's raining."

NEW YORK—Mrs. William Morris went to traffic court Friday to pay a $55 fine for her 18-year-old son, Michael. He had been arrested for going through a red light and driving without a licence.

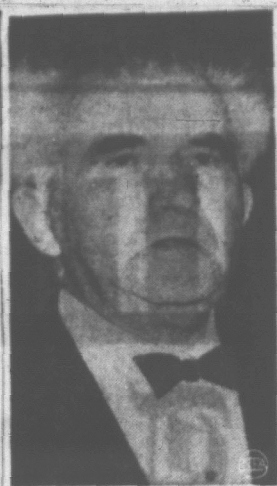

After she paid the fine, Mrs. Morris drew back her right hand and gave Michael a resounding smack.

"Madam," observed Magistrate Charles Solomon, "that calls for a $10 reduction in the fine."

"That's nothing," rejoined Mrs. Morris, "wait till I get him home."

Africa Natives Riot To Protest Jailings

DURBAN (Reuters)—Anger among African Negroes flared into violence throughout South Africa's Natal province during the night.

Maqj tribesmen in southern Natal set fire to grasslands and erected roadblocks in protest at the jailing of 28 African women.

Natives in the Table Mountain area of west central Natal were reported massing to destroy cattle-dipping tanks, schools and other government buildings. Police were sent to the area.

At Pietermaritzburg, about 50 miles inland from this east coast port, police patrolled African districts after a crowd of more than 200 women stormed a beer hall in protest against a government crackdown on home-distilled liquor. All beer halls in the area were closed.

The women of Isipofu were jailed after they had assembled on a farm belonging to a white woman and demanded transportation to Port Shepstone, 40 miles away, to see the commissioner for African affairs.

They wanted to protest at the government rule requiring Africans to have their cattle

BOAT OWNER REPRIEVED ... NOT A PUBLIC PLACE

WEST VANCOUVER (CP)—Magistrate Alfred Watts ruled Friday that a private boat is not a public place and dismissed a charge of drinking in a public place laid against James Eaton of suburban Burnaby.

Eaton was charged when spotted by police as he drank a bottle of beer aboard his 14-foot boat off Point Atkinson near here.

'ROYAL JUNK' CARGO LANDED FROM CANADA

LONDON (Reuters)—Under a headline "From Canada—a Cargo of Royal Junk," the London Daily Sketch reported Friday that three great crates of gifts, "many of them useless," are on their way to Buckingham Palace.

one another. We had four solid months of talks."

Mr. Billings said attitude of International Woodworkers of America was preventing an end to the dispute, but Opposition Leader Robert Strachan said the men would have been back at work long ago if small logging operators had not been "intimidated to refuse to sign agreements with the union."

SMALL MEN HURT

"These small operators are being squeezed (by the IWA) and told of the dire consequences that will befall them unless they hold the line," he charged.

"This makes it obvious that the large operators are controlling the market and preventing, in many cases, workers and their employees from reaching a mutual agreement."

Meanwhile, the B.C. Federation of Labor announced Friday it would open a drive Monday to rally all B.C. unions to the IWA's support.

"We intend to do all we can to assure full support—morally, financially and otherwise—to the IWA in this dispute," said secretary Pat O'Neal in Vancouver.

NOT ENTERTAINED

Also in Vancouver, a Forest Industrial Relations official said the high (20 per cent) wage demands of the IWA could never be entertained as a basis for settlement. He said: "High local wage settlements of non-export industries are being held up as a pattern for the forest industry, but the industry must export or shrink to such small proportions that towns such as Port Alberni, Courtenay and Nanaimo would be tragically hard-hit by loss of business."

Meanwhile, in the Courtenay IWA local a union vice-president denied the allegation of the local's own financial secretary, Jake Epp, that president Ben Falk and vice-president Earl Kent resigned following accusations of mishandling union funds.

MONEY TRANSFERRED

Mr. Epp said both he and Mr. Falk were accused. According to a statement Mr. Epp issued Friday, 60 rebel IWA members made the charge.

"Actually, all it was was a transfer of money from one fund to another, a normal union practice," he said, adding that the accused officials had not received any pay or strike relief during the walk-out.

The "misappropriation allegation will be investigated at a meeting of the Courtenay local with IWA vice-president Jack Moore Monday.

Walter Allen, president of Port Alberni loggers, said rumors that officials of the Courtenay local resigned over the furor were not factual.

Local merchants and the public have donated meat, fish, tobacco, cookies and cash to striking Chemalunus loggers on picket duty.

Some 60 men are doing daily picket duty there. Some have been granted leave of absence from strike duty for their holidays.

The bearded prime minister, fresh from conquering an airborne invasion attempt in central Cuba, boasted that he would have trapped the Dominican Republic's whole "foreign legion" if reports of his manoeuvres had not leaked out.

5,000 MEN

A captive who appeared on the program said the Dominican Republic had planned to send 5,000 men to invade Cuba. Castro began the nationwide television program with background on the battle which captured an invading C-46 plane Thursday night at Trinidad, Cuba.

He soon turned to the broader question of Cuba's relations with other states and the efforts of the foreign ministers' conference in Santiago, Chile, to solve Caribbean tension.

He charged the conference was part of a Dominican plot against Cuba and therefore "without meaning."

"Look at Herter's speech at the foreign ministers' conference," Castro said.

"He speaks of expeditions such as the adventure that involved 30 Cubans, while in the Americas the need is to speak of hunger."

"He makes no mention of the horror that the tyranny of (Dominican strong man) Trujillo signifies."

Castro said both Trujillo and Nicaraguan president Luis Somoza were the "products of intervention" themselves.

SPOKE THREE HOURS

Castro spoke for three hours and five minutes, prodded occasionally by a panel of newsmen.

One of the captives, Luis Pozo, Jr., son of the mayor of Havana under former dictator Fulgencio Batista said the invasion plan was hatched and directed by Trujillo. He said he doubted Batista had anything to do with it.

The residuary estate was left to a sister, Mrs. Catherine Hales of New Zealand. Colin MacKenzie, a nephew, was left the "real property" including a 600-acre farm.

Shabby City Areas Might Be Improved

A redevelopment survey of Victoria which could lead to rebuilding rundown parts of the city has been proposed by the Capital Region Planning Board.

It would include parts of James Bay, Victoria West, the downtown section west of Government, the mill area and the area around Memorial Arena.

Brahm Wiesman, director of the board, said he will submit to the city council a schedule of the urban renewal survey

Makarios Blasts New Cyprus Fight

NICOSIA (Reuters)—Archbishop Makarios, primate of the Cypriot Orthodox Church and political leader of Greek Cypriots, today condemned the revival of a campaign for Enosis (political union of Cyprus and Greece).

Speaking to a large crowd at a monastery in southwest Cyprus, Makarios attacked the authors of anonymous leaflets who support Enosis "by force if need be."

A few miles away, one of Makarios' bishops delivered a sermon calling for Enosis and criticizing "pseudo politicians" now in charge of Greek affairs.

Bishop Kyprianos of Kyrenia predicted the time will come when "Greece will be guided by great politicians like Gen. George Grivas," leader of the underground terrorist movement EOKA during the four-year Greek-Cypriot campaign against the British.

Grivas, now in Greece, has labelled a Greek-Turkish-British agreement to make this colony an independent republic by next February a sell-out. Makarios supports the settlement.

Horse 'Throws' Wife Of Cabinet Minister

DAWSON CREEK, B.C. (CP)—Mrs. George Hees, wife of Canada's transport minister, was thrown from her horse Friday when stampeding race horses jumped a track rail and charged the federal minister and his wife.

Mrs. Hees was not injured. She slid to the ground on her back as her horse reared and bolted.

"I landed on the softest part of me," she told reporters after the incident.

(Compiled From CP)

VANCOUVER—Police are looking for an accountant who they believe stole $10,000 from a Vancouver fraternal organization.

The money was reported missing from the bank account of the Independent Order of Foresters.

Warrants were issued Friday for the arrest of the 54-year-old accountant charging specifically that he passed three cheques, for a total of $749.80, on the organization's account.

The $10,000 was withdrawn from the account between January and August this year on cheques made out in the name of the organization.

The accountant was reported missing by his wife Tuesday night. He left home in his car, which was discovered later a short distance away.

POLICE CHIEF FIRED

MATSQUI — Mrs. George Rose, who described herself as "just a housewife who wants to know what's going on," appeared at a special police commission meeting Friday night and asked why the commission had called for the resignation of police chief Joe Phillips.

Mrs. Rose told the commission the resignation and the manner in which it had been demanded "doesn't inspire confidence in the police, or in the police commission."

The commission declined to give further details.

How To Lose a Customer

IN A REMARKABLE INTERVIEW with United Press International, Mr. Toru Hagiwara, Japanese ambassador to Canada, tells the truth about our economic relations with his nation.

Japan, he says, is about to cut down its textile exports to Canada at the request of the Canadian Government. "The Canadian Government," Mr. Hagiwara explains, "warned us early this summer that it might be compelled to take action if the rapid increase in Japanese imports was not curtailed. I warned my Government of this and it in turn used the threat to persuade the (textile) industry to take up the problem."

This is good plain English. Japan is cutting down its textile sales in our market under threat. If it does not cut them down "voluntarily" they will be restricted directly by higher tariffs. In plainer English, the Canadian Government has coerced the Government of Japan for the protection of the Canadian textile industry—at the cost of higher clothing prices to the Canadian consumer—and for no other reason whatever.

It is said in the polite language of diplomacy that Japan is enforcing an export quota on its textiles. In fact the quota system was made in Canada and is being enforced solely by the Canadian Government.

Here a fascinating irony appears. For the two Governments of Canada since the last war have never tired of denouncing import quotas as applied by Britain, European and other countries where we sell Canadian goods. In their case quotas of themselves were evil since they made tariffs meaningless, undermined the principles of the Geneva trade agreements and broke the spirit if not the letter of solemn international contracts. But after all this denunciation of import quotas abroad, Canada has now instituted them at home.

One might suppose from this fundamental change in Canadian policy that Japan was some minor market for our goods, a market where we already bought far more than we sold. Actually Japan has become a major market for our goods, especially the goods of British Columbia and the western prairies, for coal, iron ore, timber products and huge quantities of our surplus grain. And Japan is buying far more from us than we are buying from it.

The Japanese are a polite people who have learned by long experience to live on the brink of economic ruin, they graciously accept the coercion of the Canadian Government today but we may be sure that they are thinking long thoughts about tomorrow.

If they cannot sell to us without harassment and breach of contract they will buy elsewhere so far as they can. They may not immediately reduce their purchases from Canada but they will hold them down to save their scarce dollars. Our great and growing Japanese market will not expand as it could expand if we refuse to maintain our purchases from Japan for the purpose of protecting one central Canadian industry.

It is difficult to imagine a worse folly on Canada's part when most of our overseas markets are shrinking, when we have vast surpluses of certain products like grain to sell, when our greatest single need is an increase in exports.

Yet in the case of textiles that is the folly we intend to pursue. We have retreated to the old, familiar storm cellar of protectionism, we have adopted the very quota policy which we have so long denounced in others and we have thus created a dangerous precedent.

If our tariff agreement with Japan can be violated overnight by the backdoor quota method in the case of textiles it can be violated in the case of other goods—also in the case of other customers.

All of them will note and understand the warning and the "threat" of our coercion against Japan. And as Mr. Pearson said in Parliament not long ago, the Japanese people will ultimately be driven into the political and economic arms of communist China, with disastrous strategic consequences for the whole West, if the West refuses to do business with Japan.

At Record High Prices

THE RISE OF THE BANK OF Canada interest rate to a record 6.41 per cent, well above the maximum of 6 per cent allowed to the chartered banks, has resulted in drastic action to curb credit facilities. The official rate has mounted week by week to its present unprecedented point, pushed by the demands of investors at the weekly auction of federal treasury bills. The bank rate is set one-quarter of one per cent higher than the average treasury bill bid.

Obviously the demand for money far exceeds the supply, and the high "price" put on loans must be paid by governments no less than private borrowers. The rate could be brought down by increasing the nation's supply of currency, but this would be a measure likely to lead to a further inflationary spurt—something both the central bank and the Government wish to avoid.

Since the mounting interest rate has proved ineffective in discouraging the demand of borrowers for more funds, the chartered banks now announce that they will curtail the sums available for loans. This will cause hardship and loss to many who are in the midst of construction projects requiring large-scale credit. It could also have repercussions on the labor market.

Money for new building, for expansion of plants, for purchase of all types of goods, for investment in public works and other enterprises will for a time be scarcer. Many projects may have to be postponed, possibly until next spring. But badly needed building—and this could include schools, hospitals and other municipal responsibilities—will have to continue, and borrowing for these undertakings will have to be at the current high rates.

The Conservative federal Government, wrestling with a large deficit, must finance itself at the highest interest rates in many years. And Mr. Bennett, having burned all his three and four per cent bonds, will have to do any further borrowing at today's top prices. His recently announced PGE issue, for instance, even at a rate of five per cent had to be bolstered with the promise of redemption at par at any time.

The smoke of the Kelowna bonfire can't hide the hard facts of today's money market.

The Lifesavers

AFTER A SUMMER MARRED by many drowning accidents throughout Canada it is encouraging to read a little story in The Montreal Gazette.

A middle-aged woman, it reports, fell from the CPR bridge at Bordeaux, Quebec, into the treacherous waters of Riviere des Prairies. The chances of her survival were extremely slight but two people heard her cries and managed to pull her into a boat. Even then her chances were still slight, for without expert attention she certainly would have died.

But it happened that the two rescuers, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Monette, were trained in lifesaving methods as officials of the local YMCA. Long before the police and doctors could arrive they applied artificial respiration and saved the woman's life. Without their knowledge she would be dead today.

A simple story but it tells us that every Canadian boy and girl should be taught not only how to swim but how to rescue and revive those—far too many of them—who otherwise would drown needlessly in Canada every summer.

The Tyranny of the Tie

GOOD NEWS FOR POOR OLD Dad. A London haberdasher, Mr. Cecil Gee, having long studied a painful domestic phenomenon, announces that the male animal, in Britain anyway, is beginning to escape the tyranny of the female tie.

A few years ago, says Mr. Gee, he and his colleagues dreaded selling ties to women because they were usually returned to the store, in secret, by the recipient of the customary Christmas or Father's Day gift. After thanking his wife for the tie and praising its color with innocent hypocrisy, poor old Dad would sneak it back to the vendor and change it for something nearer to his taste.

"But," Mr. Gee announces, "women's taste in ties has so improved that we now have to change only one in fifty." Never underestimate a man's taste in neckwear. But never underestimate the power of a woman to learn the vital facts of life. And the Canadian woman, we feel assured, will learn as fast as her British sister. Thus perishes, unlamented, the old tyranny of the Christmas tie that blinds.

Corrected Quotation

I would like to correct a point attributed to me in your report about the mental health hearing before Dr. Mathew Ross last Wednesday, where you say that I estimated that the government service could reap an additional revenue of about $80,000 a month if the present rate of $1.50 per day at provincial mental institutions was reassessed.

What in fact I did say was that about $63,000 per month is being received by way of old age security and applied on behalf of institutional patients, but that these patients have resources which could realize an approximate total, including old age security, of $80,000, i.e., the increase would be $17,000 and not $80,000.

This was in reply to a question by Dr. Ross where he had asked me to hazard a wild guess as to the possibility of increasing government revenues in respect of mental health services and should be considered more or less in that category.

FROM WASHINGTON

An Invitation to Mr. Khrushchev Was the Third Way Out

THE President's invitation to Nikita S. Khrushchev is such a great event that every explanatory detail has true historic interest. Here, then, is another well-authenticated installment of the background story. President Eisenhower himself, it can now be stated, was the first to think favorably of a visit by the Soviet leader. He had of course known for many months that Khrushchev wanted a personal meeting with him. He seems to have become inclined to give Khrushchev what he wanted rather early in the Berlin crisis.

The idea of a Khrushchev visit was very much in the President's mind, at any rate, long before the tragic death of former Secretary of State John Foster Dulles. After Dulles had retired from the state department, but when he was still well enough to give advice and counsel, the President talked to him more than once about the desirability of inviting Khrushchev.

Dulles was properly conscious that final responsibility had passed to Secretary of State Christian A. Herter. He refrained from taking an extreme position. Yet he always disliked summit meetings of any sort, and he particularly disliked the kind of two-man summit that is now to occur.

Hoots! If I hadna drropped a wurrd o' Gaelic, they'd nevrerr ha' caught on...

By JOSEPH ALSOP

And instead of offering "justifying" concessions at Geneva, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko stonewalled from start to finish.

Herter finally left for Washington with the conviction that the foreign ministers' second round would be no more fruitful than was the first. That left him face to face with the problem posed by British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan.

Macmillan had always insisted that the Western nations could not proceed to the final, terrible test of will and strength over Berlin, without one last attempt to find a way out at the summit. Britain could not go along, he had said, if war was to be risked without first trying what talk could achieve. Therefore Secretary Herter, having little hope of further progress by the foreign ministers, was forced to make one of three choices:

First, he could prepare to go it alone on Berlin, defying Khrushchev on Berlin without the support of Britain.

Second, he could prepare to eat his own words about the need for "justification," and then satisfy Macmillan and Khrushchev too, by consenting to a 1954-style summit conference.

Or third, he could find another way out, which escaped the danger of the first choice and the humiliation of the second.

Since an informal, two-man summit had not been considered except by the President, it had not been hedged about with requirements for "justification."

It could even be presented as a kind of jolly weekend party. It was the best way out, and the President, already inclined to invite Khrushchev, took this way out as soon as Secretary Herter advised it.

Herter further decided to make an empty exercise of the second round at Geneva, by sending the President's invitation to Moscow before the foreign ministers reassembled. The purpose was to avoid the appearance of inviting Khrushchev in panic and under duress, when the second round was breaking up in failure.

This decision was shortly justified, when Prime Minister Macmillan began pressing Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd to sponsor an "interim agreement" on Berlin that was as full of holes as a colander.

It was only at this point, finally, that Herter told the other allies that Khrushchev would probably be coming to Washington. Contrary to previous report, they had not been consulted in advance; but they approved the action taken with varying measures of good grace. Like Herter, they had no better alternative.

WHEN WE WERE VERY YOUNG

Nothing Much New in the World of Screened Shadows

ONE of the most flattering experiences is that of hearing a person of authority expressing one's own thoughts. It is one thing for me to say that I do not like such a thing, or that I deeply approve such and such a thing. My expressed opinion has no more weight than a vagrant thistleseed drifting from a careless neighbor's yard.

I may, for example, be happy to feel that my province is suddenly free of the burden of direct debt while I am deeply disturbed that my share of the contingent liabilities of the province is almost $500.

What I say about it has very little impact, indeed. But if the president of the Investment Dealers' Association of Canada echoes my feelings his words bear the weight of authority.

So it was personally gratifying this week when an established authority on motion pictures and the film industry in general put into words several of my own cherished opinions.

He is James Card, of Eastman House, which is a sort of museum dedicated to the motion picture industry. And he was interviewed by Bob Quintrell for CBUT.

There was nothing immoderate in his expressed opinions; simply quiet statements which appeared to be carefully considered conclusions.

Most immediately striking was his statement that there isn't very much new in the production of motion pictures. In fact, he said, that the great, cumbersome curved screens of some of the much-vaunted new productions are old hat; that long ago producers had experimented with—and introduced—screens that went round in full circle.

He also told of early color films, made, I believe, by Gaumont in Great Britain many years ago. Each tiny 35 mm "frame" was hand colored by women. One would paint on the blue, another red and third yellow. Even today, Mr. Card said, the colors are vivid and lovely.

Obviously he did not worship at the shrine of Hollywood's film moguls, nor rate very highly the net results of their lavish spectacles.

And he pointed out a thing that must have occurred to each of us: there have been no really top flight motion picture actors or actresses introduced for years. One has only to cast up the names of the great stars of today and it is obvious that many are getting pretty long in the tooth.

Watch for some of the films coming out of Denmark, Poland and Scandinavia, he suggested.

In answer to a question as to what he considered the greatest film he had ever seen Mr. Card said it was "The Passing of John Dryden." I do not remember seeing it.

You try it and you'll discover that it is probably none of the "colossal," noise-filled spectacles that Hollywood loves.

Well, I can't single out any one film but I remember being deeply moved by Broken Blossoms with Dick Barthelmess and one of the Gish girls—Dorothy, I believe, but it could have been Lillian.

Of course, I must say that I still think High Noon was a good effort, particularly for sustained suspense. Then there was a French picture that sticks in my mind. It was called Grand Illusion and told the story of two French soldiers who escaped from a German prison—a supposedly impregnable one. Eric von Stroheim was the governor of the prison and the hero was Jean Gabin.

It had an earthy quality about it and a delicacy that was sheer artistry. Dialogue was entirely in French which detracted not at all from complete understanding of the story.

Janet Gaynor and Charlie Farrell in Seventh Heaven made a touching story of young love in Paris. It was made in the silent days.

Paul Robeson in Sanders of the River was also something to remember and so was James Mason in Odd Man Out.

And do you remember the singing films where a little ball bounced over the words of familiar songs and the audience was asked to sing them?

But I suppose not too many will remember my first screen hero—Broncho Billy—fearless rider of the plains; dead shot and imperishable whom we could see for a nickel at a little theatre on Yates Street below Government.

PUBLISHERS GIVE THE OLD COLLEGE TRY

There Is No Reason Why History Shouldn't Be Popular

SPEAKING as one who earns his living in the service of Clio, the muse of History, I must confess to some disappointment that more historians do not occasionally remember that for the Greeks history was an art. Those of you who, like myself, have to wade through the outpourings of the graduate schools must have noticed that for every dozen dab hands with a 12th-century charter there is not more than one who can write a page of readable prose. Specialization, too, has gone so far that not only does your average modern historian not see the wood for the trees, but he is commonly incapable of discerning the branch beneath the pile of dry twigs which he is clumsily fashioning into a nest.

Life Blood
Now I should be the last to denigrate the activities of the researcher. Research is the life blood of scholarship, but all too often nowadays it has become the embalming fluid; researchers need to be reminded that their diggings in the archives and record-offices what Carlyle called the "guano heaps of history"—are not an end in themselves.

When all the facts have been gathered and digested, grouped and ordered, then is the time to pour a small libation to Clio and invoke her aid in the creation of a work of art.

Other Times

I don't mean that history should be "popularized," but I see no reason why it shouldn't be popular. When one observes the great sale of historical novels, one is led to suppose that the general public is interested in how men and women lived—or is it only how they loved?—in other places at other times.

From this it is no great step to assume that if the general reader were not put off at an early age by history textbooks he or she would still be reading history for pleasure in later life, but for the unfortunate fact that so few history books are readable by any but the most dedicated specialist.

Do you think I'm exaggerating? Here is a chunk at random from a new History of England which the publishers would like me to adopt as a university text:

"In early September Hitler expected that Britain would soon be softened up for a seaborne and airborne assault. He therefore gathered 3,000 invasion barges at Antwerp, Boulogne, Calais, Flushing and Ostend. This was 'The Armada that never sailed.' On September 7 about 400 German aircraft attacked London. Approximately 25 per cent were destroyed. On September 15 the Luftwaffe lost about 200 planes. On September 27 the Germans sent over probably 800 aircraft. It was their last appearance in major force. Night attacks continued for many months, inflicting heavy damage and casualties in British cities. In the long weeks of the blitz 40,553 individuals were killed; 46,850 were seriously injured."

In Other Terms

It's about as gripping as a page from the railway timetable or the telephone directory, and yet the events it describes are not without significance; couched in other terms they have been known to arouse interest, not to put it any stronger.

After reading this stirring account of the Battle of Britain it comes as small surprise to discover that the historian, an energetic young professor in an American university, believes Agricola to have been the son-in-law of Tacitus, and locates Old Sarum in Gloucestershire.

Without wishing to be unkind, I must just quote you a couple of lines from the publisher's blurb: "This gracefully written textbook has established itself as a leader in its field. Teachers have liked it because of its scholarly emphasis on essentials; students have welcomed it for its literary quality, its graphic prose . . ." and so on. You have to hand it to those publishers when it comes to the Old College Try.

Ideal Combination

Luckily there are still historians alive who can combine a scrupulous regard for discoverable facts with some grace and lucidity in expression. The names of Steven Runciman and Miss Veronica Wedgwood spring immediately to mind, and I only wish I had remembered earlier to recommend you to take Runciman's history of the Crusades along with you for holiday reading. The three volumes will come in handy to press flowers or hold down the tent flap, if you haven't already had your vacation.

If your kid wants to be a historian dip him early in Parkman and Motley; steep him in Gibbon, Macaulay, Trevelyan and Grote; give him Green for his birthday and Carlyle for Christmas. At all costs keep him away from facts and figures until he can write.

Saddle and Sirloin

MERRITT, B.C.—This country is very little changed from what it was 50 years ago. The hard surface highways, it is true, have brought a new kind of transient into the area; slummy folks who scatter trash about the landscape, leave cattle gates open and start fires . . . they nearly burned the hamlet of Aspen Grove last summer . . . but by and large these slobbs confine their depredations to the main road allowances. Out in the back country the ranchers in the valleys live pretty much as they used to, unaffected by the comings and goings of dudes.

And what a country it is. The traveller along the Yellowhead Route from Princeton to Merritt doesn't see much of it. A few little lakes, some dry hillsides, pines and aspen groves near the water, now and then a bunch of white-faced Herefords who stare at him suspiciously . . . It all looks pretty dried out and dull. But take any one of the little dusty side roads and you are soon into the real British Columbia.

They are taking off the second crop of hay now, and everyone is busy. Most of the horses have been turned out for their summer rest, to wander freely over the range till it comes time to move the cattle down from the hills. Everywhere along the creek bottoms there are piles of hay bales, and the hay barns which are dotted about for convenient winter feeding are full. The woods are full of Herefords, cows and their half-grown calves, scattered in little bunches wherever there is grass. When you figure that 50 head of cattle require about 1,000 acres of range you realize that the small man with 2,000 or 3,000 head who lives in a modest log house with the usual barns and buildings is master of a sizeable empire. As far as he can see the land is his.

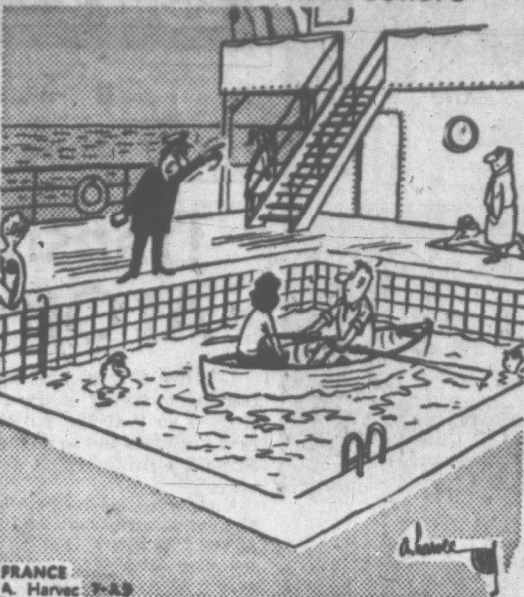

It's an investment that means a lot of hard work, but it's free of strikes, inflation and the vagaries of the stock market to an extent that seems impossible to the city dweller.

But this is all very serious and sober. Just below where I am sitting trout (known two and three-pounders) are rising at the edge of the reeds. Across the lake I can see the children on the brown hillsides, scampering. They went over to look at the residence of a family of bank beavers who live in a clump of willows, but beavers are not very sociable; Gib Shaler's Labrador is more so, and though a serious minded retriever, can often be prevailed upon to relax his dignity and do a bit of scampering.

There is just time to go down and try a brown sedge (or maybe a Nation's Special) for half an hour before lunch.

'ALL THAT REDS UNDERSTAND' Strength Needed For Peace—Nixon

CHICAGO (AP)—A position of strength offers the greatest hope for reaching agreements with the Soviet Union, Vice-President Richard Nixon said Friday night.

"Strength is the only thing the Russian leaders understand," Nixon said. "I mean military strength. When one side has more strength than the other, you get ultimatums that could lead to war."

He said his recent tour of Russia and Poland has convinced him the only hope for progress toward world peace is for the United States to deal from a position of strength at any future summit conference.

Nixon, in Chicago for Friday night's college all-star football game with the Baltimore Colts, expressed his views at a press conference and at an informal talk to the Football Writers' Association of America.

In a television program recorded in Washington for New York stations in advance of his trip to Chicago, Nixon said Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev believes the United States is weak, sinking economically and split over foreign policy.

He said Khrushchev's forthcoming U.S. visit will be worthwhile if it removes "this miscalculation" about U.S. strength and determination. The net effect, he added, could advance the cause of peace.

ANGRY SENATOR

Flags Together 'Sickening'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Any plan to fly Russian and American flags side by side during Soviet Premier Khrushchev's visit is not only distasteful, but sickening, says Republican Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire.

Bridges has strongly opposed the exchange of visits between Khrushchev and President Eisenhower. He reacted with outrage Friday to stories pointing out it is customary to line the capital's streets with flags of foreign dignitaries during state visits.

Bridges said he telephoned the protocol office of the state department "to voice my violent opposition to such a proposal."

"I was assured, however, that no such order has been given and that no decision has been reached as yet regarding the extent of the display of the Russian Hammer and Sickle," he added in a statement.

B.C. Gas Lease Sale Brings $4.7 Million

The B.C. government collected $4,725,055 Friday in the largest sale of exploratory permits, petroleum and natural gas land leases and drilling reservation leases, ever held in the province.

Results of the auction surpassed expectations of Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan. He said he expects the trend of increasing values to continue.

Bidding was by sealed tender. Over 50 companies offered 172 bids on 45 parcels of land. There were no bids received on six parcels and in two cases bids were so low they were turned down by the minister.

The properties are all in the Peace River area, a known producer area, which is thought to account for the record sales proceeds despite the fact the total acreage sold was the smallest of recent sales.

Total land area turned over to the companies was 426,895 acres.

TO GENERAL REVENUE

Mr. Kiernan said the revenue from the auction is lumped with other provincial general revenue with exception of $150,000 which will be retained by his department for establishment of a government oil and gas operational centre.

This will be located at Charlie Lake, six miles north of Fort St. John on the Alaska Highway in premises to be purchased from Pacific Petroleum Co. Ltd.

The new oil centre will provide storage for core samples from various drilling operations throughout the province, which Mr. Kiernan describes as a "geological library." Six government geologists, engineers and technicians will be stationed there. Their records will be available to perusal by any bona fide exploration company.

One parcel of 653 acres was bid in by Imperial Oil at $435,000 bonus, representing a price of $670 an acre.

TIME LIMITS

The minister explained that in permits of this nature a company has 10 years, or 12 at the minister's discretion, to conduct explorations. If the company goes into production, besides paying royalties, the company must lease an area around the wells and Crown corridors are immediately set aside surrounding the lease.

Thus, if an exploration permit results in a rich discovery, and adjacent to it remains in the hands of the province and available for sale at an inflated value at a later date.

Another exploration permit about 12 miles east of Fort Nelson, went to Imperial Oil for $446,565 — about $15 an acre. Sohio and United Producing Company paid $339,106 for 40,563 acres of wildcat land 35 miles west of Fort Nelson.

B.C. CANNOT LOSE

In the case of drilling reservations disposed of, the companies must drill within a specified period to keep control of the land. If they don't drill, and if the property doesn't prove fruitful, the government still has the payment.

Mr. Kiernan said the next auction of Crown lands would take place Dec. 17 but it was not expected the sales volume of Friday's sale would be rivaled. He said interested firms will be given opportunity Oct. 15 to advise the mines department what properties they would like to nominate for sale.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

A Life-Saving Accident

LONDON—A recent book, The Life of Sir Alexander Fleming by Andre Maurois, gives a fascinating insight into the discoverer of penicillin—such as the fact that it was strangely accidental the succession of circumstances that led to the world getting this wonder drug.

Fleming, a Scottish farmer's son, only became a doctor because of an unexpected legacy that paid his fees.

He chose St. Mary's Hospital because he knew men there through playing water polo against their team.

He became a bacteriologist because that department's rifle club needed a good member and his farm training had made him a fine marksman.

And it was his untidiness that led to the revolutionary discovery—he left test-jars lying around and onto one dropped the fateful spore that floated in through an open window.

Later in life, being shown around a spotless United States laboratory, he said: "If I'd worked in these conditions I'd never have found penicillin."

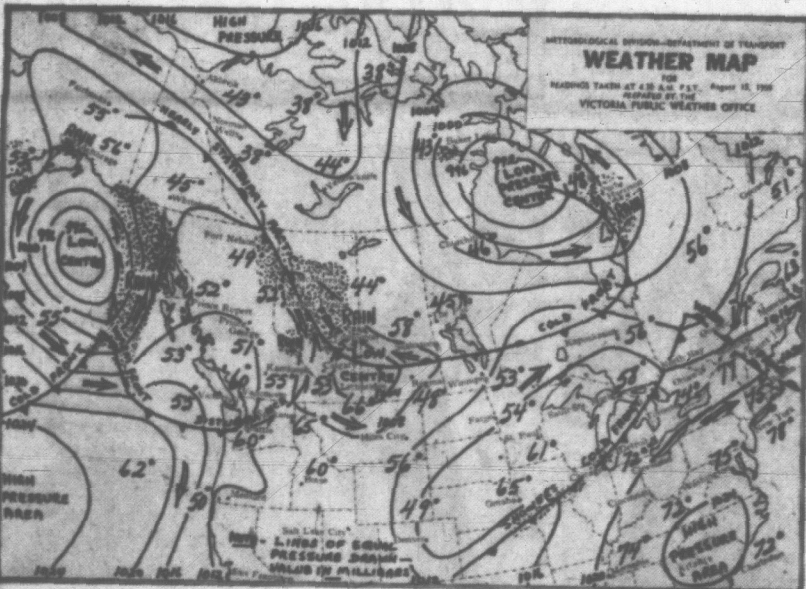

Add things I didn't know until now . . . Little Miss Muffet, the girl who sat on a tuffet in the nursery rhyme, was a real person. She was the daughter, some 300 years ago, of a Dr. Thomas Muffet, a farmer in Hertfordshire. The tuffet, or rock, on which she sat and which prompted her father to burst into verse has now been designated "a place of historical interest" by the Ministry of Housing.

Intriguing how a situation can arise whereby culture can get a boost from an unexpected partner.

Associated-Rediffusion is one of the big four commercial television outlets which are dedicated, with isolated exceptions, to keeping their material down to the lowest popular level. But now we have A-R urging the postmaster-general to make the new television channel (due within five years) a cultural one.

And they're doing more than merely suggesting that the new station should concentrate on symphony, opera, ballet and other higher-level interests that at present don't get a great outing on TV.

They've drawn up an elaborate plan for Culture Television, four hours a day, and have expressed their willingness to back the project to the extent of £2½ million annually as their share of the cost.

ISLAND VIEWPOINT

About Strikes

SIDNEY REVIEW—This week we enjoyed a visit with a family from neighboring Alberta. They told of the kind of publicity British Columbia is getting in the rest of Canada. When they informed their neighbors that they intended to travel to Vancouver Island, they were advised against it. "British Columbians are starving to death today," they were told. "The people are eking out an existence on strike pay. You will travel to Vancouver Island and be stranded there because the seamen will go on strike. We strongly advise you to enjoy your holiday anywhere else than in B.C."

Another gentleman reported in much the same vein. He also is a Canadian from another province. He recently met a tourist from Texas. The latter had informed him that he wouldn't visit B.C. because of the ever-present threat of strikes. Friends of his had visited Vancouver Island last year and had experienced such problems in leaving the island that he would never return and would advise everyone he met to stay away until stability returned to our economy.

Wonderful publicity, isn't it? While we spend more and more money to advertise British Columbia as a tourist paradise, the continual industrial uproar is nullifying our sincere efforts.

Let Minors Drink

COMOX DISTRICT FREE PRESS—A recent visit to police court has convinced us that it is high time that the ridiculous law in regard to minors and liquor should be changed.

That a six-foot 200 pound youth, perhaps engaged on heavy construction work or employed in the woods, should be deprived of a glass of beer until he is 21 years of age is ridiculous.

We think the legal age at which a person may drink should be dropped to 19.

The stupid Puritan law is making a fortune for bootleggers and is driving minors into secret drinking.

A look at other countries will show that there is little wrong with a person drinking at the age of 19, even 18.

The reason for the existing law is purely political. Fear of the church groups and the desire for the temperance vote is clearly behind it.

The restriction in the drinking age has no sound moral basis although the law-makers might pretend it has.

Put liquor within reach and it won't be so attractive.

LADYSMITH CHRONICLE

—Faced with diminishing patronage this year, some Vancouver Island motel operators are blaming the provincial government parks and advocating that a charge be made for the use of campsites in these parks. From where we sit this looks like a sour grapes attitude and it is our belief that such a charge would work against the motel owners rather than for them.

Tourists who stop at government parks have no intention of staying at motels when they come to Vancouver Island. They have a large investment in camping equipment and in planning their holiday trip they arrange a route that will take them to parks where they can use this equipment. If there were no such parks on the Island, or if the charge at the parks was high, they would go some place else for their holiday.

ART IN REVIEW

Transfer of Nation's Art At Ottawa Involves Us All

When I received the press release announcing the imminent closing of the National Gallery of Canada on Aug. 4 so that the collection can be moved into their new premises in the Lorne Building at Elgin and Slater Streets, Ottawa, I felt as though I were personally involved.

A cockeyed reaction, really. I might so easily have said to myself, "So what?" For, as is the case with nearly every Canadian I meet (and in the art world one seldom gets through a day without meeting some body new), I have never seen in the National Gallery, Williamson

My only view of Ottawa was from a train, this side of midnight. And to expect the average person to be interested in the move of an art collection from one building to another was comparable to expecting me to be interested in the transfer of a rocket launching site from Nevada to the coast of Florida.

One world divided into a million separate worlds. Yet as a taxpayer I would rather own one half-inch of a drawing by Rembrandt in our National Collection than a half-inch of empty missile casing vaporized in the stratosphere. Given the proper conservation, "my" Rembrandt drawing will still be in existence long after our monkey descendants have reached the moon.

Perhaps it is different back East, but out here on the coast we are, on the whole, more attuned to the cultural activities of San Francisco. Canada, for many of us, is still divided at Winnipeg and, therefore, it often requires an extra special pull at the strings to turn our attention to cultural Ottawa.

Reading the history of the National Gallery since its foundation in March, 1880, by the Marquis of Lorne; following its halting progress from grown with their gallery. All have earned our respect.

Being an employee of the National Gallery is something more than holding down a job in the Civil Service. This move to the new Lorne Building, where for the first time it will be possible to hang the greater part of the permanent collection, is the tangible reward for past and present effort.

In the West, although we might share vicariously the pleasure of those who will be able to visit the new premises when they are opened early in 1960, our own direct link will continue through the extension services.

Through the general stepping up and improvement of existing circulating exhibitions, lecture tours and films we look to a greatly increased participation in our National Gallery's activities.

With Canadian and an ever-growing collection of European and other art suitably housed in Ottawa, the Canadian public can claim that, despite its own apathy, it has won a great battle.

That's why we are all, to some extent or other, personally involved.

Little, Brown and Co. Canada Ltd. in association with Little, Brown and Company of Boston is offering $1,000, in addition to royalties, for the best manuscript of a children's book by a Canadian citizen or resident. Deadline for entries is Jan. 31, 1961.

Public Indifference

From 1910 onwards, however, after the collection was established (I almost wrote "bogged down," in its present quarters in the east wing of the Victoria Memorial Museum, the tale develops all the fancies of a first-class mystery.

Who was the culprit? Who, despite the efforts of the first two directors, Eric Brown and H. O. McCurry, held the reins so firmly in check that the National Gallery was allowed to languish, so that it had little more standing aside from its imposing title, than a fourth rate museum in provincial England?

The culprit—the villain, "was that not so abstract quality commonly referred to as Public Indifference. However, as all readers of mystery tales will agree, you can't keep a good man down, though occasionally he might be beaten almost to pulp.

Tireless Devotion

That the National Gallery of Canada has survived the Canadian public attitude towards art, merely proves its strength as a worthwhile institution. Some day, it is hoped, the full story of its development from provincial to international level will be written; with suitable acknowledgment of the tireless, ceaseless devotion of those backroom men and women who have labored anonymously through Ottawa.

In the art world we know the names of the key personalities who have wrestled with Public Indifference. Some of them might be said to have

Seekers Among The Stars

THE SLEEPWALKERS, by Arthur Koestler (Macmillan):

Man has always theorized about his beginnings and the nature of the universe.

And as knowledge started pushing aside the curtain of darkness, old theories were dropped for newer and larger concepts about the number, position and movement of the stars, planets and other bodies in space.

GIANTS Koestler has written a chronological story of these developments as they were unfolded by the "sleepwalkers," those giants of philosophy whose visions drove them groping and stumbling toward the light. Plato, Aristotle, Pythagoras, Copernicus, Galileo, Brahe and Kepler are the heroes of Koestler's story.

A book of this kind could not be made easy reading, treating as it does of the scientific charting of the heavens, but Koestler has brought his heroes to life, telling of their struggles and failures and triumphs in a way that shows that they were human beings beset with superhuman problems.

A WRITER'S DIARY

By ROBERTSON DAVIES

WEDNESDAY: My second last day in Ireland, and I shall leave without much regret. Not that I have anything against the Emerald Isle, but to me it has been the scene of three weeks' hard work, and I can do that anywhere. Still, there will be some regret; one becomes attached even to scenes of work, and I have met some charming Irish people. Wittier, better talkers than elsewhere? No: the wittiest talkers I have met here were an American, and a professor from the University of Lebanon. The Irish all assure me that their climate is soporific and dulls the wits. That is for them to say: I have no way of judging.

THURSDAY: To Dublin, my first sight of the Irish capital: a delightful city, much smaller than I expected and filled with handsome buildings. My companion insisted that to begin sightseeing without having a draught Guinness was so imprudent as to be downright unlucky, so we did, and made for Trinity College at once, encountering the Professor of Celtic (very big) and the Professor of Latin (very small) on the way.

Making the Best of an Old Job

The Library of the College is one of the finest I have ever seen, and contains a splendid row of busts of Irish writers; I had not known that Plato, Aeschylus, Samuel Jonson and several others were Irish, but the evidence was there before my eyes, and I did not want to argue.

More Guinness, then Merion Square, Guinness; the Quays, Guinness; the National Gallery, Guinness; then about 50 places hallowed by James Joyce, where, of course, it was necessary to pledge his memory in guess-what.

There is even a commemorative stamp to the Guinness family, and it is quite clear why. The soporific quality of Irish life becomes clearer to me.

My goodness; my Guinness. FRIDAY: Fly to London, which has to be done at 8.30 a.m., and as I must motor to Belfast this means starting at 5, and getting up at 4.30. The only trait I share with the late Sigmund Freud is that of being a nervous traveller, so I wake at 3, and cannot go back to sleep.

On the plane read a tract handed me by a fanatic at Nutt's Corner (the Belfast airport). It was a dialogue between Jesus and somebody called Mr. O. U. Foolish Man. Its literary level was amateurish, as is so often the case with the literature of edification.

Marvellous Pill Lost to Posterity

SATURDAY: After a night's sleep I am better able to meet the demands of life, but nobody wants to be bothered with me, for it is the beginning of Bank Holiday Week-end.

This is the English Saturday, and those who are not leaving London by plane, train, car, motorbike and roller-skates are entering London by the same means.

So I go to the theatre. But all the plays I want to see are full, and I end up at a musical comedy written by Lehar in 1928, in the manner of his greatest success, The Merry Widow, which was obviously Edwardian. If I really had a first-class critical brain this would have given me pain, but as I haven't I enjoyed it as a peep into the past—even the yellow haired, fatish heroine, who lived for love alone, and let us know about it at the top of her excellent voice.

SUNDAY: To matins at Southwark Cathedral, which has so many associations with writers. From Göwer and Chaucer downward. But, alas, like all great churches it is also the last resting-place of countless jackasses and pious self-advertisers.

One large tomb surmounted by a recumbent 17th century figure bears this moving tribute: Here Lockyer lies interr'd, enough his name. Speaks one hath few competitors in fame.

A Name so Great, so General, may some Inscriptions wch. soe vulgar tombs adorn: A diminution 'tis to write in verse. His eulogies wch. most men's mouths rehearse. His virtues & his PILLS are soe well known. That envy can't confine them under stone. But they'll survive his dust & not expire. Till all things else at th' universal fire.

This verse is 'lost; his PILL embalms him safe. To future times without an Epitaph.

Yes, but who was Lockyer and what was his marvellous pill? The poet was wrong: oblivion has claimed Lockyer and the pill, but his obsequious, shivelling doggerel remains, and looks good for another 500 years.

Moral: the best epitaph is a name and two dates.

MONDAY: August Bank Holiday, and what can I do? All the people I must see on business will not be available today, so I turn myself into a tourist and wander about to look at the sights. Of course, I could work, but I have had enough work in Ireland to suffice me for months to come; indeed, I begin to wonder about retirement.

But most sights are spoiled by guides, whose professional lingo gets on my nerves; they talk of history as though they had created it. So I elude the guides, and spend half-an-hour looking at a lively carving of the Devil swallowing Judas Iscariot, done with the zest which is so much admired in African primitive art.

Has religion changed since the Middle Ages? Would anyone choose such a subject now?

Yes; the fanatic at Nutt's Corner who prates of Mr. O. U. Foolish Man. I am sure she thinks of Eternity in just such ferocious images.

Five addresses by Lester B. Pearson have been brought together in book form under the title Diplomacy in the Nuclear Age (Saunders). Four of the addresses comprise the Clayton Lectures delivered by Mr. Pearson in 1958 at the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University, Bedford, Mass. The fifth is the address the Canadian Liberal party leader and former external affairs minister gave in 1957, when accepting the Nobel Peace Prize.

Krieghoff Prices High at Sotheby's

LONDON (CP)—Three paintings by the 19th century Canadian artist Cornelius Krieghoff were sold for a total of $2,750 at Sotheby's in London.

The biggest price—£1,700—went for "Canadian Autumn," which depicts three Indians gathered round a fire in a rocky clearing. "A Snowy Trail in a Forest" sold for £1,000. It shows a trapper hauling a sled loaded with skins.

"A Shipwreck," signed and dated 1866, sold for only £50. The low price for this painting is thought to be because it is not obviously "Canadian."

Last April a record-equaling £2,100 was paid for a Krieghoff painting—"Red Indians at a Portage"—purchased 18 years previously for 1s 6d at a jumble sale.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

NEW ISSUE NOTES: In 1957 Australia issued a special stamp for use in its Antarctic territories: a 2s value picturing a scene in the south polar regions. Now it is reported that other values are to be added in the fall: a 4d, 7d, 1s and 2s 3d. Like the 2s these will be valid for postage in Australia as well, and will make their first appearance in the main post offices of that country.

Collectors are asked, therefore, not to send orders to Antarctica for these stamps as facilities are not available for supplying them direct. They will go on sale, however, on Macquarie Island, and also at Mawson, Davis and Wilkes (which are on the mainland of Antarctica), when the weather moderates sufficiently.

Collectors who want first-day-covers from these four outposts must send remittances to the Philatelic Bureau, Melbourne. In addition to the value of the stamps used in mailing, the sum of 4d. must be added for each cover, to cover cost of envelopes and servicing. Remittances should arrive before Oct. 22.

Date of issue of the 2s. 3d. Wattle stamp, one of the "Flora of Australia" series mentioned in this column recently, will be Sept. 9. On the same day a new 1s. featuring a swimming platypus will make its appearance. Both stamps will be green in color.

Rhodesia-Nyasaland has in preparation a complete new series up to the £1 value. Basutoland, following the example of several other colonies lately, will celebrate a new constitution with a set of three: 3d. black and green, 1s. brown and green, and 1s. 3d. blue and orange.

Ghanawas all set to issue

DISNEY'S EUROPEAN CAST HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Hans Brinker or the Silver Skates, the children's classic by Mabel Mapes Dodge, will be filmed by Walt Disney Productions in Holland and Sweden with a European cast. The title role will be played by drama student Rony Zeander, 17.

The Sounding Board

By AUDREY St.D. JOHNSON

Tonight the lights dim out, the final curtains fall and Vancouver's International Festival becomes another concluded chapter in the lively history of that progressive city.

But in its very nature it will not—at least for a long time to come—cease to be a vital issue and a talking point. People who attended both the initial 1958 version and the current one, will likely never be done arguing their respective merits.

So many benefits accrue to a city that hosts such a venture. Not the least important, depending on the viewpoint, is the large number of visitors who make the city their holiday goal — AND STAY AROUND! Long enough anyway to contribute a warming infusion of tourist dollars into its veins.

Disappointments there may have been, both for the organizers and audiences; triumphs and memorable highlights there were without doubt.

But the achievement of this young and industrial western metropolis in building a festival of such stature, — not to speak of the worthy housing for it — dwarfs all other factors.

Comments of a complimentary nature must be balm to the hard-working organizers, but it won't be the pats on the back that they will weigh and examine when it comes to shaping up the 1960 festival.

The adverse criticisms that point out weaknesses and indicate the way to strengthening and improving the whole structure, these will be the comments that will inspire discussion in the months to come.

As nothing in art stands still it must either edge forward or slide backward; and as self-satisfaction begets smugness, which is the paralyzing polio disease of artistic endeavor, it is plain that the anti-polio needle of the critic needs to be kept sharp, immaculate and sure.

HI-FI TALK

New Electrostatic Speaker A Marvel in Natural Sound

By HUMPHREY DAVY

If you want to hear excellent musical sound reproduction then I suggest you make a point of listening to the English Quad Electrostatic loudspeaker which has made its appearance in Victoria for the first time.

The speaker was imported by Henry Stubbings, the hi-fi man who specializes in high quality sound equipment. If I'm not mistaken, he is the first person to introduce this speaker into western Canada.

I don't want to give the impression that the speaker is a new development. It first made its appearance in England in 1957 where it soon attracted world-wide attention. Later, at the New York Audio Fair, where it competed against American equipment, it was highly praised by critics.

Just why it has taken so long to reach this side of the Rockies, I don't know. It may be because of demand or that the English manufacturers are slow in turning them out, as they are with some other of their merchandise.

At any rate, Mr. Stubbings deserves an award of merit for taking the initiative and introducing the speaker here.

I'm not going to go into the technical details of an electrostatic loudspeaker, except to say that it is not mounted in a conventional enclosure, but behind a decorative copper screen. It looks like a curved fire screen or a handsome electric heater.

Its appearance will fit in well with modern furniture or any interior decor.

As for performance — the important thing — it simply came up to my expectations. For the first time I heard piano reproduction as it should be. The effect from a harpsichord record was clear, vivid and realistic. It seemed to me the outstanding quality of this loudspeaker is the naturalness of the sound.

To compare it with other British and American high quality speakers would be unfair as a full line of competitive equipment is not available in Victoria for comparison.

But I'll agree it ranks among the best and will impress musicians seeking natural sound.

TOPS IN POPS

BABY TALK, Jan and Dean (Dore). Jan and Dean are another vocal combo which employs electronic vocal tricks to achieve new effects. By using a lot of echo chamber the duo sounds like a group. The lyrics, once unscrambled, are cute. The arrangement is highly appealing, easy moving and up-to-date.

CARIBBEAN, Mitchell Torok (Gyden). Mitch, a composer vocalist, has a song in the good old country-and-western style. A snappy rhythm enlivened by a ragtime piano and guitar whips out a toe-tapping beat. Torok's vocal has a good dusty twang. Real hillbilly.

I STILL GET JEALOUS, Joni James (MGM). Husband Aquaviva's violin backbeat orchestration kicks off this ditty. As Joni picks up the vocal, the arrangement is whittled down to a whistling sound and the beat. The song is an oldie but it fares well with the modern arrangement.

ON AN EVENING IN ROMA, Dean Martin (Capitol). Dino is back in his element with this bright Italian ballad. He gives it a carefree swing in a sleazy and romantic mood. Backing comes from violins, a simple guitar strum and occasional phrases from an organ. It's like wine.

I'M GONNA BE A WHEEL SOME DAY, Fats Domino (Imperial). Now that Fats is back in the groove, he is off with doubleheaders. The flip side, "I Want to Walk You Home," is also a potential hit.

"Wheel" has a ukelele-drum arrangement behind Fats' gospel-tone vocal. Screeches, shouts and a gritty sax solo are included. The flip side is the usual easy rhythm-and-blues styling that Fats made so popular. Both sides are winners.

LIKE I LOVE YOU, Edd "Kookie" Myrnes (Warner Bros.). In character, "Kookie" dials his girl and gives her the bit about love and his wonderful self. The girl does not respond because he has a wrong number. A rock instrumental backs this tender scene. The flip side, "Kookie's MadPad," is another sure-fire winner.

Famous French Screen Idol Dies Penniless

TOULON, France (AP) — Henri Garat, great French screen idol of the 1930's, died Thursday after a long illness. He was 57.

Garat, who made and lost a fortune, died in the common ward of the little hospital at Hyeres.

His last years were fogged by misfortune. The career of the man who was once the screen idol of millions of women ended as a singer for a traveling vaudeville troupe. But what Charles Boyer is to the current cinema, Garat was to the film world of the early talkies.

GRUBER CONDUCTS

Walter's Return Endorses Standard of Festival

By HANS GRUBER

The Vancouver International Festival stands uniquely honored among all similar festivals in the world in that it is the only one which Bruno Walter has consented to take part, two years in a row. This fact alone makes any criticism one may read here and there of Vancouver's Festival totally insignificant. If it is good enough for Bruno Walter to associate himself with, there cannot be anything wrong with it worth mentioning.

For we must know something about Dr. Walter to understand what sort of man and artist he is dealing with. A man of highest personal dignity, integrity. An artist who for half a century has been a living legend throughout the world. A man now who would, additionally, choose with greatest care the innumerable requests for his services that reach him. If there is one conductor today who combines within himself all those attributes resulting in greatness, we were, last week, in the presence of that one conductor to whom one may point and say that he is the greatest among them all.

The first rehearsal had hardly begun—with the C major symphony of Mozart, the "Linz," not the "Jupiter," when the 84-year-old man asked the orchestra, whose average age would not exceed 40, to make it sound fresh and youthful. By the time the concert came, a new measure of freshness and youthfulness was revealed to us, by the venerable Bruno Walter.

In every priceless thing he says to an orchestra in rehearsal, in every staggeringly subtle movement of the baton, a life time of study, of devotion, of unshakable principle and conviction emerge. An indescribable atmosphere is created, without a loud word, without a movement not essential to the immediate purpose.

The orchestra, the audience know suddenly that this is the real thing, that they are in the presence of greatness.

WITH ARDOR
How many hundreds of times he has conducted the 38th or the 39th symphonies of Mozart Walter himself could probably not say. Yet with what inner ardor, with what seeming sense of fresh discovery, this master rehearses and performs the most familiar of classics.

This is, of course, primarily the measure of the greatness of a Mozart and a Brahms, that 60 or 70 years of familiarity with them and their study a Bruno Walter has not exhausted his own wonder at their creations.

With what solicitude the old man treats his orchestra, with what infinite care and infallible consistency he tries to reveal to them the true beauty of the music; with what dignity he invests their calling, how he helps them play to a standard they never dreamt they were capable of.

One feels it to be an unutterable privilege to be in the same room with Bruno Walter, to breathe the same air, for when he makes music, it is as if one were re-living with the composer himself the historic moments when he created his masterpiece.

It Comes Naturally Says Brando's Sis

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Jocelyn Brando, Marlon's sister, says her famous brother is not a professional "character."

"He's always been the way he is now," she said. "It isn't offbeat for him because his development came from his own mind and his own emotions."

"But the publicity people make him a character when he played 'Streetcar Named Desire' on Broadway because he drove a motorcycle, and he's tried hard ever since to live it down."

ON TV SET
Miss Brando, an accomplished actress of 19 years' experience, spoke on the set of the television series "M Squad." She is small, blonde, attractive and wears glasses.

"Our whole family is made up of independent thinkers," Jocelyn said. "We're not particularly conventional. We were allowed to go our own ways and develop individually."

In addition to Marlon and Jocelyn, there is another sister, Frances, a former artist who lives with her husband and three children in Mundelein, Ill.

"Marlon and I both became actors because there was nothing else we could do," said Jocelyn. "We weren't trained for anything."

"We had the usual odd jobs, but after we grew up we went straight to drama school in New York. I went there five years before he did—I'm older. When he came, I thought I'd be able to help him, but he didn't need help. And we're not the kind of family that advises each other. We're what you might say 'loosely-knit—close or closely-knit-loose.'"

When interviewed at the barn-like scenery shop, she was hard at work on scenes for the next production. She says contemporary plays are more stimulating for stage designers than the traditional ones.

'Showtime's' Goulet Heads for Broadway

TORONTO (CP)—Bob Goulet, 25-year-old singer best known for his work on the CBC Sunday evening Showtime program, is heading for a role in a Broadway musical.

Born in Lawrence, Mass., he has made his radio and television career entirely in Canada. After his father died in 1947, his mother took him to Edmonton, and there he sang in high school shows, played football and got a radio station job.

His big break came six years ago when he arrived in Toronto on a Royal Conservatory of Music scholarship. Here he has worked his way up the ladder, singing in various Toronto stage reviews before landing with the CBC.

STAGE ROLES
Last year he branched out into the dramatic field, with a role in a Crest Theatre production of Visit to a Small Planet, and a part in the Stratford Festival production of The Beggar's Opera.

The Broadway production for which he has been engaged is Jenny Kiss'd Me, written by Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe, who wrote My Fair Lady. It is directed by Moss Hart, who also directed that famed musical.

Julie Andrews, the original Eliza in My Fair Lady, is in the new show, with Britain's Richard Burton as leading man. Goulet carries the second male role of Sir Lancelot. His contract with Jenny is for four years, but has an escape clause after two. After that show, he is uncertain about his future.

"I hope it will be more Broadway shows," he says, "and more television work, perhaps movies. I have only one ambition—to be a good performer."

He's been in New York before. "I starred there for about four months, a few years ago," he said.

Newest Piano Uses Antique Mechanism

ATLANTA (UPI) — An Atlanta man has crossed a small piano with a singing guitar — and come up with a "plectronic piano."

William B. Taylor is the inventor of this unique instrument that looks like a miniature baby grand, but sounds like an electric guitar.

Taylor's plectronic piano is played just like a regular piano. The big difference is that when the key is depressed, the strings are plucked instead of hammered. A small metal device at the back of each key plucks the strings as the key is struck.

TOO HEAVY
Taylor's first model used piano strings, but the wire was too heavy, giving the instruments too much overtone. Guitar string wire is used in his present model. An electronic system is built in for volume.

The inventor cut and fashioned his own wooden keys and covered them with ivory. The instrument is housed in a delicate, highly-polished birch case.

Taylor, a commercial artist, says he got the idea for the plectronic back in 1926 when he was strumming a guitar with a Dixieland Jazz band in New Orleans. He decided to build an instrument that combined the good points of the piano and the guitar. He started work on his first plectronic a few years later.

Bionda Signs With Cougars

By DOUG FEDEEN

Hal Laycoe has a healthy start in his task of assembling a hockey team for the Western Hockey League season.

New manager-coach of Victoria Cougars, Laycoe this morning assured the community-owned Cougars of a stand-out defence when he acquired the signature of colorful Jack Bionda on a Cougar contract.

Signing of Bionda this far in advance of the opening of the 1959-60 campaign was unexpected, since Jack had indicated he was far from satisfied with terms offered in three previous contract talks with Laycoe and might be a holdout, as he was last year when he missed three games before signing with Providence of the American Hockey League.

But in a flying visit to Victoria early this morning, Bionda quickly reached agreement with Laycoe and the Cougars had their first signed player.

Bionda, who owns a home in Victoria and has said he would like to reside permanently in the city, was obviously pleased at the prospect of playing with the Cougars.

"I'm very happy to be with Victoria," he said. "I'd like to play here for several years, even if I had a chance to go back into the National Hockey League."

Property of Boston Bruins of the NHL, Bionda's contract had been assigned to Victoria when the Cougars and New Westminster Royals joined forces for the coming season, but it was not known if he would agree to terms with the Cats.

Acknowledged as Canada's greatest lacrosse player, Bionda was signed by Toronto Maple Leafs after he wound up his amateur hockey career with Sault Ste. Marie. He played 13 games with the Leafs in the 1955-56 season and finished up with 46 AHL games with Springfield, where he led the league in penalties with 190 minutes.

He played 21 games with Springfield and 35 for Boston the following year and in 1957-58 appeared in 42 games with Boston and 15 with Springfield.

Last winter the 25-year-old, 190-pounder spent the full AHL season with Providence, scoring nine goals, collecting 23 assists, and earning 105 minutes in penalties. He was called up by the Bruins as player insurance during the semifinal Stanley Cup playoff with Toronto.

Known as a hard-hitting defenceman of the "policeman" type and a crowd-pleasing performer, Bionda was chosen to the second AHL all-star team last season by the league's coaches.

Laycoe was beaming after signing Bionda. "It is recognized that Victoria has had defence troubles for the past few seasons," he said. "Now we have a good start toward solving the defence problems."

"With Jack's competitive spirit and ability," Laycoe added, "he just can't help but strengthen our club."

Currently playing his second lacrosse season with New Westminster since transferring from Victoria Shamrocks, Bionda completed the Inter-City Lacrosse League schedule with a new scoring record of 145 points.

Laycoe is not expected to announce signing of additional players until after opening training camp. Bionda gives the Cougars 20 players on their roster and at least four players have been promised by the Bruins.

Laycoe, who will attend the Bruin training camp, said he will wait until he sees how players perform in pre-season scrimmages before making any definite player plans.

Right now, he seems satisfied with only Bionda in the fold.

Hemming's Hurling Cool, But Alaska Squad Chilled

George Hemming missed his control somewhere along the line but, quite luckily for Victoria's All-Stars, Friday was certainly the best time to miss it.

Hemming, one of the leading pitchers in Victoria's Babe Ruth League, doled out nine free passes in three innings but still gained credit for a 2-4 victory over Ketchikan, Alaska, in the Northwest Regional tournament.

It's doubtful if Hemming will be able to get away with as many walks—and still win—in future games.

His win came against a saddy-outclassed club. The 3½-hour long game was finally called at midnight.

Earlier in the night, Seattle South King County, Wash., had joined New Westminster in the semifinals by outclassing Casper, Wyoming, 4-0.

Seattle's win came behind the fine four-hit pitching of Len Kero, who struck out nine and walked only one with a masterful display. Consistently coming through with a fine curve ball, he was ahead on almost every batter and he never looked back after his teammates had scored three runs in the third inning.

Jim Yutesler, toiling on the Casper mound, baffled his opponents at first with a blazing fast ball but was in trouble constantly after Seattle solved his delivery in the third. He gave up seven hits and seven walks.

Ray Crouse poled the big blow of the game in the third, a ringing triple that brought in two runs.

Seattle and New Westminster were scheduled to meet this afternoon at 3:30 in the first semi-final of the tournament. Second semi-final, featuring Victoria and the winner of the Montana-Idaho game at 1:30 this afternoon, will start at 7 p.m.

Series Berth Decided on Sunday

Winners of the semi-finals will meet Sunday at 2 p.m. to decide the team that will compete in the world series at Stockton, Calif., later this month.

Hemming pitched only three innings Friday as manager Ron Bland decided to give Dave Woodley a chance after the score reached 14-2.

In that time the stylish southpaw had yielded no hits and had struck out eight men. Four Ketchikan pitchers gave up 13 walks and hit three batters as well as yielding 13 safeties.

Top man at the plate for Victoria was Dave Rivers, who banged out a single and a double. Larry Johnston, Ken Gregory and Bob Newman each collected two singles.

Alaska	101	28-4	1	1

Victorians Score Again At Kelowna

Victoria swimmers collected another handful of prizes at annual International Regatta championships at Kelowna Friday.

Sally Holland, who captured women's 50 and 400-yard freestyle titles Thursday, beat YMCA Swimming Club mate Alice Genge in the senior women's 200-yard medley event.

Stan Cameron added another first-place finish to the Y total, winning the junior 220-yard breaststroke race. Victoria's Brian Wallace was third.

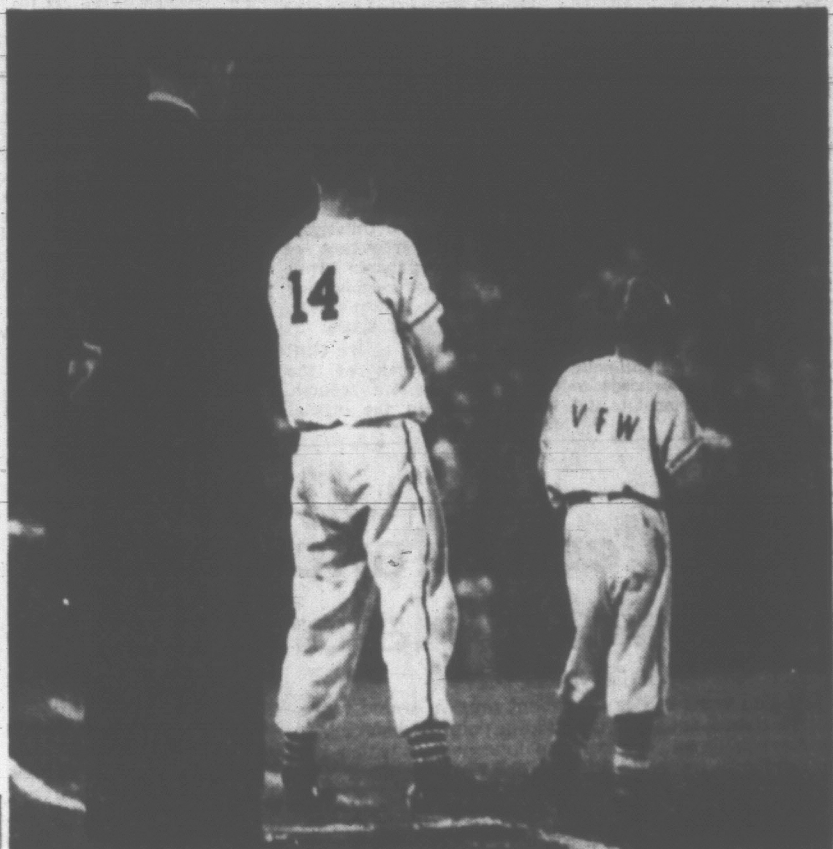

Other Victoria swimmers to place were Bruce Warburton, second in the men's 100-yard freestyle, and Helen Johanson, runner-up in the juvenile girls' 50-yard breaststroke event.

It was all-Canadian battle today in the women's singles final of the Vancouver Island tennis championships at Cowichan Lawn Tennis Club.

TROUBLE IN SMALL PACKAGE

Smallest player in Babe Ruth League tournament at Royal Athletic Park, Ketchikan second baseman Gilbert Hirabayashi was big headache to Victoria pitchers Friday night, because of daring antics on base-paths. However, Gilbert's efforts were wasted as Alaska club was never serious threat and dropped 23-4 decision to Victoria. Watching Hirabayashi as he starts to take leadoff from first base is Victoria's Bob Newman, one of tourney's tallest players. Watching both is umpire Gordie Perkins. (Times Photo.)

Pity the Poor Putter

TORONTO (CP)—"I let her get away with murder."

That was the chuckling post-mortem analysis of attractive 31-year-old Mrs. Marley Spearman of England Friday night after losing 5 and 3 to defending champion Marlene Stewart Strait in the Canadian women's open golf championship semi-final.

The other semi-final went to Mrs. Bruce McGhie, 27-year-old auburn-haired New York player whose luck, personal and golf-wise, has been anything but good the last eight years. She whipped Mrs. Mary Jane McCarter, Toronto, 6 and 4.

The results made Saturday's 36-hole final a Canada-United States show, the first since Mrs. Strait—now seeking an unprecedented sixth open victory—defeated Pat Lesser, Seattle, on the 37th hole in the 1956 final at Winnipeg.

There wasn't a tinge of animosity in Mrs. Spearman's comment. She lost the 15-hole match with some of her most atrocious putting of the week-long match-play tournament.

"I didn't have a clue when I reached for my putter," she said.

The English woman, with crisp approach and chip shots, opened the gates to hole-winning scores but she was lost on the greens.

REGINA (CP)—Saskatchewan Roughriders, tagged in pre-season as the weak sisters of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, did little Friday night to change that rating.

Riders lost 28-8 to Calgary Stampeders in a game that was the 1959 WIFU debut for each club.

The season began Thursday night with Winnipeg Blue Bombers dropping British Columbia Lions 42-20. It continues Monday night when Lions meet Edmonton Eskimos in Edmonton and Bombers go to Calgary.

The well-drilled Stamps were more than a match for Riders, who held their own only in the third quarter.

Joe Kapp, a quarterback from the University of California, kept Riders guessing with a varied offence.

Kapp threw touchdown passes to ends Jack Gotta and Ernie Warlick. Fullback Earl Lunsford plunged over from the one-yard stripe for two TDs. Doug Brown converted all four.

A spectacular 35-yard run by fullback Bobby Mulgado accounted for Saskatchewan's touchdown. Reg Whitehouse converted a quarterback George Herring kicked a third-quarter field goal.

Herring, traded from B.C., started for Riders but gave way late in the first half to Bob Brodhead, a newcomer from Cleveland Browns and Duke University.

Riders' defensive line and pass defence looked like the first half as Stamp marched 90 yards in six plays for their first TD, then scored a second when Lunsford went over after halfback Gene Filipski had taken a 17-yard pass to the one.

Besides fullback Bobby Marlow, a star import, Riders had several Canadian players on the bench with injuries. Utah halfback Jack Hill, leading scorer in the WIFU last year, also was sidelined with a bad leg.

The injury-riddled roster told in Riders' offensive drives.

Thistles Arrange Ambitious Schedule

Saanich Thistles, tentative entry in the Victoria and District Soccer League, will practice Sunday at Mount View High School, starting at 10:30 a.m.

All positions are open and players are also reminded that workouts will also be held next Tuesday and Thursday at Mount View.

Fowler Traded

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP)—Art Fowler, top hurler for Spokane last season and holding a 4-3 record with Los Angeles Dodgers this year, has returned to the Pacific Coast League club in a player-swap.

Indians' pitcher Chuck Churn goes to the Dodgers.

Alcoa Club Opposition For Duncan

PORTLAND (AP)—Alcoa of Vancouver, the Washington Little League baseball champions, eliminated the Oregon titlists, Northeast of Portland, 10, Friday from divisional Little League tourney play.

Alcoa gained the right to meet Duncan, British Columbia, the Western Canada winner, for the divisional crown today. The winner will travel to the Western regional tourney next weekend at Sacramento, Calif.

The game was a pitcher's duel between Bill Rhode of Alcoa and Steve Reiter of Northeast, who hurled one-hit ball. But the hit was a single by Alcoa's Vincent Fritz in the sixth. He then went to third on an error and scored on a wild throw by Reiter.

FAMOUS CLUB HERE SUNDAY

SILK BORN IN SAN DIEGO

MCC Captain Was 'Yank at Cambridge'

Dennis Silk is a fellow who has applied his own twist to the plot of the yarn, "A Yank at Oxford."

Silk, born in San Diego, attended Cambridge University and went on to become a schoolmaster and captain of the most famous cricket organization in the world—the Marylebone Cricket Club.

A right-handed opening batsman and one of England's best close-to-the-wicket fieldsmen, Silk plays for Somersetshire County team during summer vacations. He has toured East Africa and Argentina with the MCC and Sunday will lead the famed English side onto the Beacon Hill pitch for a match with the Victoria All-Stars.

Also among the more famous players with this edition of the MCC is Robert Barber, who took two Vancouver wickets in the final over Thursday, including one on the last ball of the match, to give the tourists a win when the tussle appeared destined to end in the third draw of the MCC's Canadian tour.

Captain of the Lancashire club, Barber was nationally known before he left school. As a schoolboy at Rutlin, he shattered just about every available record and is known as the only schoolboy in cricket history to score 1,000 runs and take 100 wickets in a single term.

Also travelling with the English team are:

Right-hand bowler Jack Bailey; vice-captain and manager John Thompson, an excellent forcing batsman and a championship squash racquets player; leg-break bowler Ian Bedford, who enjoyed great success on last winter's Argentina tour; stylish forcing batsman M. H. Bushby, a former Cambridge captain; promising batsman J. Prideaux.

Cambridge wicket-keeper Christopher Howland, Sussex medium bowler David Mordaunt, Ceylon-born all-rounder Daniel Pichaud; John Pretlove, a talented left-handed stroke player with Kent County; A. C. Smith, wicket-keeper and batsman, who skipped the Cambridge side last season and made the university's only century, and D. J. Green, another member of last year's Cambridge side.

Scheduled to take the field with the Victoria club are Bob Mainwaring (captain), Jim Richards, John Moss, Ken Ackroyd, Rob Wilson, Keith Bickmore, Peter Clarke, Jack Sparks, Paul Gadsby, Jeremy Breckon and Gil Ferriera.

Sunday's game starts at 11:15 a.m. Action will be halted for lunch from 12:45 until 1:45 and a 15-minute tea break is slated for 4:15. Stumps will be drawn at 6:30 p.m.

Prideaux and Bushby ran up 48 runs without loss of a wicket on a rain-soaked pitch at Vancouver Friday to put MCC in an excellent position to chalk up a victory in a two-day match with Western Canada All-Stars.

Rain occasionally interrupted play as the tourists dismissed the All-Stars for 111 in just over two hours of play.

Opening for MCC with an hour remaining, Bushby and Prideaux had scored 22 not out and 19 not out, respectively, before play ended for the day.

The match continued today.

Hosts Favored In Cup Matches

Experience, Depth Gives B.C. Inside Track on Willingdon Cup

VANCOUVER (CP)—The battle for the four-man interprovincial team golf championship and the Willingdon Cup started today with British Columbia the favored team and almost every player capable of setting a course record.

The edge goes to the B.C. team on basis of depth and experience. The experts say good weather should give most of those present a chance of beating the 67-stroke course competitive record.

Bob Kidd, 31; Johnny Johnston, 33; Bert Ticehurst, 29, and Ron Wiley, 23, all of Vancouver, have the variety of shots needed to play the flat fairways and treacherous greens of the 36-hole 6,432-yard par 35-36-71 Marine Drive Golf Club course.

All the British Columbians have previous Willingdon Cup experience and, as two seniors—Kidd and Johnston—were members of the 1938 Americas Cup team.

Ontario, the defending champion team, is headed by Nick Westcott, 42, of Windsor, and Bruce Castor, 33, of Toronto, with able support from young Bobby Panasuk, 17, of Windsor, and Billy Parks, 31, of Woodstock, who has a deadly iron game suited to the course.

STRONG CHALLENGE

Strong challenge is expected to come from Alberta and Manitoba.

Doug Silverberg, 26, on his sixth straight team, paces the Alberta squad. He fired a 68 in his first practice round. With Eddie Schwartz, 22, Lethbridge, Keith Alexander, 29, Calgary, and Rich Collier, 23, Edmonton, the four-man team fired a three-under-par 281 in perfect weather Thursday.

Tournament chairman Jack Ellis, veteran Vancouver amateur who shares the non-competitive mark of 63 at Marine Drive with Stan Leonard, its former pro, says the winning score will be near 576—eight over par. Players and officials agree, despite the general run of low scores in practice rounds.

Weather will play a big part in the final outcome. Even a 15-mile-an-hour wind—the forecast is for clear skies and 20-mph winds—can play havoc with shots on any part of the course.

INTEREST GROWING

Victoria in PNW Polo Loop?

Polo appears headed for a revival in Victoria after more than a decade of eclipse.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow said today he will arrange a general meeting of interested riders after the Labor Day weekend.

"We will discuss the formation of a polo club that would have several teams for local play and practice from which a team could be selected for competition against outside clubs," he said.

"I expect more than 25 persons will turn out for the organizational meeting. There are some members of each of the area's four riding clubs who are interested now."

Ald. Edgelow is a well-known local horseman who played polo on Victoria teams in inter-city competition before the Second World War.

He said he already had purchased "enough sticks, balls and equipment to get started."

Ald. Edgelow said the growing interest in a polo revival here has been promoted by formation of teams in Vancouver, Yakima, Spokane, Portland and several smaller centres just south of the border.

Sox Now Add Sock To Pennant Talk

By UP International

Cautious Bill Veck says, "Please, no pennant talk," but what else is there to talk about in the face of the White Sox' fantastic 774 pace since the first all-star game?

Veck is afraid that any talk about World Series tickets might jinx the White Sox. The way they have been winning since mid-July however, it's going to take a lot more than talk to stop 'em.

Al Lopez' crew has won 24 of its last 31 games in a break-neck dash toward the club's first pennant since 1919. Of added significance is the fact the White Sox have broken out in a rare display of power lately.

No one is calling them "hit-less wonders" any more. Instead, they're becoming more and more thought of as the new American League champions.

Sherm Lollar set the pace when he rocketed a pair of two-run homers in a 5-1 victory over the Athletics Friday night that increased Chicago's league lead to 3½ games. Lollar's 16th homer in the seventh inning broke a scoreless pitching duel between Bob Shaw and Johnny Kucks and his 17th homer in the eighth highlighted a three-run rally. Shaw gave up only five hits in bringing his record to 12-3.

Detroit crushed Cleveland, 11-1; Boston beat New York, 11-6, and Washington defeated Baltimore, 7-3, in other A.L. games.

All three National League contenders lost, Chicago licked league-leading San Francisco, 7-5; St. Louis beat second-place Los Angeles, 2-1 in 11 innings, and Pittsburgh defeated third-place Milwaukee, 2-1. Cincinnati swept a twin-night doubleheader from Philadelphia, 15-13 and 5-4.

Frank Lary of the Tigers notched his 15th victory with a seven-hitter over the Indians. Tito Francona's 13th homer in the ninth inning spoiled Lary's shutout, but Harvey Kuenn gave the Detroit right-hander all the runs he needed with a two-run homer off Cal McLish in the first inning. Eddie Yost went five-for-five to pace Detroit's 14-hit offensive.

GRANDSLAM SMASH

The Red Sox won their game from the Yankees with a nine-run rally in the eighth inning. Pinch-hitter Vic Wertz' grand-slam homer off L-ser Ryne Dur-en tied the score at 6-6 and Gary Geiger's homer in the same frame broke the dead-lock as the Red Sox sent 14 men to the plate.

Ernie Banks, Walt Moryn and Dale Long each belted two-run homers against the Giants as the Cubs scored their fourth straight victory. Banks' homer was his 35th of the campaign and brought his runs-batted-in total to 110 in 113 games. Willey McCovey homered for the Giants. Glen Hobbie, who struck out 19 before departing for a pinch-hitter in the seventh, gained his 12th victory. Sam Jones suffered his 11th loss.

6-4, 8-10, 6-4 Friday to give his country a surprise opening-day split with Australia in the Davis Cup tennis inter-zone finals.

After Krishnan's stunner at the Longwood Cricket Club, Neale Fraser, Australia's No. 1 star, levelled the score with a 10-8, 6-4, 6-1 triumph over Premjit Lall, 18-year-old rookie from Calcutta.

Lall, playing in his first important international match, was called from a London hotel to replace veteran Naresh Kumar, summoned home because of his father's illness.

For the better part of an hour Lall swapped booming services with the left-handed Fraser in a battle of cannon-ball deliveries. Finally, his resistance weakened and experience won out.

But Krishnan's victory has shaken the pre-match confidence of the Australians and has put real importance on today's doubles match. Australia will send its Wimbledon champions, Fraser and Roy Emerson, against Krishnan and Lall.

Golfers Notch Holes-in-One At Rapid Rate

Victoria golf courses are producing a flock of holes-in-one.

Among golfers scoring each this week was Bill Allen, Lethbridge, who holed out the Gorge Vale 14th in one on Wednesday as he toured the course for the first time.

Playing with Andrew Blake and Jim McGregor, Allen used a seven iron for his ace.

The previous day, Ken McCorkall, playing with Charlie Rogerson, used a four wood to hole his tee shot at the sixth at Cedar Hill.

Ernest Snowden scored an ace on the same hole last weekend, using a seven iron. He was playing with Jimmy Stewart and D. Beardin.

Bill Florence and Ed Thompson, Astoria, Ore., also scored aces recently at city clubs.

In other golf news, Dick Munn set a Cedar Hill course record last weekend when he holed the par-63 layout in 59 strokes.

No Treat for Stars, But Lesson Was Great

CHICAGO (CP)—Baltimore Colts, one of the strongest teams in National Football League history, gave the College All-Stars a painful lesson on the gridiron Friday night.

It took only 30 minutes to do it. Led by the great Johnny Unitas at quarterback, the 1958 NFL champions grabbed a 29-0 halftime lead over the out-classed collegians. That's the way the match ended in Soldier Field before 70,000 fans.

Unitas, once rejected as inadequate by Pittsburgh Steelers but a spectacular player in former for the Colts, threw

Perfect Plate Performance By Vater Sparks Morrisons

Roy Vater and Glen Bullen are proving a mighty potent combination for Morrisons in the double-knock-out playoff series in section one of the Senior Open Softball League.

Bullen blanked Mayo Lumber on two hits through the first eight innings at Central Park Friday night and Vater treated himself to a perfect night at the plate as Morrisons trimmed the Duncan club, 11-5.

Vater walloped two triples and a pair of singles in four trips to the plate to lead a 13-hit Morrison attack.

NEEDED HELP

Bullen, starting the final inning with an 11-0 lead, ran into trouble and needed relief help from Rod Turner after retiring one batter.

Second round of the section one series continues Sunday with D & D Tire meeting Navy at 2 p.m. and Morrisons tackling Farmers at 6:15. Presentation of league awards will be made during the Sunday evening game.

In section two playoffs at Heywood Avenue, Maycock Optical made it three in a row over MacNuts in their best-of-seven semi-final series by beating the Grocers, 11-7.

Tudor House and Six Mile House continue the section two playoffs Sunday at 6:15.

Air Contracts Provide Jobs For Thousands

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada and Orenda, the two companies that put the RCAF's Sabre jet fighter in the air, Friday won the federal government contracts to replace it.

A $91,500,000 order for construction of airframes for 200 of the supersonic Lockheed F-104G Starfighter jets went to Canadair Ltd., Montreal.

The new plane's J-79 General Electric engine will be turned out by Orenda Engines Ltd. of Malton, Ont., working on a $80,000,000 contract.

The Starfighter—the RCAF will call it the CF-111—will be used to replace Sabres in eight squadrons of the RCAF air division in Europe. The one other overseas squadron and the nine RCAF squadrons in Canada use CF-100 jet interceptors.

Friday's Starfighter orders total less than half the $420,000,000 cost of the re-equipping program, scheduled for completion in four years. Still to be awarded are contracts for training planes, the armament control system, spare engines and parts, and ground-handling equipment.

Defence Production Minister O'Hurley said in making the announcement—that Canadian firms also will get 30 per cent of Lockheed's airframe business in construction of 66 Starfighters for the West German Air Force.

Canadair will sub-contract about 33 per cent of its airframe work to Canadian companies and Orenda about 45 per cent of the engine work, Mr. O'Hurley said.

Canadair would employ 3,500 workers at the peak of the contract and Orenda about 3,000.

TORONTO (CP)—The government award Friday of a $91,500,000 contract for airframes for 200 F-104G Starfighters to Canadair Ltd. was described by a union official here as a devastating blow to jobless aircraft workers in this area.

Harry Graham, president of district lodge 717 of the International Association of Machinists (I.A.M.), said the union had felt that with the great number of former Avro Aircraft employees still jobless at least part of the contract would have been given to Avro.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Tension Beaters Discover Mr. Castro No. 1 Prospect

By HAL MALONE
Times Business Editor

Pull up your hypertension and sit down. This is two-for-one day.

The two are an insight into Fearless Fidel Castro and the world's most successful cyclo-massage operation, courtesy Bert LaFreniere.

Mr. LaFreniere has just returned from Castro-land. He and 999 other cyclo-massage operators attended the 10th annual convention of their company.

Naturally the delegates ran into Fidel. He made it a point to attend one of their sessions as official greeter.

Castro doesn't get a chance to do much greeting these days. Tourists, especially 1,000 at a time, are relatively scarce since he took command. Castro himself doesn't scare them off. But too many of his companions have a disturbing habit of strolling through Havana with machetes and sidearms in open view, a habit which tends to make vacationers more restless than restful.

Convention business kept Mr. LaFreniere's nose to the cyclo-massage business generally. But in his few excursions about Havana and the countryside he got the impression that business in Cuba is highly anemic.

Not one businessman LaFreniere spoke to would say outright that things have gone from worse to ugly since Castro arrived. But LaFreniere feels sure Cuban merchants' speech defects are the result of Castro's allergy to people who speak against his administration.

CITY WAS 'OPEN'
Just how much Havana businessmen fear Castro is revealed in a story LaFreniere tells.

"When we arrived in Havana July 29, the city was full of farmers called in by Castro for some celebration."

"Dressed roughly they paraded through the city as if they owned it. Fidel told them Havana was theirs and they took him at his word. Even at the posh Habana Hilton Hotel they would swagger up and ask for a room and the clerk didn't dare refuse them no matter how ragged, rough or unkempt they looked."

"It was the same way all over. They came into the Tropicana, Havana's most exclusive night club, and got first-class treatment. The operators had no choice. Fidel had told the people the city was open to them. And they lived it up."

The cyclo-massage story lacks the revolutionary fireworks of the Castro drama, but it does smack of Horatio Alger. It began 10 years ago when a $30,000 per year machinery salesman, Owen K. Murphy, came across a man who had invented a massaging device, a cushion with a built-in "cyclo-massage" motor.

The inventor had been unable to sell the idea to hospitals. But Murphy, a former pharmacist's mate in the navy, saw a great future for the idea if it was sold on the street, so to speak.

FANTASTIC JUMP

He bought the patent rights, set up shop in a chicken coop. While his wife handled production, Murphy peddled the device.

In the first year, Murphy grossed $10,000.

Last year Murphy's products, selling from $49 to $458, had gross sales of $35,000,000.

Murphy's aim: "To get a unit in every home." He foresees his equipment becoming as common a part of the house as a television set or a refrigerator.

The Cyclo-Massage appliances come in chairs, chesters, lounges, car and airplane-type cushions.

The principle: To relieve stress by reducing tension.

The company wisely makes no claim of cure. It stresses the word "relieve." Murphy has a team of expert medical men engaged in research, leans over backward to minimize the advantages of his equipment in relieving tension, arthritis, bursitis and muscle spasms. So far it has confined its sales to Canada and the U.S.

But who knows. Maybe someday it will try Cuba.

Offhand one likely prospect comes to mind. From all reports, including LaFreniere's, Fidel Castro has more tension than he knows what to do with.

New public relations director for Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd., is Lyall Dagg. A former Vancouver newspaperman who joined CZ in 1955, Dagg succeeds Don Carlson who has been appointed public relations chief for Ford Motor Co. of Canada.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska—From the permafrost to the pineapples. That will be our routing during the coming weeks as we travel the new states of Alaska and Hawaii. Much will be the cry, and also "Sweet Lullaby!" I suspect we are in for chills and fever, in that order.

Although both Alaska and Hawaii have long been popular with tourists, never before have the new stars had so many star boarders. As far back as last spring word came down from the northlands: no room in the igloo. (Similar messages have been wafting in from lotus land. All the little grass shacks in Honolulu, Hawaii, are said to be bursting at the seams.)

Speedy Jets Soon

To survey it first hand, we have decided to strike northward first, looking at hotels, trains, planes, trips and travelers. We floated up from the Northwest, like no Sourdough ever made it, aboard Pan American's double-decker Stratocruiser. It is the same airplane that Pan Am used years back across the Atlantic. With its lower-deck lounge and its fat-cat seats, the Stratocruiser has long had my personal nod as the world's most comfortable aircraft. Alas, its days even here in the northland frontier, are numbered, for soon Pan Am will bring in DC-7Cs, released from other runs, and eventually it will install high-speed jets.

Our airplane came up from Seattle across the Yukon, over the mountains of the massive Alaska range and settled, after five and a half hours, in the gold strike city of Fairbanks. There was plenty of room on board, and there is no doubt the seats would have been full if more hotels had been available. For despite the fact that it is the second largest city in the 49th state, Fairbanks is still a frontier town. Log cabins are sandwiched in between its modern houses in the middle of the city. Fluttering birches shimmer over wooden sidewalks within a three-minute walk from main street. Tenants in the sky-ticking apartment houses can watch beavers building dams in the river below. And the luncheonette on the corner of First and Turner advertises soup, magazines and tattooing in the rear.

Still Dredge Gold

Gold was discovered in Fairbanks in 1906 and six dredges are still at work. But here in the self-advertised Golden Heart of the Golden North, frontier prices prevail to this day. There is a supermarket to be sure, but in its bins heads of lettuce cost anywhere from 47 to 79 cents a head, lemons are three for 21 cents, and local milk is 47 cents a quart. Only a character with two heads will wait until he arrives here to get a haircut. The local barbers charge as if you had two, for a trim comes to $2.55 hereabouts and a shoe-shine is an incredible 75 cents. Like the woolly West the means of exchange is silver dollars, only here they spend them as if they were Texas dimes.

Already Big City

If Fairbanks is still frontier, Anchorage is already big city. Alaska Airlines, which sends travelers hither and yon all over the big state, shuttles its DC-6Cs on its Golden Nugget service back and forth between Fairbanks and Anchorage several times daily. The trip takes a scant hour, but the difference between the cities is enormous. Anchorage was never a gold rush town. It grew up as a railroad, now counts 100,000 citizens in the greater city, has already become an airhead for polar flights from the U.S. to Europe, and flights between Europe and the Far East. In its living rooms the radios pick up Moscow Mollie, broadcasting Soviet propaganda. Tokyo-Rose-style, but if the Russians ever relax Anchorage will be a railroad for flights across Siberia via a new short route to Europe.

Unlike Fairbanks, Anchorage lives on no permanent cake of ice just under the sod. Although its kids go to school in the dark, come home in the dark, and attend classes in shifts, it is a different story in summer. There are long warm days now with the population streaming out to Lake Spennard for a sunbath and a swim. It is a far cry from sled dogs and ice fishing.

A FORESTER'S TRAVELS

By FRAN ROBINSON

OSTERSUND, Sweden—At last I am a forest owner. Although I can't claim a single tree, being an honorary forest owner in Ostersund is a step in the right direction.

Last week we started on a forestry tour of Sweden; four Yugoslavians, Funkl, Sucevic, Zunko and Soc, myself, and our overworked interpreter, Junus. This odd combination came about because we all wanted to study much the same thing at the same time.

There was a little confusion in languages until we straightened ourselves out. No one but Junus could speak Swedish. The Yugoslavians spoke Serbo-Croatian and German. Soc and I spoke academic French, which Funkl could understand, too, but not speak. Zunko, however, knew some English. Junus and I could speak either Finnish or English. Soc was a bit crushed because he could speak Italian fluently but no one else could.

Double Duty

When our Swedish host spoke better German than English, Junus translated for me into either Finnish or English; and when the jagmastare could speak better English, Junus translated into Serbo-Croatian; and he did double duty when only Swedish was available.

But as long as our hands were free, we communicated with lots of "Ja, vo!", "yo, yo.", "oui, oui, je vous comprend.", "da-da-da," and the international "ya-hah." Our favorite expression became "You must be from Slovenia (a state in Yugoslavia). I don't understand you."

We were all trying to find out how private forest-owner co-operatives worked in Sweden. In a country where 50 per cent of the forest land is in small private ownership, co-operation is essential in management and marketing. And what of the Yugoslavians? Strangely enough, Yugoslavia, a communistic state, had some 30 per cent of her forests in private ownership, and encouraged private co-operation.

As far as I could understand, communism in Yugoslavia is quite different from that in U.S.S.R. People seem to enjoy much the same freedom as do Canadians, but their standard of living is lower.

Can't Escape It

We spent some time around Vasteras on Mallaren Lake. This lake is unique, it spreads to every part of Sweden. You can't escape it. Ask your host politely what the name of any body of water is in Sweden, and invariably it will be Mallaren Lake.

It pursued us to the end.

One of the high points on the tour came when we visited a model farm at Viby, Kolbach, with agriculture and forestry combined in a beautifully-managed unit. The supreme moment came later at the farm-house, where, among other delicacies, we ate a tremendous chocolate torte, piled high with whipped cream.

When comparing Swedish and British Columbian forests, some differences are obvious; but I can state without reservations that the Swedish mosquito is just as big and fierce as our B.C. variety.

Amazing Project

On the morning that we started for Sikas Moors, we were enthusiastic about seeing one of the largest reclamation projects in Sweden. The land was being drained by an extensive system of ditches to a point that would allow forests to grow normally there. As we trudged along the railway tracks for miles (Swedish miles) in the hot sun, we were a little less enthused; and when we finally headed across the swamp to see the ditches, our enthusiasm was definitely dimmed by the clouds of hungry mosquitoes.

Just the same, it is remarkable that the project was economically possible; and in years to come we may be doing the same thing in B.C., and taking our visitors out to see it, too.

Perhaps the training program in forestry is responsible in part for the advanced Swedish forest management. Courses are given at a variety of training schools, county board schools, technical forestry schools, and at the top, the Royal Swedish College of Forestry, from which are graduated the famous "jagmastares."

More Funds Urged To Aid Alcoholics

Foundation Director Wants Share Of Government's Liquor Profits

VANCOUVER (CP)—The chief of the British Columbia Alcoholism Research Foundation told a hearing Friday into B.C. mental health services the provincial government should earmark part of its liquor profits for the Foundation's work in treating alcoholics.

APPOINTMENT of Lt. Col. Malcolm C. Sutherland-Brown, DSO, CD, of Victoria, as military attaché to Israel with the rank of colonel was announced today by the Canadian Army in Ottawa. A son of the late Brig. Gen. James Sutherland-Brown of Victoria, he has been assistant quarter-master general with the Royal Canadian Engineers at eastern command headquarters, Halifax, for the past three years. ## Resurfacers Approved For Arena

An ice-resurfacing machine costing $10,000 will be purchased by Memorial Arena commission subject to approval of manager Joe Dukowski and city engineer James Garnett, city council decided Friday night.

The commission requested permission to make the purchase because it would cut labor costs and increase the number of hours available for skating.

Council was told that the necessity for young boys to turn out for hockey practices at 5 and 6 a.m. would be eased if the machine was obtained.

Approval of the aldermen appeared certain except for Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow who opposed the purchase on the grounds that arena manager Dukowski and the city engineer were on vacation when the arena commission discussed the machine.

Mayor Percy Scourrah effected a compromise with his suggestion that approval be given the purchase subject to a final okay by Mr. Dukowski and Mr. Garnett.

TRAFFIC FINES

In city police court Friday: Ralph A. Brown, 420 Hillside, careless driving and failing to remain at scene of an accident, $40 and $50.

Ferdinand Sirec, 1060 Southgate, over 30 mph and improper passing, $20 and $25.

Norman E. Dawson, 2814 Heath, careless driving and violation of a learner's licence, $40 and $25.

Edwin F. Fleck, Royal Oak, careless driving, $25.

Foundation director E. D. McRae told Dr. Matthew Ross, here on a province-wide investigation, the federation would be greatly helped by a small part of the liquor control board's $30,000,000 profit. He said the foundation had to fire three of its staff members last year when the provincial government refused its request for an $11,000 grant increase. He said expanded facilities are needed urgently to meet an "alarming increase" in alcoholism in B.C.

In addition to the requested $11,000 grant increase, the foundation needs $24,700 for an extra assistant, a clinic for women patients and a travelling clinic, he said.

The organization's brief said there were 14,000 arrests for drunkenness in Vancouver alone last year and there is need for more effective approach to the problems of chronic drunkenness offenders. It urged a municipal provincial study of the problem.

The brief said provincial mental health services should treat prevention of alcoholism as part of their responsibility. The number of alcoholics in B.C. has doubled in 10 years, it said.

Ten briefs were presented during the hearing. All called for better training, more pay and reduced work load for workers in social service and mental health agencies, better facilities for hospital and out-patient treatment, especially for aged mental cases.

Dr. L. E. Ranta, assistant director of Vancouver General Hospital said there is need for definition of responsibilities of general hospitals in the psychiatric field.

He said doctors who have difficulty getting beds for gravely ill patients are frustrated when they see patients in the psychiatric ward who "spend most of the afternoon playing table tennis," however valuable such activity might be.

He said psychiatric cases may be as serious as those needing surgery "but you can't escape the emotional feeling."

Dr. Ross whose investigation will take him to centres throughout B.C. for the rest of the month, said he is convinced the province's mentally ill "need people before buildings." He said communities often over-stress buildings as the answer to the problem.

47 CHARGED IN QUEBEC VOTE BATTLE

MONTREAL (CP)—Forty-seven persons were named Friday in a total of 55 warrants charging offences ranging from assault, and pointing an offensive weapon to electoral law violations on election day July 10 at suburban Riviere des Prairies.

The warrants were signed by Sessions Judge Gerald Almond following an investigation by provincial police.

Of the 47 men charged, 36 were charged with interfering with electors and nine with impersonating police.

The incident-marred election at first resulted in former mayor Omer Gauthier being elected. After a judicial recount this decision was reversed in favor of new mayor Jacques Foster.

North Roads Inspected By Pearkes

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Pearkes will leave Aug. 17 for a visit to the northwest highway system, it was announced Friday.

His itinerary will cover the Alaska Highway and include stopovers in Dawson Creek, Fort Nelson and Whitehorse to inspect accommodation used by army personnel maintaining the highway system.

Mr. Pearkes will also visit the RCAF weapons training and missile firing establishment at Cold Lake, Alta.

He will make an overnight stop at Edmonton Saturday, Aug. 22, arriving late that evening and leaving the following morning for Ottawa.

with a rubber strap two feet long and two inches wide.

Mrs. Whitelock said she found her son crying hysterically in a school corridor after the strapping. "He was quite incoherent," she said.

Dr. Jack Peck, first witness in the case, testified that injuries received by the boy were not serious. He said he did not expect any permanent damage would result.

Photographs showing the boy's bottom after the strapping were entered as evidence.

Derek Hackman, 14, testified that he played hockey with Anthony on the day before the incident. He said he heard Anthony say in the principal's office before receiving the thrashing: "Please sir, I will never do it again."

Mass Polio Fear Faces Montreal

By The Canadian Press

Montreal's polio epidemic has been mild but doctors have another problem that could be more serious—mass fear.

The city's health authorities are faced with the predicament of warning people about the seriousness of polio without provoking panic.

Dr. Adelard Groulx, city health director, said Friday an unreasonable fear can easily be built up.

"We have the facilities, doctors and hospitals to handle the disease but no facilities to fight the unreasoning spectre of fear that rises in the human mind when polio strikes," he said.

Do a little comparative window shopping before you go abroad. If you plan to buy a camera in Germany or Japan, or glass in Belgium or Czechoslovakia, find out the cost in Canada, then shop around abroad until you are sure you have found a bargain.

"The present situation was no cause for alarm," he said. "We ask the public to avoid panic and stay calm."

Friday 45 more polio patients were admitted to Montreal hospitals. Five persons died. There have been 251 cases and 18 deaths so far.

Doctors said there are indications that the epidemic is levelling off.

"The next few days and the following weeks will guide us more accurately," Dr. Groulx said.

Dr. Gustave Charest, city epidemiologist, said Friday only one out of every 100 cases of polio is recognized.

"Mild, undetected cases give a person immunity against further polio infection and as a result the greater proportion of adults are protected without knowing it, although they may themselves be carriers of the virus and unwillingly be spreading it around them," he said.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Rewards for Amateurs In Garden Show Biz

BY JACK BEASTALL

If there ever was a grand and glorious feeling it comes when you gather the blue ribbons for your first attempt at competition in a fall show. And it is a feeling that all gardeners may experience.

The most difficult part of showing garden produce is getting up enough courage to put in the first exhibit.

You are beset by doubts, and a little scared of ridicule. You are not quite sure how to begin, but you know that your carrots were better than any which—received first prize at the fall shows last year.

From experience, Jack ence, let me assure you that the majority of beginners will capture at least two firsts on five entries and seconds or thirds on the others. It happens every year at the local shows, and two out of five is 40 per cent against a veterans 10 out of 40 which is only 25 per cent.

Your first requirement is a schedule, or catalog, for the show you would like to enter. This is obtained from the secretary or show chairman of the organization sponsoring the affair.

Study Standards

Although you may enter all the shows you care to tackle, you will probably settle for the one in the district where you will have the company of friends and neighbors.

While you are waiting for the schedule to arrive, call in, or write, to the Department of Agriculture in the Parliament Buildings at Victoria, or the Dominion Experimental Farm at Saanichton, for a copy of circular No. 50.

The title of this little booklet, "Exhibition Standards of Perfection for Fruit, Vegetables, Field Crops, Dairy Products, Eggs and Honey," is sufficient to describe its contents. These are the standards on which judging is based throughout British Columbia.

When the show schedule arrives, read the rules carefully and then mark the classes you would like to enter.

Since show schedules must be limited in size, every word has a definite value and meaning. Most errors are made through scanning in a hurry and missing a word, or adding a word which is not printed and was never intended.

Read over the rules and the specifications for the classes twice a week until you are fully familiar with the wording and understand clearly what is meant. Don't apply a meaning which suits your particular conditions or circumstances.

Beginners are inclined to believe that calling for more than one of each item, uniform in color and size, is done to make things difficult.

Uniformity Wins

This is not the case. The show is staged so that the gardener who produces a uniform crop by attention and care will receive recognition and be rewarded for his efforts and ability.

Any of us can go into the garden and find one good cabbage, carrot, or bean, or a couple of potatoes nearly like in size and shape without too many worm holes. But to produce a uniform crop so that six or twelve specimens of the same size, quality, color, and texture can be selected indicates ability which deserves reward.

How the crops are handled between now and show time will decide whether they reach show standards, and here are a few hints which may help beginners.

Keep enough soil over potato tubers to prevent them becoming green, but do not bury too deeply and stop development. Be sure that the tops of carrot roots are covered with soil so that no green cap develops.

Keep Picking

Draw the soil away from the bulbs of onions so that the entire bulb is exposed and the skin evenly ripened.

Pick beans and peas every second day or so whether you need them or not. This will keep the vines in production and good young pods will be available at show time. Water regularly. Apply fertilizer now, if needed, using one high in phosphoric acid such as 5-10-5, 6-6-4, 12-24.

Marrows, squash, pumpkins, cucumbers and melons always have a white mark or a discoloration if one side is growing against the soil, and it is something which does not please the judge. To obtain even coloring, the fruits are gently turned every few days so that all the surface becomes the same shade of green, cream or gold.

Keep the crops growing steadily by feeding, watering, and controlling pests. For classes requiring matured produce, save the older specimens and use the younger ones which will not have time to mature.

No Prize for Size

On the other hand, for classes requiring specimens at their prime, use the older ones in the kitchen and keep the younger ones coming along so that a good number will be ready to choose from at show time.

Remember that judges are only impressed by exceptionally large specimens when the class calls for the largest, longest, or heaviest vegetable. Abnormal growth is not considered a sign of good gardening.

In potatoes and onions, for example, each variety has a definite average size, some being large while others are considerably smaller. The exhibit which most nearly approximates the average size for the variety being shown will receive the most points although it may contain the smallest specimens in the class.

Certain vegetables are cut by the judge to determine quality and texture, and the beginner will do well to study these as they are being prepared for the table so as to become familiar with the outside appearance which indicates first prize specimens.

Revealing Cuts

When cut crossways, beets should show almost even coloring. Pinkish to white rings alternated with dark red rings indicate slow growth and woody tissue.

The stem end of potatoes are cut to reveal any disease which may be present. Carrots are cut to see that the flesh is deep and the core small.

Tomatoes cut crossways should reveal even red coloring, thick flesh and small cells and not too many seeds. Cucumbers are judged on the same basis.

Pea pods are opened to reveal missing or poorly formed seed, and for testing the quality and flavor. Dwarf beans (pencil-pods, green, and wax) are snapped for quality. Pole beans must not show lumps where the seed are located.

Vine crops (marrows, squash), are out of the judging unless there is two inches of dried stem attached to each. The flesh is tested with a cheese sampler.

Few gardeners realize that a judge uses sight, feel, and smell to determine the quality of the exhibits. The smell of or bitterness, and the feel of a bean or a rhubarb stalk as it snaps will tell a whole story of the conditions under which it was grown.

Next Saturday, the wording of show schedules and pitfalls to watch, and hints on showing and show procedures.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL
Plant the hardy small bulbs such as galanthus (snow-drop), eranthus (winter aconite), fall flowering crocus, and the large bulbs of colchicums. Repot old corms of Persian cyclamen to flower indoors at Christmas.

If poinsettia growths are getting too tall, pinch back now. Give ample water and sunshine.

Lavender plants should be sheared to keep them low-growing and compact. If the plants are year-old cuttings, use scissors to cut back each tip which flowered.

Mark locations for shrubs and trees to be planted next month. Preparations made now will eliminate delay later.

Steady supply of moisture in soil is essential to development of tomatoes. Pick fruit as soon as red ripe, to allow others to ripen.

Grapes growing in greenhouse will need free ventilation and plentiful supply of water.

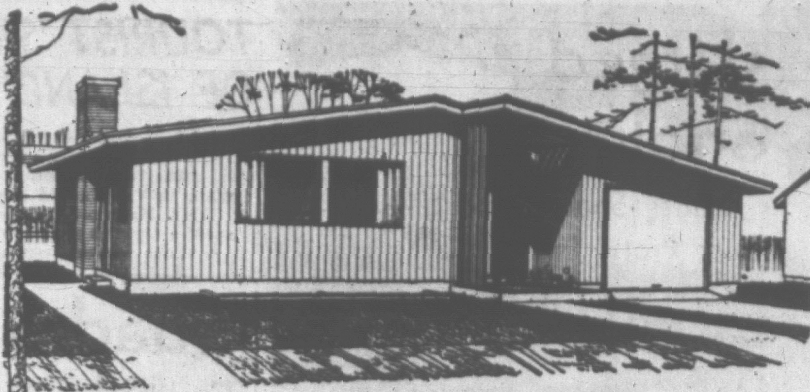

Don't neglect the late sowings of vegetables. Thin the lettuce so that each plant stands alone; also thin late sown carrots and beets to gain maximum results.

Shrubs flowering from end of July into fall are not pruned when blooming ceases. Cut off only the faded flowers, with such shrubs as buddleia, Spiraea-Anthoni Waterer (pink), canothus, romneya (canyon-poppy), Spartium junceum (Spanish broom), Veronica "Autumn Glory" and abelia.

Begonia Plants Like Nitrogen

Tuberous rooted begonias can be encouraged to grow with fertilizer.

While complete plant foods are good, a more heavy stimulant may be used if desired. Ammonium sulphate or ammonium phosphate carry about 2 per cent nitrogen and cause plants to thrive. A good solution has one teaspoon of either of these to a gallon of water.

Novel Layout Feature Of 3-Bedroom Bungalow

Designed by M. G. Dixon, of Ottawa, this large three-bedroom bungalow is particularly suitable for an interior lot. A striking feature of the plan is the spacious centrally-located living room which overlooks a secluded terrace.

Of generous proportions, the master bedroom has the convenience of a private washroom. Ceilings in the house, with the exception of the bedroom wing, follow the slope of the roof. There is space in the basement for a future playroom. The fireplace wall should face north to obtain the best orientation of the house.

Total floor area is 1,332 square feet and the exterior dimensions are 42 feet by 31 feet. Working drawings for this house, known as Design 277, may be obtained from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at minimum cost.

Plywood Kitchen Cabinet Boon to Busy Housewife

Every minute you can save from the rote jobs around the house becomes a glorious minute to spend reading the newest novel, or chatting with a friend, or putting extra touches on that cocktail outfit that's going to wow the boys at the office, or making a call-back for the Red Cross.

So it behooves us all to save as many minutes as possible—yes?

So let's start with the busiest corner of the house, where the kitchen sink is. Take a look at yours. Now look underneath. If it's near average, it contains a small rusty garbage container overfilled by a supermarket bag, several empty milk bottles, unopened cleaning compounds for various metals, an aerosol insect bomb that never did work, and an unexplained bottle of water glass.

And every time you rummage through the welter, you waste precious time. Time to dream, time to do, time to live.

Now take a searching look at the picture above. Note the towel racks. They appear and disappear at a touch. The garbage container automatically opens its pert little lid when you open the door to its compartment. The edged shelf is ample for all the cleaning aids you really need—throw the rest of it out.

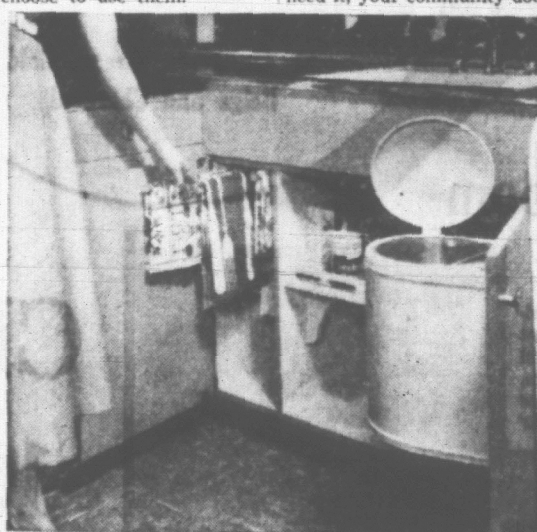

And there's still room for anything the designers hadn't counted on because they just didn't know your family habits—the good ones, that is.

A picture, we're told, is worth a multitude of words. In this case, it's worth more. It's worth the saved and hoarded hours that good planning can offer.

It's your job to run a capable household, just as it is that of a ship's captain to run a tidy ship, a businessman to run an efficient office. There are other areas of improvement open to you, if you choose to use them.

And as for the time you'll save—if your family doesn't need it, your community does!

Grease Big Menace Of House Drains

Waste matter that tends to clog drains, especially material that will not dissolve in water, should never be disposed of through the drainage system of a house.

Accumulations of grease, for example, will slow down and sometimes block the passage of waste water.

Plugged or sluggish drains can often be freed simply by using a plunger or force cup. In some cases, however, it may be necessary to employ other methods such as chemical or mechanical devices.

Lye, the chemical general used to clean out grease sediment and other obstructions in clogged drains, should be used only when proper precautions are taken.

If a lye solution comes into contact with the body, especially the eyes, serious injury can result. Since the chemical is a caustic substance, clothes should also be protected against splashing.

However, when instructions

Your local lumber dealer carries a number of fir plywood home storage plans. They are yours without charge. Look them over—there is sure to be one to solve the time-study problem in your life.

And as for the time you'll save—if your family doesn't need it, your community does!

Vinyl Tape Assures Safety

The home repair man who wants to avoid seeing his work go up in smoke will pay special attention to the quality of electrical tape he uses.

Four major causes of electrical insulation failure are moisture, surface contamination, electrical leakage and excessive heat.

A new vinyl electrical tape combats these subtle enemies as well as performing a slew of other chores.

The new tape prevents corrosion when applied to pipe or other metal surfaces, and gives protection to tool handles as well. The durable vinyl tape may be used for harness wrapping of wire and cable groups.

To top off its rugged nature, it's flame-proof and has high resistance to humidity.

Firming Shaky Chair Legs

Re-gluing and tightening wobbly legs on dining room chairs is something any do-it-yourselfer can do.

Remove the rungs and scrape off as much of the dried out glue as you can, using either a sturdy, sharp knife or sandpaper; then scrape out as much glue in the legs where the rungs fit.

Spread some glue or cement on the inside surfaces of the rung hole and over the end of the rung which fits the hole.

In order to compensate for shrinkage of the wood, hold a small piece of thin fabric over the hole in the leg and push it in with the rung.

Trim off any excess fabric with a razor blade. When the rungs have been replaced, brace the chair legs firmly with strong cord, so everything will be held in position until the new glue dries.

TOURIST SINGS PRAISE OF ISLAND'S RANGERS

W. M. Hawkins of Los Angeles has words of praise for Vancouver Island's forest rangers. "They are co-operative, courteous and hospitable," he wrote to Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau. Mr. Hawkins said he toured Vancouver Island and spent a night at the camp at Elk Falls. "Your rangers were most helpful," he wrote.

Quadra Is. Ferry Tenders Aug. 25

CAMPBELL RIVER—Tenders were called Tuesday for a Quadra Island-Campbell River ferry and will be returnable Aug. 25. Comox M.L.A. Dan Campbell said this week.

He spoke in reply to Don Huntley, president of Quadra Island Ratepayers' Association, who said a week ago that Highway Minister P. A. Gagliardi told him tenders for the proposed car ferry might not be called for a month.

Building of the ferry will be co-ordinated with progress on Tyee Plaza, a reclamation and waterfront development scheme to incorporate stores, a hotel, parking space, marina and a ferry landing.

The scheme was launched by W. S. Mullett of Campbell River, then was taken over by Marvell Construction Co. of Vancouver, which now is nearing completion of a breakwater, first part of the project.

One of the main factors to tip the scales in favor of the highly contentious waterfront project was the fact that it was to include the ferry landing.

The Quadra Island group is disappointed that work has not proceeded on the ferry slips also. It is estimated the ferry itself will take five or six months to build.

2-Day Festivity Over Labor Day Holiday Weekend

LAKE COWICHAN—Invitations are being extended to Robert Strachan, M.L.A., and W. F. Matthews, M.P., to attend the annual Labor Day celebrations here.

Water sports, log-birling and firemen's sports are to take place on the day previous to Labor Day.

An offer has been received from the Nanaimo Pipe Band to attend and take part in the celebrations.

12-MAN PARTY ORGANIZED

Large Island Parks Area To Be Explored

The first large-scale expedition to explore Strathcona Park left today for the mountainous recreational area west of Campbell River.

The party organized by the Alpine Club of Canada, Victoria branch, will also scale Mount Golden Hind, a 7,210-foot peak, the highest on Vancouver Island.

In charge of the expedition is Syd Watt, of Duncan, well-known mountaineer.

It consists of 12 members, including a botanist, prospector, forester, mining engineer and official of the provincial parks branch.

The group and supplies were flown from Butte Lake to Burman Lake where a base camp has been established for the week's expedition. They will walk out.

The party's main objective will be to assess the recreational value of the park.

TO EXPLORE LAKES

They plan to explore seven unnamed lakes, a glacier, several rivers, as well as Donner Lake, situated in the westerly portion of the park.

With the exception of Butte Lake, Donner Lake is the largest in the park. Little is known about the recreational aspects of the lake.

A complete survey of plant life will also be made by botanist E. J. Greig of Royston. The provincial parks branch is represented by Robert Ahrens, newly-appointed chief of the parks planning division who in the past 10 years has carried out extensive reconnaissance work in the location of new park areas.

The expedition will provide the parks branch with a good picture of the recreational value of the area which has never been fully explored since the park was formed prior to the First World War.

It is also timely in view of preliminary discussions now under way between deputy Recreation Minister David Turner and the CPR to annex to Strathcona Park—the 55,000 acres of E & N land in the Forbidden Plateau.

The move would transform Strathcona Park into one of Canada's best Alpine wonderland parks.

Water Main Laid Closing Mill Rd.

From Duncan Bureau) CHEMAINUS—Mill Road was closed to traffic this week while municipal workmen put in a four-inch water main to service the MacMillan and Bloedel Ltd. subdivision on Willow Street between Mill Road and Cypress Street.

At present the main will be extended only past the new B.C. Telephone Co. building, but plans call for it to go through to Cypress Street extension eventually.

Strike Delays Ferry Buildings

SIDNEY—New federal government ferry wharf under construction is nearing completion, according to Pacific Pile-driving Co. Ltd., contractor on the $260,710 project.

Installation of a transfer span and its operating machinery will take about two weeks. Construction of buildings, however, is being held up by the IWA strike through lack of material.

Certificates Given Sooke Swim Classes

SOOKE—Child and adult swimmers who completed the six-week course sponsored by Sooke Community Association received certificates Thursday at a program of swimming, games, and picnicking at Sooke River flats.

Mrs. Kay Radford, one of the originators of the classes, assisted with the presentation of certificates. Candidates had been tested the day before by Victoria Red Cross examiners Andy Wong and Mrs. Eleanor Curtis.

QUALIFIERS

TOFINO—Volunteer firemen from here who rushed by boat to the nearby Indian village of Opitsate Friday were able to confine a fire to one home, and save two others in immediate danger.

At one time it was feared the whole village might be threatened. The fire, of unknown origin, destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ned George and their three children.

The local firemen, led by deputy chief Robert Barr, took a portable pump with them and used sea water to quell the fire. The village consists of from 50 to 60 frame homes.

Parks Work Volunteers Called Off

(From Duncan Bureau) CHEMAINUS—Volunteer work parties at the community park under development at Fuller's Lake have been called off until such time as the municipality can provide more top soil.

IWA members recently cleaned up the area between the road and the lakeshore, raking it free of shale and stones. Some top soil was dumped and spread, and further work parties will be held when additional top soil is available to cover the area to be seeded.

Several planters have been constructed throughout the park and local organizations will be asked to take over their upkeep and planting of flowers.

STRIKE'S COLD HAND ON DOCKS

Desolate aftermath of the first six weeks of B.C. coast loggers' strike is typified by bleak view of Ogden Point docks, normally humming with summer activity.

Times photograph by Bill Halkett shows less than 1,000,000 board feet of lumber piled at the docks today, less than a third of normal amount awaiting loading on deep-sea ships.

One dock official said today, "I have never seen the place so empty."

Nearly empty of lumber due to woodworkers' strike, Ogden Point will soon be empty of shipping if present trend continues. Only one freighter was in port today, loading general cargo, and a spokesman for a customs brokerage firm said no ships were in sight for Victoria during the next week.

Meanwhile, some of city's 125 longshoremen are having difficulty making ends meet. Logging strike means they can load only general cargo, and most men are working only one or two days a week.

MONTE ROBERTS

Hardly anybody ever asks my opinion hardly at all, but if there is a constituent in the house who will stand still for a minute, here are some of my opinions...

In my opinion, the Russian leader should be made very, very welcome on his visit to North America... he should be given the Red carpet treatment at Washington, D.C.; Ottawa, Ont., the capitals of all 50 (unless it's 51 by the time this is published) states, the capitals of all 10 (unless B.C. annexes the Far North in the meantime) provinces, and also at Wobble Hill, Wallopem Beach, Goon Centre, and way points... let us prove to Mr. K. we are O.K., and keep him in N.A. as long as possible... because it's unlikely he'll order an H-bomb attack on this continent while he's on this continent...

In my opinion, the government of Canada should issue a short, terse, complete statement on National Defence... which would read "We don't know what we need for national defence, but if we did know, we are sure we couldn't afford it..."

In my opinion, our Home Garden editors should get the weeds out of their front yard so passers-by could see their Home Garden... and there should be a law passed proclaiming that weeds are flowers and flowers are weeds, thus eliminating the unpleasant task of weeding and replacing it with the joyous task of flowering...

In my opinion, the capital of British Columbia should be moved from Victoria to Vancouver, thus eliminating the need for protests against publications which state the capital of British Columbia is at Vancouver... and something should be done about the weather... why should Vancouver get all the lovely rain while Victoria has to suffer along with sun, sun, sun... attracting as it does people whose sole ambition is to sit in it...

In my opinion, some enlightened rock-and-roll composer should produce an epic dedicated to De Castro, titled, of course, "You Are My Cuba Sugar"... thus taking that fight little isle out of the headlines...

In my opinion, one swallow doesn't make a summer, but it's mighty nice when you're thirsty.

Do you see now why hardly anybody ever asks my opinion hardly at all?

TOPICS OF THE DAY

An estimated $84 in silver was stolen by a thief who forced open a cigarette machine at Tillamook Club, 645 Johnson, overnight Friday.

Police said there was no sign of entry, and believe the thief may have hidden in the club prior to closing time.

Another outrage has shaken Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau. This is a colored transparency made in the United States and circulated here depicting "Vancouver's stately Empress Hotel."

Publicity Commissioner George Warren is trying to trace the manufacturers, as the transparency does not bear any name or place of origin. He has also complained to the publishers of a Vancouver booklet which shows street cars running past the ivy-clad Empress in an alleged "recent" picture of Victoria.

Comedian Bob Hope spent Friday night here in the Empress Hotel with his family following a three-day rest at Qualicum Beach before leaving early this morning for the U.S.

ASK THE TIMES

Q—We would be much interested in knowing the annual rainfall at Station Papa, the Pacific weather ship. J.H.S.

A—While the weather ships take precipitation data, it is not too reliable as the weather there is heavy with heavy spray. Data is, however, sent to Ottawa, but meteorological officials here say it is doubtful if anything is computed on the subject, because of the spray content.

Answers which a question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor, Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve problems or legal problems. We will attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or autographs. These should be submitted to the editor.

Chance to pay a fine was refused as Wilfred Lloyd Hollings, 205 Burnside, was sent to jail for 20 days Thursday.

He had pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while under suspension and court was told of two previous convictions for impaired driving, one only last month.

When Hollings asked if he could be fined, Magistrate William Ostler replied: "Under some circumstances that is possible, but with your record it is not."

A 30-year-old woman who told police she was assaulted by a man in a dark suit on lower Johnson Street at 3.30 a.m. was treated at St. Joseph's Hospital for a bruised head.

Rose Hook, 1319 Government, said the man, whom she described as being of medium build, about five feet 10 inches tall, grabbed her glasses and threw her to the sidewalk. He ran up Waddington Alley between Yates and Johnson, and disappeared.

Dr. Gordon Ferguson, Vancouver, has been appointed executive director of B.C. division of Canadian Medical Association, according to an announcement by Dr. J. F. Tysoe, president of Victoria. Appointment of Dr. Edmond Boyd, West Vancouver, as executive secretary of B.C. division, was also announced.

A meeting of the B.C. Rest Homes Association of Victoria will be held Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the home of Mrs. Thomas Feika, 2835 Colquitz.

All government-licensed rest home operators are invited to attend.

An irate Victoria woman wrote city council Friday asking for better warning signs at May and Linden to avert automobile accidents that have dumped cars on her front lawn. Mrs. Elena McKay, 205 Linden, said her shrubs have been damaged and the house narrowly missed by "cars that have landed on my lawn."

Forest Fire Fight Costs To 1959 High

Fire-fighting costs in B.C. in the past week soared to $125,572 to make it the most costly to date in the current fire season, the B.C. Forest Service announced today.

Sum of $42,111 was spent in the Kamloops district and $61,352 in the Nelson district. Vancouver, Prince Rupert and Prince George districts accounted for the balance.

Foresters said storm activity is giving general rain in the northern districts and showers in the southern areas to reduce the fire hazard throughout most of the province to moderate.

There were 130 new fires throughout B.C. during the week, and 74 are still burning.

MISHAP MAKES DESTROYERS SWITCH ROLES

Destroyer escorts Skeena and Ottawa switched roles today when the Ottawa came into Esquimalt Harbor with minor boiler trouble.

Ottawa was due in Aug. 22 and Skeena was scheduled to arrive today; now Skeena will arrive Aug. 22.

The ships were participating in joint navy-air force exercises outside the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

Argentine Ship Visit Cancelled

Visit of the Canadian-built Argentine naval attack transport Bahia Thetis to Victoria has been cancelled.

The navy said today the ship was due here for a two-day stay around mid-September, but will now proceed directly to Vancouver for a visit Sept. 18-21.

The ship, on a round-the-world cruise, was built in Halifax in 1950 for the Argentine Navy.

DIGGING INTO THE PAST

Midden May Be 'Only' 3,000 Years Old

A team of professional and amateur archaeologists is carrying out a scientific "dig" in the Shoal Bay area at Oak Bay, in an attempt to learn secrets of 200 or even 5,000 years ago, by studying relics buried by time. The "dig" is under direction of the Provincial Museum. Progress reports appear daily in The Times.

By WILSON DUFF
Curator of Anthropology,
Provincial Museum

"What is the greatest possible age our midden could be?" I asked my friend Hugh Nasmith last night as we looked over the archaeological excavations at McNeill Bay. Hugh is a well-known Victoria geologist and a specialist on comparatively recent geological events, that is, the events of the past million years or so.

The answer was rather complicated, but also surprisingly definite. From what he told me, it seems highly unlikely that our site could have been occupied more than about 3,000 years ago.

We were standing in one of the trenches, which had been cut down through the midden layers to "sterile" subsoil. I pointed out that the lowest layers were only about four feet above the average high tide line.

Obviously, if the sea level had been even a few feet higher in the past, our site would have been no fit place for people to live. And it is not very long ago, geologically speaking, that the sea level was considerably higher than at present.

Going back 15 or 20 thousand years, Hugh said, this whole area was not under water but under ice, many hundreds of feet thick. Even while the glaciers were retreating, the land still remained depressed under the tremendous weight of the ice, so that the apparent level of the encroaching sea was several hundred feet higher than at present.

BIG WELCOME SET FOR VIVI MONDAY NIGHT

Miss Victoria, 19-year-old Vivi Petersen, who won second place in the Miss Canada contest at Burlington, Ont., will return to Victoria Monday night.

She is due to land at Pat Bay airport at 7.45 p.m. and will be given a civic welcome at the City Hall at 8.30 p.m.

"We are all ready for her," said Peter Forward, president of Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce, which sponsored Vivi's entry in the national contest.

Vivi, whose parents live at 2815 Fifth, was to have returned to Victoria tonight but the home flight has now been postponed until Monday.

Crash Sequel: Youth Charged With Burglary

A Fourth of July teapot caper at Durrance Lake ended in Colwood RCMP court Friday when 19-year-old Gerald George Roy, 734 Middleton, faced a charge of breaking, entering and theft.

Sentence was suspended for three months after Roy pleaded guilty to stealing a teapot and thermos jug from a cabin owned by George Dunn of Victoria.

The same night, a car containing Roy and nine other teen-aged boys and girls plunged off Durrance Road and landed in a gully. Its young driver was dealt with in juvenile court.

Injunction Could Hold Up Work if Started Monday

The market building could be left "with its roof off and work stopped" if a proposed interim injunction to halt demolition is filed, city barrister P. J. Sinnott said today.

City council Friday at a special meeting gave final reading to a bylaw authorizing a $6,400 contract with Farmer Construction to pull the building down. An offstreet parking lot is proposed for the site. Actual demolition is expected to start Monday.

"There is no hurry about filing an interim injunction," Mr. Sinnott said, "even if demolition does start Monday."

But before such a step is taken, he would have to consult with his clients, Attitio Randy, Saanich farmer, and R. J. Williamson, city ratepayer.

Mr. Sinnott Friday had filed a writ seeking a permanent injunction.

The lawyer said following council's latest action "it seems to me attitude of the council is entirely wrong. They know action is pending but are going to disregard it. There is a certain amount of intimidation here."

City council also decided to investigate possibility of erecting 10 stalls on the site for $1,500.

Mr. Sinnott termed this "partial capitulation" in the move for market retention.

Trial Could Be Delayed 6 Months

He added that trial of the writ filed by Mr. Sinnott probably would not occur for six or seven months, long after the building was pulled down.

In order to block demolition immediately, an interim injunction would have to be sought which Mr. O'Grady said would expose the opponents to the risk of a counter-suit for damages by the city.

He said the city could sue for the amount of the demolition contract and the lost revenue potential of the parking lot if an interim injunction was obtained.

"These people must be prepared to pay an amount of something in the neighborhood of about $20,000 before they apply for an interim injunction," he said. "Perhaps they are. All we can do is go ahead and see."

Ald. M. H. Money argued council should call a referendum for December before ordering demolition but he found no support among the other aldermen and the final passage was given the bylaw.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow then proposed expenditure of $1,500 on 10 stalls to be erected after establishment of the parking lot but agreed to referring the proposal to a committee for study.

free of its weight of ice. But the tremendous volume of the water which had formerly been ice now raised the level of the world's oceans considerably.

At the "thermal maximum," when the climate was at its warmest, the sea level was perhaps 25 feet higher than now. Obviously nobody lived at our site at that time either.

There is another interesting confirmation that the sea level was higher about that time. About 6,000 years ago there was a terrific volcanic explosion when Glacier Peak, in the Cascades of central Washington, blew its top off.

Hundreds of square miles were showered with a blanket of volcanic ash. Hugh has found this ash layer at several places on the mainland and Vancouver Island, but significantly, never very close to sea level.

To continue our story on through the centuries, the weather turned cooler again and new glaciers formed, to give us our scenic wonders of today. The level of the sea fell, in fact it fell to a bit lower level than it is at present. Within the last few centuries it has begun to rise again. We know that it is rising because all along the coast it is cutting into the Indian middens on the shore.

So it seems that our site could not possibly have been inhabited more than about 4,000 years ago. Probably it is a good deal younger than that.

There will be no digging over the weekend, as most of the crew are away. Next week we plan to dig every day and several evenings as well.

CAMOUFLAGE

'Bow-Tie Bishop' Not Bookie

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain's "bow-tie bishop" says his nickname resulted from a combination of doctored photographs and his own absent-mindedness.

Rt. Rev. Mervyn Stockwood, 46, Anglican bishop of Southwark, was replying to a complaint that his bow-tie might lead him to be mistaken for a race track bookie.

In a letter to The Times he writes that the "legend" began late last year on the eve of his appointment to Southwark. To avoid the press, he said he took off his clerical collar and "camouflaged himself with the bow."

But on his trip from Cambridge to London, he absent-mindedly forgot to pack his collar. In an interview with The Times, he said, "I had to be photographed with the shameful haberdashery around my neck."

"Some photographers, jealous of The Times, found in their archives old prints of myself and doctored them—by which I mean the clerical collar was removed and the haberdashery substituted."

He adds that "on most occasions I wear the dress of a respectable clergyman," but admits to a "sprae" in a soft collar and the occasionally when having tea at his London club.

Christianity 'Only One of Ways to God'

GENEVA PARK, Lake Couchiching, Ont. (CP) — Dr. Wilfrid C. Smith of McGill University has urged the Christian church to rid itself of the idea that it is the exclusive way to God.

Dr. Smith, professor of comparative religion and director of McGill's Institute of Islamic Studies, was addressing the Sunday church service on the Canadian Institute of Public Affairs, holding its annual conference here.

Speaking on "The Christian and the Religions of Asia," Dr. Smith took as his text St. Paul's words: "As many as are led by the spirit of God, they are the sons of God."

chairman; and Ella Bruch, diocesan secretary. Program started today with more than 200 delegates from Vancouver Island meeting in the Chinese Mission Hall. Convention will wind up with a dinner Sunday at St. Patrick's Auditorium.

B.C. Clergy, Laity Named To Attend General Synod

By MICHAEL ROSE

Leading members of the Diocese of B.C. will attend the General Synod of the Anglican Church of Canada Sept. 1 through 9 at St. Anne de Bellevue, Que.

Headed by the Lord Archbishop of B.C., Most Reverend Harold E. Sexton, the delegation will consist of clerical and lay representatives from Victoria and up-Island points.

Main subjects on the agenda will be the election of a new primate for Canada and a two-day discussion of the contents of a revised prayer book.

The local delegates will be among some 350 churchmen at the talks consisting of 43 bishops, active and retired, and representatives from 28 dioceses in every province, the Yukon and the Northwest Territories.

Attending are: Very Rev. Brian W. Whitlow, Dean of Christ Church Cathedral; Rev. Canon H. J. Jones of St. Mary's, Oak Bay; Rev. Canon George Biddle of St. John's; Rev. Canon T. Bailey; Rev. Canon G. H. Greenhalgh of Nanaimo; and Rev. Canon B. T. Page of Duncan.

Lay delegates will be: Dr. F. T. Fairley, H. L. Henderson, H. H. Smith, Lt. Col. Fairfax Webber and Roger Bray, all of Victoria, with H. D. Arnold, Duncan.

HEAVY AGENDA

In addition to the two main subjects the Synod will receive and discuss between 35 and 40 other reports dealing with various church work.

Revision of the prayer book has occupied the church some 16 years and in 1955 a rough draft was presented to the last General Synod which gave it general approval and referred it back to the committee for completion.

A partial revision of the English Prayer Book of 1662, begun in 1911, has been in use by Canadian Anglicans since 1922, but it was recognized as only a first step in providing a service book suitable for modern times.

Object of the revision has been to make more understandable "without making any alterations which would imply any change in the doctrine of the church."

Both regular and occasional services will be shorter and brides will no longer have to promise to obey their husbands.

Election of the Primate is carried out by ballot in camera and under a system of two houses.

The Upper House, of bishops, nominates two or three of their number and the Lower House of clergy and laity vote. Clear majorities by both sections of the Lower House are required to ensure a result.

BARFOOT RETIRED

The election was occasioned by the retirement from office last December of the Most Reverend W. F. Barfoot, who will retain his jurisdiction as Bishop of the Diocese of Rupert's Land and Archbishop of Rupert's Land.

Acting Primate since last December, Most Reverend Philip Carrington, Archbishop of Quebec, will preside over the Synod during the first week and Archdeacon Cecil Swanson of Toronto will act as chairman of the Lower House when it meets separately near the end of the meeting. Included in the agenda will be a discussion of the plight of the world's refugees and of Anglican participation in World Refugee Year.

'A SYMBOL IN THE SKY'

Parson Pilot Shooes Cows

NEW YORK (AP) — Churches are developing a breed of flying parsons.

The United Church of Christ in the U.S. has at least two. Rev. John Kelly of Broadus, Mont., serves six congregations scattered over 4,000 square miles, flying his own two-seater plane.

Rev. Alan Inglis of Flasher, N.D., travels about 4,000 miles a month by car and single-engine plane to perform ministerial duties in his huge parish.

For both flying parsons, facilities are primitive. Mr. Kelly has to shoo cows off his landing strip in Broadus before taking off.

"The runway is in the middle of a cow pasture," he says, "and the cows haven't forgotten they were there first."

'PRAY WHILE MR. K. HERE'

BOSTON (UPI) — Richard Cardinal Cushing of Boston has called for a "Crusade of Prayer" while Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev is in this country next month.

Cardinal Cushing said he would recommend that all the persons in his archdiocese pray for "the ruled and rulers of Russia, for nations in bondage, for the sorrowful languishing in prisons and refugee camps, for suffering people everywhere and for universal peace."

None of the fields in Mr. Kelly's parish is lighted for night landings so he buzzes the town, and parishioners drive to the field to light the landing strip with their headlights. Mr. Inglis is up before dawn and hurries to the airport with his Bible, church bulletins, a tape recorder and, during the winter, a can of heated oil to get the plane started.

His landing fields include a little-used road and a high school football field.

"The airplane is sort of a symbol in the sky," says Mr. Kelly. "A reminder that the church is not just a building to go to on Sunday but a vital force constantly concerned about people."

MME. GEORGES VANIER

Rideau Hall Chatelaine Of Illustrious Family

MONTREAL (CP)—Mme. Pauline Vanier, tall, attractive wife of Canada's next governor-general comes from an old and illustrious French-Canadian family—the de Salaberrys.

In the early days of Canada, they fought Indians, explored the northwest, served with the British in the Napoleonic wars and sat on legislative councils.

The de Salaberrys once were the seigneurs of Chambly-de-Rouville in the early feudal days of Canada.

The Queen announced before leaving Halifax at the beginning of August that Maj. Gen. George P. Vanier, Canada's first ambassador to France, now retired from diplomatic life, will become governor-general when Vincent Massey retires in September.

Mme. Vanier, a striking grey-haired woman, is the mother of four sons and a daughter. One son is a Roman Catholic trappist monk, vowed to silence. All the others live in Europe.

An adept hostess, she was Canada's first lady in Paris in the tricky post-war years of France, when her husband served as Canadian ambassador.

She was at his side through most of the war—even in Algiers when he was Canada's envoy to Gen. Charles de Gaulle's Free French forces.

Daughter of Charles Hector Archer, a Quebec Superior Court judge who argued once before the Privy Council in England, she grew up amid finer things of life.

She got her first real taste of war when she escaped in a small cargo boat from a French port just before France capitulated to the Nazis.

Mme. Vanier, her mother and four children spent five days in the small ship, jammed with 300 refugees.

"My mother and children stood the voyage remarkably well, even though space was cramped and food scarce," she recalled later.

They had only two sandwiches a day to eat and the water supply vanished before reaching port.

Mme. Vanier was active in the Red Cross both in Canada and in Britain during the war.

In 1942, she was elected honorary president of the St. John Ambulance Association auxiliary committee and received a parchment for her work from the Venerable Order of St. John of Jerusalem—believed to be the first time such an honor was paid to a woman.

Child Models Mix Enchantment With Reality

The life of a five-year-old model is an enchanting place of grown-up clothes, cameras and hat boxes filled with ribbons, pins, white gloves and patent leather shoes. At least, that's the opinion of aspiring models Gayle Sibbald and Pam Morris, who mix regular school work with modelling assignments. Recently, they tested their modelling ability at a Toronto shopping centre. They were assigned to model special dresses of Arnel and cotton broadcloth for fall at the centre's merry-go-round for tiny tots. They arrived breathlessly with their mothers in tow. The rear seats of the family cars were cluttered with the tools of a model's trade: boxes, handbags, hats, pins and gloves. "Are we going to ride the merry-go-round?" Pam asked. Her mother answered by whisking her into two crinolines, topped by a gingham-checked dress of Arnel and cotton broadcloth. She finished with white gloves and patent shoes. Pam clambered atop a white horse on the merry-go-round, ignoring the stares of other children around her. She gave her professional smile, twisted her knees and tilted her head. The camera snapped. Her reward was a spin on her favorite white horse. As her mother whisked her away to change clothes, five-year-old Gayle Sibbald posed in her pale blue, lace-trimmed dress of Arnel and cotton broadcloth. She bought a ticket to the merry-go-round for 10 pennies, smiling as the photographer snapped her picture. Her mother stood in the background, holding a hairbrush and pins for emergencies. The models changed swiftly into different dresses, tucking crinolines, circling their hair with ribbons. "It's fun for them, but work for their mothers," Gayle's mother laughed. "We spend hours shuffling them to their modelling classes, dressing them for assignments, setting their hair and all those chores." She asked questions about the models' dresses, discovering that the crisp Arnel and cotton broadcloth fabric was washable, quick-drying and needed little ironing. Pam's mother laughed. She explained that her little daughter had modelled summer fashions in Arnel and cotton broadcloth a few months ago. "I had to buy them because she liked them so much." Aside from buying the clothes their daughters model, did the mothers enjoy the modelling assignments? "It's work but it's fun," Mrs. Sibbald said. And full of wonders for a five-year-old.

DEAR ABBY . . . You Could Be Her Next Patient!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My friend took a first aid course 20 years ago and she thinks she's a doctor. A woman fainted on the bus yesterday and my friend rushed in and took over. She loosened all the woman's undergarments and sent the bus driver for whiskey. Then she applied artificial respiration as given to victims of drowning. When the fainter "came to" she was humiliated to find herself half-dressed on the floor of the bus. My friend thinks she saved a life. The woman said she faints all the time. I tried to tell my friend that she shouldn't give first aid when she doesn't know how. She laughed at me. Will you tell her how dangerous it is? She reads your column.

A FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: A person can "faint" (or lose consciousness) for one of many reasons. Heart failure, diabetic shock or heat prostration, to name a few. Since each condition requires its own emergency treatment, when in doubt, the victim should be given only fresh air and a doctor's care immediately. Clip this and show it to your friend. The life you save may be your own.

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your arguments about which are cleaner, dogs or people. I prefer dogs to people because dogs wag their tails instead of their tongues. And they ARE cleaner than most people. Any vet can tell you that a healthy dog's mouth is antiseptic. Put me down as another human who'd rather be bitten by a dog than by some people.

DEAR ABBY: I am sick and tired of hearing about how clean dogs are! Why don't people ask a medical doctor instead of a vet? Have you ever watched a dog for five minutes as it goes down the street poking its nose into every bush and pile of garbage? All dogs investigate other dogs with their noses. Now what thinking person would want that dog's nose in his face?

THINKING MAN

DEAR ABBY: I broke a long engagement to marry another man. Unfortunately, I got pregnant right away. I know now that I should have married the first fellow. My husband is overseas. The baby is due in March. My ex-boyfriend lives out of the province but he visited here recently. We got together and realize we love each other. We both agreed to forgive and forget. He's coming back in the fall to work here. My mother thinks I should wait until my husband comes home before I divorce him. My friends say I should divorce him right now before my old boyfriend comes back to town, otherwise people will talk. What do you think?

TROUBLED MIND

DEAR TROUBLED: I think it's time you grew up! You are a married woman, about to become a mother. You took a sacred vow — "Until death do us part." You can make a success of your marriage if you try. Wait for your husband — and wait faithfully. The spiritual and moral strength you lack can be found in any church.

What's your problem? For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this newspaper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

We're So Lazy—We Ride When We Should Walk

The number of fatalities due to traffic accidents is appalling, and we all should drive more carefully. However, cars can be dangerous in more ways than one. We have become so lazy physically and feel so dependent on our cars that we do not walk as often as we should. Even if we are going only four or five blocks on an errand the tendency is to jump into the car. Many distinguished medical authorities feel that the body must be exercised regularly if we are to enjoy truly vibrant health and have that magic, extra portion of energy. It should be a pleasure rather than a trial to move, to walk, to dance, to use our muscles. There is real pleasure in movement which only the individual who has exercised regularly experiences. Yet so many folks go along day after day and month after month and even year after year without stirring up their circulation. What usually happens is that women, and more especially men, go in for sudden and violent spurts of exercise but neglect it as a usual routine. This is supposed to be worse than none at all. In fact it actually can be dangerous. It is the daily habit of

Couple Married This Afternoon To Make New Home on Prairies

To make their home in Eldorado, Sask., where the groom is a geologist with Eldorado Mining and Refining Company there, are newlyweds of this afternoon, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Raymond Saunders.

The bride, the former Margaret Fairley Benton, is the daughter of Mrs. Katherine Benton, Victoria, and her groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Saunders of Armstrong, B.C. Mr. Saunders is a graduate from the class of '55, University of British Columbia. Service took place in First United Church with Rev. W. W. McPherson officiating. E. McNeil played organ music and soloist was Alan Husband. Given in marriage by A. Wiggins, the dark-haired bride was a picture in her floor-length model gown of shimmering bombazine designed along princess lines. Seed pearls edged the sweetheart neckline of lace that dipped into a low V at the back with side bow inserts at the waistband. Two back redingote panniers scalloped with lace extended to a panel train. A double coronet in diamond design and outlined with seed pearls and encrusted with iridescent sequins held a fingertip illusion veil. She carried a bouquet of white gardenias and stephanotis.

Miss Nancy Benton, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, wore an afternoon-length dress of peau-de-soie with wide pale green cummerbund and matching picture hat. She carried a bouquet of white carnations tipped in green.

FIVE-ROOM HOME

Formal Yet Comfortable In Decor and Furniture

TORONTO (CP)—A home doesn't have to be fussy to be formal. Interior decorator Margaret Damp proved it by decorating a five-room house for a large Toronto retail store.

A formal but comfortable effect was achieved with approximately $7,000 worth of furniture and decorations.

A powder room with wallpaper that can be scrubbed is among the many innovations of the home. Miss Damp said it would take a knife to score the wallpaper which is stronger than washable paper designed some years ago.

The formal living-room furniture is set in informal groups. Settees and chairs are used instead of a large chesterfield.

In the kitchen, shuttered doors allow ventilation in cupboards for wet towels.

"In modern homes, even with washers and driers, we must have a place to hang wet towels," Miss Damp explained. "The colors in the entire house are co-ordinated."

IN CENTRALIA

Former Victorian Marries

A wedding of interest in Victoria took place recently in Christ the King Chapel, Centralia, Ont., when Miss Lorraine Lucille Ross, formerly of this city and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Ross of the RCAF at Centralia, became the bride of Donald W. Malenfant, RCAF station, Centralia, son of Mrs. Thomas Malenfant, Windsor, Ont.

Father Proulx conducted the nuptial mass in a setting of red and white gladioli. Mrs. L. Howard was organist and the chapel choir sang "Ave Maria" and "On This Day."

Chantilly lace, nylon tulle and satin formed the bride's gown. Fitted bodice was fashioned with a sabbina neckline edged with seed pearls and iridescent sequins and long sleeves. Ruffles of the lace trimmed the bouffant skirt that extended into a semi-train. Her chapel veil was held by a halo of pearls and sequins. Red roses and stephanotis were in her bouquet. She was escorted up the aisle by her father.

Miss Shirley Sorrell, Windsor, was bridesmaid wearing a shrimp tulle organza gown. Pale pink roses and chrysanthemums were in her bouquet. Little Marlene Thompson was flower girl dressed in a floor length frock in mint green tone. Her headpiece was in tone and she carried a bouquet of pink roses and baby chrysanthemums.

Best man was Ronald Malenfant and ushers were Joseph Gunn and Stanley Burke.

Reception followed at the home of the bride's parents. A brown linen two-piece dress, white accessories and a yellow corsage were chosen by the bride as her going-away ensemble. After a honeymoon the couple travelled to their new home in Namao, Alta.

Secretary Has Important Place In Office; Make, Break Business

TORONTO (CP)—A secretary can make or break a business, says Hilda Wilson, vice-president of the Toronto Chapter of the National Secretaries' Association.

Mrs. Wilson, summing up all the things a secretary must be, says: "If the secretary is going to succeed in her job, and if she is going to be an asset to her boss, she must be a bit of a diplomat, spelling champion, travel agent, detective, accountant, grammarian, lawyer, psychiatrist, wailing wall and mind reader—all rolled into one well-dressed and charming person."

Mrs. Wilson also warns that while the secretarial position is important, the secretary should never take herself or her position too seriously.

WHAT SHOULD BE DONE

"It's important to be on time and not use the excuse that 'I don't get away on time' from the office," she says. "That rationalization is not in good taste."

Mrs. Wilson adds that personal calls are fine as long as they are not so numerous they overstep the good nature of the boss. Lunch hour and coffee breaks are a good time to make outgoing calls, but it's not always possible to control incoming calls.

"Coffee breaks can be overdone too," she says.

The international education committee recently completed a study of the dignity of the secretarial profession. It said: "Dignity lies in the willingness of the secretary to be of service to her employer."

The secretary's job is usually not one that requires policy-making or important decisions, but rather one made up of many details. It is the carrying out of those everyday details in an accurate and willing manner that will reflect favorably upon a secretary's employer, and in turn, upon herself.

The study said answering the telephone graciously and meeting visitors are opportunities for service rather than unwelcome interruptions. The secretary's attitude towards her company was also shown through contacts with people away from the office. An important secretary is one who by her own example, has helped another person to be a better employee.

B. Strang and Stephen from Powell River, and Mrs. Ber Rebagliati, Kelowna.

UBC Golden Jubilee Report By President

Parts of University of British Columbia history are described as "a record of perpetual frustration" by president Norman A. M. MacKenzie in his golden jubilee report for 1958.

In his report, issued today, the president laments "we have never had enough staff, buildings, money and facilities of any kind," but prefaces the remark by saying:

"Compared with some universities we are very young indeed, but if what has been done in our first 50 years is any portent for the future, we may look forward with confidence and with pride."

NEW PICTURES
He includes in a handsome, 43-page-published edition, an extensive review of UBC history accompanied by a large photographic section, many pictures appearing for the first time.

"There is another way of looking at our history," the president said. "The public has always responded. We have always needed more staff and more buildings because we have always had the one surplus that is desirable—a greater demand for education."

Belgian Sailor Draws $40 Fine

A Belgian naval seaman was fined $40 in Saanich police court Tuesday for careless driving was said to have skidded 315 feet and crashed into two other cars before overturning.

Amedeo Francois Claus suggested his 20-year-old car may have had a mechanical failure and blowout causing it to veer out of control just north of Tolmie.

But Magistrate William Ostler did not accept this defence or Claus' statement he was travelling at less than 30 miles an hour.

"There are a great many inconsistencies in your story," he said. "You were going too fast and it is miraculous you or your companions were not killed or seriously hurt."

Tourist Charged Double Discount

One way to drive U.S. tourists away from Victoria is to discount their dollar eight cents instead of five, says Logan Thompson of 3835 Saanich Road.

Mr. Thompson claims some stores are doing this.

"I bought a milkshake downtown and was charged four cents on an American 50-cent piece," he said. "At Cordova Bay I bought a cup of coffee and was charged two cents on an American 25-cent piece."

"I had received these U.S. coins in change from other Victoria stores... this is just plain racketeering."

Massey in Hospital

SPOTTING COLORS TESTS WITS

Perhaps the design above would pass as a work of modern art. In any case, it poses a problem that challenges the wits and patience.

The problem is this: To take crayons of three different colors — say red, yellow and blue; fill in every area of the design with one of these colors, and to keep areas of the same color from touching at any point.

If crayons are not handy, pencil shadings or written symbols may be substituted. A solution is shown elsewhere on the page.

GAME GETS ON YOUR NERVE

To be a great shakes at something means you are good at it. But if you are the least bit shaky here, you lose.

To play this game you need an empty catsup or soda bottle and a box of wooden toothpicks (flat ones).

To begin, each player places a toothpick across the mouth of the bottle until a complete layer is formed. Then a second layer is begun; then a third, etc.

As the pile gets higher and higher, it becomes increasingly difficult to add toothpicks, of course. Object is pile as many on as possible without causing the stack to topple. The player who does this is eliminated from the game and another round is begun with remaining players participating, and so on.

DON'T BET ON THIS FOOT RACE

Murray, Curry, Surrey, Burrey and Beegle ran a mile race on a quarter-mile oval at a California track meet.

From the following statements, name the order of the finish:

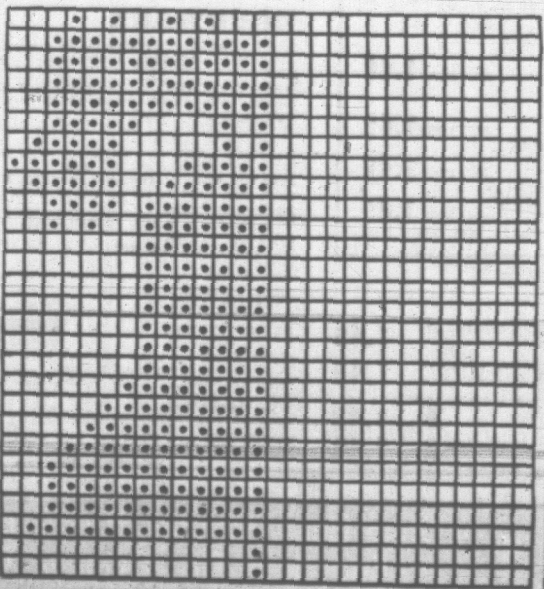

1. Murray finished before Burrey but not before Surrey.
2. At the end of the first lap the eventual winner was preceded by Beegle.
3. Beegle passed Surrey at the beginning of the third lap, and remained in front of him thereafter in the race.

AVERAGE INTELLIGENCE

Let's say your car will average 15 milesto the gallon on a trip. On your trip next week you will travel 750 miles. The grade of gasoline you burn costs 28c a gallon. What amount will you spend for gasoline on your trip?

Finland, one of four former Czarist provinces to be established as Baltic republics after First World War, is the only one of them still independent. The other three — Lithuania, Estonia and Latvia — have all been reabsorbed into the Soviet Union.

RINGING TRIBUTE IN BALANCE

Successful completion of this test is a ringing tribute to one's sense of balance.

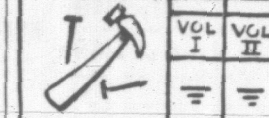

As you can see, some squares on one side of the diagram at right contain dots. Squares on the opposite side are empty.

All dotted squares are to be filled in with a pencil or with a crayon — and color you choose. Then, the problem is to complete a bi-symmetrical design by filling in the corresponding squares on the other side of the diagram.

The best way to work this is to fill in one row at a time, starting from the outside and moving in progressively. Be sure that in the beginning you fill in only the squares containing dots. Then duplicate the design in reverse on the other side.

If you do this correctly, the two sides will balance perfectly and you'll ring the bell with a design a needleworker might wish to duplicate in embroidery, quilting or lace.

BOILING BOOKS

An oldie that's always worth repeating comes to the fore again in this improbable guise:

It seems a do-it-yourself fan who despised bookends decided to nail together a two-volume set of books so that they would stand together on a shelf. The pages of each volume were three inches thick; the covers each one-quarter inch thick. The do-it fan started his nails on the title page of volume 1 and drove them through to the last page of volume 2. How long were the nails?

CHECK NOAH'S ANIMALS

Feeling frisky when asked to make a list of some of the animals which might have been found on Noah's ark, a puzzlist devised the diagram, bottom, scrambling the names of at least 30 animals among the letters.

To identify the animals, begin at any square and move to an adjacent square in any direction. A square may be used more than once in spelling a word, providing you enter some other square before using it again. How many names can you find? Twenty is a good average.

Time limit for this poser is 15 minutes.

From the figures 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, form three numbers, the first of which is 67 less than the second, the second being 115 less than the third. The three numbers total 2,511. What are they?

Balloon 'Moon' Fails In Busy U.S. Rocket Day

OCEAN AREA COMBED FOR SPACE CAPSULE

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI)—A fleet of ships and planes today searched a 10,000 square-mile section of ocean 700 miles southwest of Hawaii for a 300-pound capsule from the Discoverer V satellite.

Pentagon officials admit "there is little hope" now that the 27 by 33 inch capsule will be found. A fleet of nine giant C-19 planes of the 6593rd Test Squadron, Hickman Air Force Base, Hawaii, waited in vain Friday to attempt to snatch the data-carrying capsule from the sky as it parachuted down. The Pentagon said an identification signal from the capsule failed to function.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The United States Friday had its busiest day of rocketry since it began reaching for space. But the main effort failed — an attempt to send a 12-foot inflatable balloon into orbit.

The Juno II rocket roared spaceward from Cape Canaveral bearing the unusual balloon-moon. Its three stages ignited successfully, but the last one apparently went in the wrong direction and carried the satellite back into the earth's atmosphere.

Another failure was a giant Titan ICBM missile that blew up on its launching pad at the Cape earlier in the day.

On the plus side there was a successful launching of a Polaris missile from a machine that simulates the motion of a submarine at sea. The weapon is designed to be fired from a sub anywhere in the world.

LAUNCH THOR

At Vandenberg Air Force Base in California a Royal Air Force training crew successfully launched a 1,500-mile Thor missile, the kind being set up at bases in England.

Another Thor was launched at Cape Canaveral. It carried a movie camera to photograph the earth from an altitude of 300 miles. But the capsule carrying the camera was not found.

If the Cape Canaveral balloon had gone into orbit, it would have been the third successful U.S. satellite to circle the earth in a week. Last Friday a Thor-Able rocket shoved a 142-pound paddle wheel satellite into orbit, and the baby moon still is radioing back important space information.

The balloon-moon was designed to show just how much drag the super-thin atmosphere up to an altitude of 1,000 miles or so would have on such a large, light object. It would have been the first launched by the U.S. visible to the naked eye.

New Bid for IWA Talks Ends in Harsh Words

FARMER'S 27 CHILDREN 'GREET' TAX COLLECTOR

EDMUNDSTON, N.B. (CP) — Tax collector Narcisse Prevost said he was tied to a chair and left there for an hour and a half when he called at a farmhouse Friday to deliver a county tax assessment notice.

He said the farmer's wife caused several of the 27 children in the family to assault him.

He was released by the farmer when the latter came home. Mr. Prevost said he went to the county magistrate to lay a charge but was stumped when asked who he would name as his assailant.

"There were so many of them," he said.

Heavy Quake Rocks Formosa

Aircraft Contracts 'Not Spread'

TORONTO (CP) — A former Avro Aircraft Limited president and union spokesman registered chagrin today at the announcement that the government has awarded a $91,500,000 contract to Canadair Limited of Montreal instead of to Avro.

John L. Plant, who resigned as president and general manager at the end of July, commented: "It doesn't look as if there was any desire to spread the work around when the contract goes to a company already building three types of aircraft."

The Canadair contract was for airframes for 200 F-104G Starfighters. Mr. Plant said Canadair also has the possibility of a trainer aircraft contract.

Orenda Engines Limited in Toronto was awarded a contract valued at $80,000,000 to build the J-79 engines for the Starfighter. Both Avro and Orenda are subsidiaries of A. V. Roe Limited.

Douglas McAllister, business representative for the International Association of Machinists which represents all Avro workers, said A. V. Roe, a British company, was being discriminated against in favor of Canadair, owned by a United States firm, General Dynamics.

Electricians Vote Strike

VANCOUVER (CP) — First results of a government-supervised strike ballot Friday indicate 1,100 mainland electrical workers will strike in support of their demand for a 35-hour week with no reduction in take-home pay.

A total of 388 out of a possible 488 men in 22 firms voted 68 per cent in favor of striking in a ballot held Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

More ballots are expected to come in by mail. The final result is expected to be known late next week.

At Vancouver, police authorities today were organizing a nationwide crackdown on home-made whiskey.

was along Ireland's rugged western seaboard where the trade has flourished for generations.

Tiny islands hidden in lakes and off the coast have been the traditional headquarters for moonshining. Police intend a house-by-house search in these areas in the stepped-up battle of wits against the locals.

Island Centres Facing Setback In Long Strike

The troubled situation in B.C. coast loggers' strike bristled with harsh words and some ill-feeling today as the walkout neared the end of its sixth week without any positive sign of an early settlement.

The developments, in capsule, were:

● Two Island mayors blasted Labor Minister Wicks, for saying their mediation attempts were only aggravating the situation.

● Head of the lumber operators scoffed at the mayors' settlement try as "mistaken good intentions."

● Courtenay loggers' union officials accused of misappropriation of funds.

● B.C. Federation of Labor promises new support drive for strikers.

● Opposition Leader Robert Strachan blames large lumber operators for prolonging walk-out.

● Logging industry spokesman warns continuance of strike or settlement at woodworkers' terms would cripple Island centres.

● Newly-appointed B.C. Power Commission chairman Dr. Hugh Keenleyside mentioned as a possible mediator.

DELAY CHARGED
The attack on Mr. Wicks quickly followed his assertion Friday that attempts by the mayors of Nanaimo, Port Alberni and Courtenay to bring the two sides together had caused "a substantial delay in moves toward a settlement."

He described their intervention as "most unfortunate."

In reply, Nanaimo Mayor Maffeo called on the minister to explain his remark, while Mayor William Moore of Courtenay snapped, "This is a typical Wicks' statement."

"All we were trying to do is get the two sides at the bargaining table again. How this can cause any harm to the situation is beyond my comprehension."

"We simply did what he (Mr. Wicks) should have done a month ago."

Mr. Moore said, he had "suspicions that Wicks and the premier are going to do something about the strike soon."

Mayor Loran Jordon of Port Alberni was not available for comment.

OFFER APPRECIATED
In Vancouver, John Billings, president of Forest Industrial Relations, representing the lumber operators, said the mayors' offer to help was "understandable and the spirit in which it was made is appreciated."

"But the offer is based on the mistaken belief that if the two parties could only be brought together an agreement would automatically follow."

"Our trouble in settling this strike does not come from lack of talks or inability to contact Continued on Page 3

WHITE GANG BEATS NEGRO IN LONDON

LONDON (Reuters) — A gang of white men attacked a 60-year-old Negro in the race-tense Notting Hill district of London.

Olanzo Briggs was taken to hospital with a suspected fracture of the cheek and skull. An iron bar and knife were found after the attack.

About 6,000 West Indians live in Notting Hill, the centre of activity by groups seeking to drive non-white immigrants out of Britain.

The area was the scene of serious racial clashes last summer.

B.C. Golfers Lead Cup Play

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia barged into an eight-stroke lead at the one-quarter mark of the interprovincial golf team championships for the Willingdon Cup here today.

Paced by Ron Willey, 23-year-old B.C. and Pacific Northwest amateur champion, who carded a 34, the B.C. team fired a three under 141 total.

Marlene Leads In Golf Final

TORONTO (UPI) — Mrs. Marlene Stewart Streit of Fonthill, Ont., was 3-up at the halfway mark today in her bid for a record sixth Canadian Open golf championship.

Mrs. Streit shot a 3-under-par 73 for the first 18, while Mrs. Bruce McGhie of Whirlpool, N.Y., was one over at 77. A shirt-sleeved crowd of about 800 braved the blistering 90-degree heat to follow them around the tough St. George's layout.

'Mostly Sun' For Sunday

A weather disturbance passing over Victoria tonight will cause cloudy skies this evening and a few showers after midnight, weatherman William Mackie said today. Skies will clear to "mostly sunny" Sunday.

BATTLE OF WITS WITH CRAFTY ISLANDERS

Hunt On For Irish Moonshiners

DUBLIN (UPI) — Police authorities today were organizing a nationwide crackdown on home-made whiskey.

Focal point of the campaign

was along Ireland's rugged western seaboard where the trade has flourished for generations.

Tiny islands hidden in lakes and off the coast have been the traditional headquarters for moonshining. Police intend a house-by-house search in these areas in the stepped-up battle of wits against the locals.

Armed with centuries of experience, few believed the sturdy, wind-whipped islanders would be caught napping by the intensified police action.

The permanent war between the moonshiners and the police

took a new turn this year because authorities feared Ireland's booming tourist industry was boosting the trade.

With tourists rapidly becoming a predominant part of Ireland's economy, tourist officials were fearful the "slightly cooled" native brew could have a boomerang effect on the industry.

Sometimes the annual battle takes a queer twist. Last year, for instance, a fine crop of carefully hidden stills was found because a rookie policeman couldn't handle an oar.

The blue-uniformed police had jumped off at dawn from three starting places to raid a small loch island.

Watched by placid islanders, they rowed silently toward their prey. A careful inch-by-inch search showed the island was "clean."

Baffled police were treated to tea before they began their cold journey back to the mainland.

Then the rookie qualified for promotion. He dug his oar too deep down in the water, stumbled from his seat and came up with three sunken stills.

"It would have to be a young one," said one of the islanders, spitting disgustedly.

NO EARLY STRIKE END STEEL UNION CHIEF

DETROIT (AP)—United Steelworkers president David J. McDonald says prospects are bleak for an early settlement of the steel strike which began a month ago.

McDonald, on a tour of Detroit-area picket lines Friday, told reporters the strike will end when Roger M. Blough, board chairman of U.S. Steel Corporation, "decides to end it."

Later, he told a union rally "this won't be a short strike."

At a press conference, McDonald said "Mr. Blough started it and he can end it. He is the key man in the entire negotiations, but has shown no desire to negotiate."

Ottawa Deficit Highest In Peacetime History

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government had a budget deficit of $609,316,844 in the fiscal year ended last March 31, highest ever recorded in peacetime and the fourth time since the Second World War that the government has gone into the red.

The size of the deficit, announced Friday night by Finance Minister Fleming in a final accounting for the 1958-59 year, was shaped out of revenues of $4,754,722,689 and expenditures of $5,364,039,533. Previous record spending was $5,322,233,505 in the war year of 1943-44.

In his budget speech April 9 Mr. Fleming forecast a deficit higher by $8,000,000 at $167,000,000 on revenues of $4,770,000,000 and expenditures of $5,387,000,000.

Even that deficit figure was a scale-down from an earlier forecast of a deficit of $700,000,000. The 1957-58 deficit was $38,622,732.

The previous high for a peacetime deficit was $390,342,586 in 1919-20. The all-time record deficit, $2,558,277,125, occurred in the war year of 1944-45.

For the current fiscal year another substantial deficit is anticipated, Mr. Fleming having forecast one of $393,000,000.

Canadian Oil Records Sales, Production Jump

TORONTO (CP)—Canadian Oil Companies Ltd., has reported refined product sales are up 5 per cent for the second quarter of 1959, and for the first six months of this year showed an increase of 15 per cent over the like period in 1958.

W. Harold Rea, president, in a report to shareholders said earnings for the first six months of this year are moderately improved over the same period in 1958. The company, however, did not release any earnings figures.

The company's crude oil production in western Canada to June 30 rose to 717,000 barrels, an increase of 27 per cent over the first half of 1958.

BEASTALL ADVISES

Rewards for Amateurs In Garden Show Biz

BY JACK BEASTALL
If there ever was a grand and glorious feeling it comes when you gather the blue ribbons for your first attempt at competition in a fall show. And it is a feeling that all gardeners may experience.

The most difficult part of showing garden produce is getting up enough courage to put in the first exhibit.

You are beset by doubts, and a little scared of ridicule. You are not quite sure how to begin, but you know that your carrots were better than any which received first prize at the fall shows last year.

From experience, let me assure you that the majority of beginners will capture at least two firsts on five entries and seconds or thirds on the others. It happens every year at the local shows, and two out of five is 40 per cent against a veterans 10 out of 40 which is only 25 per cent.

Your first requirement is a schedule, or catalog, for the show you would like to enter. This is obtained from the secretary or show chairman of the organization sponsoring the affair.

Study Standards

Although you may enter all the shows you care to tackle, you will probably settle for the one in the district where you will have the company of friends and neighbors.

While you are waiting for the schedule to arrive, call in, or write, to the Department of Agriculture in the Parliament Buildings at Victoria, or the Dominion Experimental Farm at Saanichton, for a copy of circular No. 30.

The title of this little booklet, "Exhibition Standards of Perfection for Fruit, Vegetables, Field Crops, Dairy Products, Eggs and Honey," is sufficient to describe its contents. These are the standards on which judging is based throughout British Columbia.

When the show schedule arrives, read the rules carefully and then mark the classes you would like to enter.

Since show schedules must be limited in size, every word has a definite value and meaning. Most errors are made through scanning in a hurry and missing a word, or adding a word which is not printed and was never intended.

Read over the rules and the specifications for the classes twice a week until you are fully familiar with the wording and understand clearly what is meant. Don't apply a meaning which suits your particular conditions or circumstances.

Beginners are inclined to believe that calling for more than one of each item, uniform in color and size, is done to make things difficult.

Uniformity Wins

This is not the case. The show is staged so that the gardener who produces a uniform crop by attention and care will receive recognition and be rewarded for his efforts and ability.

Any of us can go into the garden and find one good cabbage, carrot, or bean, or a couple of potatoes nearly like in size and shape without too many worm holes. But to produce a uniform crop so that six or twelve specimens of the same size, quality, color, and texture can be selected indicates ability which deserves reward.

How the crops are handled between now and show time will decide whether they reach show standards, and here are a few hints which may help beginners.

Keep enough soil over potato tubers to prevent them becoming green, but do not bury too deeply and stop development. Be sure that the tops of carrot roots are covered with soil so that no green cap develops.

Keep Picking

Draw the soil away from the bulbs of onions so that the entire bulb is exposed and the skin evenly ripened.

Pick beans and peas every second day or so whether you need them or not. This will keep the vines in production and good young pods will be available at show time. Water regularly. Apply fertilizer now, if needed, using one high in phosphoric acid such as 5-10-5, 6-8-4, 4-12-4.

Marrows, squash, pumpkins, cucumbers and melons always have a white mark or a discoloration if one side is growing against the soil, and it is something which does not please the judge. To obtain even coloring, the fruits are gently turned every few days so that all the surface becomes the same shade of green, cream or gold.

Keep the crops growing steadily by feeding, watering, and controlling pests. For classes requiring matured produce, save the older specimens and use the younger ones which will not have time to mature.

No Prize for Size

On the other hand, for classes requiring specimens at their prime, use the older ones in the kitchen and keep the younger ones coming along so that a good number will be ready to choose from at show time.

Remember that judges are only impressed by exceptionally large specimens when the class calls for the largest, longest, or heaviest vegetable. Abnormal growth is not considered a sign of good gardening.

In potatoes and onions, for example, each variety has a definite average size, some being large while others are considerably smaller. The exhibit which most nearly approximates the average size for the variety being shown will receive the most points although it may contain the smallest specimens in the class.

Certain vegetables are cut by the judge to determine quality and texture, and the beginner will do well to study these as they are being prepared for the table so as to become familiar with the outside appearance which indicates first prize specimens.

Revealing Cuts

When cut crossways, beets should show almost even coloring. Pinkish to white rings alternated with dark red rings indicate slow growth and woody tissue.

The stem end of potatoes are cut to reveal any disease which may be present. Carrots are cut to see that their flesh is deep and the core small. Tomatoes cut crossways should reveal even red coloring, thick flesh and small cells and not too many seeds. Cucumbers are judged on the same basis.

Pea pods are opened to reveal missing or poorly formed seed, and for testing the quality and flavor. Dwarf beans (pencil-pods, green, and wax) are snapped for quality. Pole beans must not show lumps where the seed are located.

Vine crops (marrows, squash), are out of the judging unless there is two inches of dried stem attached to each. The flesh is tested with a cheese sampler.

Few gardeners realize that a judge uses sight, feel, and smell to determine the quality of the exhibits. The smell of bitterness, and the feel of a bean or a rhubarb stalk as it snaps will tell a whole story of the conditions under which it was grown.

Next Saturday, the wording of show schedules and pitfalls to watch, and hints on showing and show procedures.

Plywood Kitchen Cabinet Boon to Busy Housewife

Every minute you can save from the rote jobs around the house becomes a glorious minute to spend reading the newest novel, or chatting with a friend, or putting extra touches on that cocktail outfit that's going to wow the boys at the office, or making a call-back for the Red Cross.

So it behooves us all to save as many minutes as possible—yes?

Let's start with the busiest corner of the house, where the kitchen sink is. Take a look at yours. Now look underneath. If it's near average, it contains a small rusty garbage container overfilled by a supermarket bag, several empty milk bottles, unopened cleaning compounds for various metals, an aerosol insect bomb that never did work, and an unexplained bottle of water glass.

And every time you rummage through the welter, you waste precious time. Time to dream, time to do, time to live.

Now take a searching look at the picture above. Note the towel racks. They appear and disappear at a touch. The garbage container automatically opens its pert little lid when you open the door to its compartment. The edged shelf is ample for all the cleaning aids you really need—throw the rest of it out.

And there's still room for anything the designers hadn't counted on because they just didn't know your family habits—the good ones, that is.

A picture, we're told, is worth a multitude of words. In this case, it's worth more. It's worth the saved and hoarded hours that good planning can offer.

It's your job to run a capable household, just as it is that of a ship's captain to run a tidy ship, a businessman to

Avoid Paint Overlap

For a professional-looking house-painting job, finish the area started to a wall, door or window before stopping.

If you stop anywhere on the wall for more than a few minutes, the paint will set partially, making it difficult to brush out the lap when you begin again. This lap may show through several coats of light-colored paint.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Plant the hardy small bulbs such as galanthus (snow-drop), eranthus (winter aconite), fall flowering crocus, and the large bulbs of colchicums. Repot old corms of Persian cyclamen to flower indoors at Christmas.

If poinsettia growths are getting too tall, pinch back now. Give ample water and sunshine.

Lavender plants should be sheared to keep them low-growing and compact. If the plants are year-old cuttings, use scissors to cut back each tip which flowered.

Mark locations for shrubs and trees to be planted next month. Preparations made now will eliminate delay later. Steady supply of moisture in soil is essential to development of tomatoes. Pick fruit as soon as red ripe, to allow others to ripen.

Grapes growing in greenhouse will need free ventilation and plentiful supply of water.

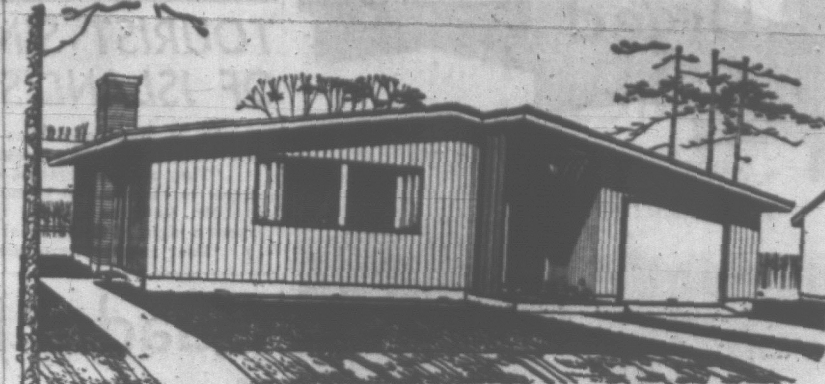

Don't neglect the late sowings of vegetables. Thin the lettuce so that each plant stands alone; also thin late sown carrots and beets to gain maximum results.

Shrubs flowering from end of July into fall are not pruned when blooming ceases. Cut off only the faded flowers, with such shrubs as buddleia, Spiraea Anthony Waterer (pink), ceanothus, romneya (canyon-poppy), Spartium junceum (Spanish broom), Veronica "Autumn Glory" and abelia.

Begonia Plants Like Nitrogen

Tuberous rooted begonias can be encouraged to grow with fertilizer.

While complete plant foods are good, a more heavy stimulant may be used if desired. Ammonium sulphate or ammonium phosphate carry about 2 per cent nitrogen and cause plants to thrive. A good solution has one teaspoon of either of these to a gallon of water.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

By JACK BEASTALL

Q. To settle an argument, please can you tell me which is correct, "fuchsia" or "fuch-sia"? J.D.M., Hillside Ave.

A. The plant name is fuchsia, given to honor a prominent German botanist named Leonard Fuchs (which is the German equivalent of Fox) who lived in the 16th century, though the plant itself was not introduced to gardens until the 18th century.

Q. A pear tree, over 15 years old, set a large crop, but dropped the greater part of it when small. What would be the cause? M.W. Duncan, R.C.

A. During June it is normal for a tree to discard part of the crop it is bearing. The discards have been found to be improperly fertilized so that only a few seeds, or none at all, are developing. When the greater part of the crop is shed it could indicate poor weather conditions at flowering time which affected either insects, pollen, or development of the flowers on your tree or the tree bearing the pollinating variety. If the pollinator was in a neighboring garden it may have been removed.

Q. Can you name some blue flowering shrubs for fall? R.M., Douglas Street.

Vinyl Tape Assures Safety

The home repair man who wants to avoid seeing his work go up in smoke will pay special attention to the quality of electrical tape he uses.

Four major causes of electrical insulation failure are moisture, surface contamination, electrical leakage and excessive heat.

A new vinyl electrical tape combats these subtle home enemies as well as performing a slew of other chores.

The new tape prevents corrosion when applied to pipe or other metal surfaces, and gives protection to tool handles as well. The durable vinyl tape may be used for harness wrapping of wire and cable groups.

To top off its rugged nature, it's flame-proof and has high resistance to humidity.

Firming Shaky Chair Legs

Re-gluing and tightening wobbly legs on dining room chairs is something any do-it-yourselfer can do.

Remove the rungs and scrape off as much of the dried out glue as you can, using either a sturdy, sharp knife or sandpaper; then scrape out as much glue in the legs where the rungs fit.

Spread some glue or cement on the inside surfaces of the rung hole and over the end of the rung which fits the hole.

In order to compensate for shrinkage of the wood, hold a small piece of thin fabric over the hole in the leg and push it in with the rung.

Trim off any excess fabric with a razor blade. When the rungs have been replaced, brace the chair legs firmly with strong cord, so everything will be held in position until the new glue dries.

STRIKE'S COLD HAND ON DOCKS

Desolate aftermath of the first six weeks of B.C. coast loggers' strike is typified by bleak view of Ogdon Point docks, normally humming with summer activity.

Times photograph by Bill Halkett shows less than 1,000,000 board feet of lumber piled at the docks today, less than a third of normal amount awaiting loading on deep-sea ships.

One dock official said today, "I have never seen the place so empty."

Nearly empty of lumber due to woodworkers' strike, Ogdon Point will soon be empty of shipping if present trend continues. Only one freighter was in port today, loading general cargo, and a spokesman for a customs brokerage firm said no ships were in sight for Victoria during the next week.

Meanwhile, some of city's 125 longshoremen are having difficulty making ends meet. Logging strike means they can load only general cargo, and most men are working only one or two days a week.

MONTE ROBERTS

Hardly anybody ever asks my opinion hardly at all, but if there is a constituent in the house who will stand still for a minute, here are some of my opinions...

In my opinion, the Russian leader should be made very, very welcome on his visit to North America... he should be given the Red carpet treatment at Washington, D.C.; Ottawa, Ont., the capitals of all 50 (unless it's 51 by the time this is published) states, the capitals of all 10 (unless B.C. annexes the Far North in the meantime) provinces, and also at Wobble Hill, Wallopem Beach, Goon Centre, and way points... let us prove to Mr. K. we are O.K., and keep him in N.A. as long as possible... because it's unlikely he'll order an H-bomb attack on this continent while he's on this continent...

In my opinion, the government of Canada should issue a short, terse, complete statement on National Defence... which would read "We don't know what we need for national defence, but if we did know, we are sure we couldn't afford it..."

In my opinion, our Home Garden editors should get the weeds out of their front yard so passers-by could see their Home Garden... and there should be a law passed proclaiming that weeds are flowers and flowers are weeds, thus eliminating the unpleasant task of weeding and replacing it with the joyous task of flowering...

In my opinion, the capital of British Columbia should be moved from Victoria to Vancouver, thus eliminating the need for protests against publications which state the capital of British Columbia is at Vancouver... and something should be done about the weather... why should Vancouver get all the lovely rain while Victoria has to suffer along with sun, sun, sun... attracting as it does people whose sole ambition is to sit in it...

In my opinion, some enlightened rock-and-roll composer should produce an epic dedicated to de Castro, titled, of course, "You Are My Cuba Sugar"... thus taking that fight little isle out of the headlines...

In my opinion, one swallow doesn't make a summer, but it's mighty nice when you're thirsty.

Do you see now why hardly anybody ever asks my opinion hardly at all?

TOPICS OF THE DAY

An estimated $84 in silver was stolen by a thief who forced open a cigarette machine at Tillamook Club, 645 Johnson, overnight Friday.

Police said there was no sign of entry, and believe the thief may have hidden in the club prior to closing time.

Another outrage has shaken Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau. This is a colored transparency made in the United States and circulated here depicting "Vancouver's stately Empress Hotel."

Publicity Commissioner George Warren is trying to trace the manufacturer, as the transparency does not bear any name or place of origin. He has also complained to the publishers of a Vancouver booklet which shows street cars running past the ivy-clad Empress in an alleged "recent" picture of Victoria.

Comedian Bob Hope spent Friday night here in the Empress Hotel with his family following a three-day rest at Qualicum Beach before leaving early this morning for the U.S.

ASK THE TIMES

Q—We would be much interested in knowing the annual rainfall at Station Papa, the Pacific weather ship, J.H.S.

A—While the weather ships take precipitation data, it is not too reliable as the weather there is heavy with heavy spray. Data is, however, sent to Ottawa but meteorological officials here say it is doubtful if anything is computed on the subject, because of the spray content.

Anybody wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily. All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve problems or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to dealers.

Forest Fire Fight Costs To 1959 High

Fire-fighting costs in B.C. in the past week soared to $125,572 to make it the most costly to date in the current fire season, the B.C. Forest Service announced today.

Sum of $42,111 was spent in the Kamloops district and $60,352 in the Nelson district. Vancouver, Prince Rupert and Prince George districts accounted for the balance.

Foresters said storm activity is giving general rain in the northern districts and showers in the southern areas to reduce the fire hazard throughout most of the province to moderate.

There were 130 new fires throughout B.C. during the week, and 74 are still burning.

MISHAP MAKES DESTROYERS SWITCH ROLES

Destroyer escorts Skeena and Ottawa switched roles today when the Ottawa came into Esquimalt Harbor with minor boiler trouble.

Ottawa was due in Aug. 22 and Skeena was scheduled to arrive today; now Skeena will arrive Aug. 22.

The ships were participating in joint navy-air force exercises outside the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

Argentine Ship Visit Cancelled

Visit of the Canadian-built Argentine naval attack transport Bahia Thetis to Victoria has been cancelled.

The navy said today the ship was due here for a two-day stay around mid-September, but will now proceed directly to Vancouver for a visit Sept. 18-21.

The ship, on a round-the-world cruise, was built in Halifax in 1950 for the Argentine Navy.

DIGGING INTO THE PAST

Midden May Be 'Only' 3,000 Years Old

A team of professional and amateur archaeologists is carrying out a scientific "dig" in the Shoal Bay area at Oak Bay, in an attempt to learn secrets of 200 or even 5,000 years ago, by studying relics buried by time. The "dig" is under direction of the Provincial Museum. Progress reports appear daily in The Times.

By WILSON DUFF
Curator of Anthropology,
Provincial Museum

"What is the greatest possible age our midden could be?" I asked my friend Hugh Nasmith last night as we looked over the archaeological excavations at McNeill Bay. Hugh is a well-known Victoria geologist and a specialist on comparatively recent geological events, that is, the events of the past million years or so.

The answer was rather complicated, but also surprisingly definite: From what he told me, it seems highly unlikely that our site could have been occupied more than about 3,000 years ago.

We were standing in one of the trenches, which had been cut down through the midden layers to "sterile" subsoil. I pointed out that the lowest layers were only about four feet above the average high tide line.

Obviously, if the sea level had been even a few feet higher in the past, our site would have been no fit place for people to live. And it is not very long ago, geologically speaking, that the sea level was considerably higher than at present.

Going back 15 or 20 thousand years, Hugh said, this whole area was not under water but under ice, many hundreds of feet thick. Even while the glaciers were retreating, the land still remained depressed under the tremendous weight of the ice, so that the apparent level of the encroaching sea was several hundred feet higher than at present.

Geologists find old beach lines and stream deltas far above present sea level, which obviously didn't live on places like our McNeill Bay site, as it was 100 feet under water at the time.

Now the story becomes slightly more complicated. The climate warmed up, and even became a good bit warmer than it is at present. The glaciers disappeared completely and the land rose up, around these parts at that time, which is possible, they obviously didn't live on places like our McNeill Bay site, as it was 100 feet under water at the time.

Now the story becomes slightly more complicated. The climate warmed up, and even became a good bit warmer than it is at present. The glaciers disappeared completely and the land rose up, free of its weight of ice. But the tremendous volume of the water which had formerly been ice now raised the level of the world's oceans considerably.

At the "thermal maximum," when the climate was at its warmest, the sea level was perhaps 25 feet higher than now. Obviously nobody lived at our site at that time either.

There is another interesting confirmation that the sea level was higher about that time. About 6,000 years ago there was a terrific volcanic explosion when Glacier Peak, in the Cascades of central Washington, blew its top off.

Hundreds of square miles were showered with a blanket of volcanic ash. Hugh has found this ash layer at several places on the mainland and Vancouver Island, but significantly, never very close to sea level.

To continue our story on through the centuries, the weather turned cooler again and new glaciers formed, to give us our scenic wonders of today. The level of the sea fell, in fact it fell to a bit lower level than it is at present. Within the last few centuries it has begun to rise again. We know that it is rising because all along the coast it is cutting into the Indian middens on the shore.

So it seems that our site could not possibly have been inhabited more than about 4,000 years ago. Probably it is a good deal younger than that.

There will be no digging over the weekend, as most of the crew are away. Next week we plan to dig every day and several evenings as well.

'Roofless' Market Building Possible

BIG WELCOME SET FOR VIVI MONDAY NIGHT

Miss Victoria, 19-year-old Vivi Petersen, who won second place in the Miss Canada contest at Burlington, Ont., will return to Victoria Monday night.

She is due to land at Pat Bay airport at 7.45 p.m. and will be given a civic welcome at the City Hall at 8.30 p.m.

"We are all ready for her," said Peter Forward, president of Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce, which sponsored Vivi's entry in the national contest.

Vivi, whose parents live at 2815 Fifth, was to have returned to Victoria tonight but the home flight has now been postponed until Monday.

Crash Sequel: Youth Charged With Burglary

A Fourth of July teapot caper at Durrance Lake ended in Colwood RCMP court Friday when 19-year-old Gerald George Roy, 734 Middleton, faced a charge of breaking, entering and theft.

Sentence was suspended for three months after Roy pleaded guilty to stealing a teapot and thermos jug from a cabin owned by George Dunn of Victoria.

The same night, a car containing Roy and nine other teen-aged boys and girls plunged off Durrance Road and landed in a gully. Its young driver was dealt with in juvenile court.

Injunction Could Hold Up Work if Started Monday

The market building could be left "with its roof off and work stopped" if a proposed interim injunction to halt demolition is filed, city barrister P. J. Sinnott said today.

City council Friday at a special meeting gave final reading to a bylaw authorizing a $6,400 contract with Farmer Construction to pull the building down. An offstreet parking lot is proposed for the site.

Actual demolition is expected to start Monday.

"There is no hurry about filing an interim injunction," Mr. Sinnott said, "even if demolition does start Monday."

But before such a step is taken, he would have to consult with his clients, Attitio Randy, Saanich farmer, and R. J. Williamson, city ratepayer.

Mr. Sinnott Friday had filed a writ seeking a permanent injunction.

The lawyer said following council's latest action "it seems to me attitude of the council is entirely wrong. They know action is pending but are going to disregard it. There is a certain amount of intimidation here."

City council also decided to investigate possibility of erecting 10 stalls on the site for $1,500.

Mr. Sinnott termed this "partial capitulation" in the move for market retention "partial capitulation."

Trial Could Be Delayed 6 Months

He added that trial of the writ filed by Mr. Sinnott probably would not occur for six or seven months, long after the building was pulled down. In order to block demolition immediately, an interim injunction would have to be sought which Mr. O'Grady said would expose the opponents to the risk of a counter-suit for damages by the city.

He said the city could sue for the amount of the demolition contract and the lost revenue potential of the parking lot if an interim injunction was obtained. "These people must be prepared to pay an amount of something in the neighborhood of about $20,000 before they apply for an interim injunction," he said. "Perhaps they are. All we can do is go ahead and see."

Ald. M. H. Money argued council should call a referendum for December before ordering demolition but he found no support among the other aldermen and the final passage was given by the bylaw.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgell then proposed expenditure of $1,500 on 10 stalls to be erected after establishment of the parking lot but agreed to referring the proposal to a committee for study.

VOLUNTEER DIGGERS and spectators are turning up in increasing numbers to the Provincial Museum's dig at McNeill Bay. Here volunteer Edith Cross, smudged with the dust

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — Probate Judge Clarence M. Russell committed Doreen and Bruce Baker to state training homes after a hearing Friday on their admitted plot to burn their parents to death.

Doreen, 15, and Bruce, 13, admitted dousing their sleeping parents with gasoline and setting fire to them the morning of June 12. Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Baker were burned severely. Both were released recently from hospital.

The children told police they wanted to kill their parents to be free to do as they liked. The plot was discovered after a routine investigation of the fire.

Witnesses described the scene in probate court as tearful. They said both the parents and children wept. The parents raised no objection to the commitment order. They said they have forgiven the children.

He said the farmer's wife caused several of the 27 children in the family to assault him. He was released by the farmer when the latter came home.

Mr. Prevost said he went to the county magistrate to lay a charge but was stumped when asked who he would name as his assailant.

"There were so many of them," he said. The Edmundston RCMP detachment is investigating.

Marlene Captures Sixth Title

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. Marlene Stewart Streit, Toronto won an unprecedented sixth Canadian women's open golf championship today with a clear-cut 7 and 6 decision over Mrs. Bruce McGhie, New York.

Mrs. Streit was three up at the turn. Shirt-sleeved crowd of about 800 braved the blistering 90-degree heat to follow them around the tough St. George's layout.

Mrs. Streit, who first won the title in 1951, clinched the victory with an eagle three on the 29th hole with a 105-foot approach shot that just about broke the heart of the 27-year-old American woman.

The pair halved the next hole and the long walk to the club started.

3 UP AFTER 18
Mrs. Streit was three up after the 18-hole morning round, allowed the American only two holes on the home stretch—the 20th and 23rd—and extended her lead to six up on the 26th. From there on in, it was simply a matter of guessing how long the game would go.

B.C. Leads Willingdon

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia forged into a 10-stroke lead at the halfway mark of the interprovincial team championship and the Willingdon Cup here today.

The host province carded a four-over-par 288 to lead Manitoba 298. Quebec was in third position fell with 309.

Ron Willey, who fired a two-under 34 on the out nine of the morning round, slipped two over coming home to end with a par 71.

Johnny Johnston and Bert Tiehurst, each two under for the round at the 15th, ran into trouble on the last three holes to finish with 72. The fourth member, Bob Kidd, on his sixth straight B.C. team, shot 73.

Balloon 'Moon' Fails In Busy U.S. Rocket Day

OCEAN AREA COMBED FOR SPACE CAPSULE

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI) — A fleet of ships and planes today searched a 10,000 square-mile section of ocean 700 miles southwest of Hawaii for a 300-pound capsule from the Discoverer V satellite.

Pentagon officials admit "there is little hope" now that the 27 by 33 inch capsule will be found.

A fleet of nine giant C-19 planes of the 6593rd Test Squadron, Hickman Air Force Base, Hawaii, waited in vain Friday to attempt to snatch the data-carrying capsule from the sky as it parachuted down.

The Pentagon said an identification signal from the capsule failed to function.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The United States Friday had its busiest day of rocketry since it began reaching for space. But the main effort failed — an attempt to send a 12-foot inflatable balloon into orbit.

The Juno II rocket roared spaceward from Cape Canaveral bearing the unusual balloon, moon. Its three stages ignited successfully, but the last one apparently went in the wrong direction and carried the satellite back into the earth's atmosphere.

Another failure was a giant Titan ICBM missile that blew up on its launching pad at the Cape earlier in the day.

On the plus side there was a successful launching of a Polaris missile from a machine that simulates the motion of a submarine at sea. The weapon is designed to be fired from a sub anywhere in the world.

Wicks Blasted For Statement

VANCOUVER (CP) — A district official of the International Woodworkers of America termed as "ridiculous" a charge by Labor Minister Wicks that efforts of three Vancouver Island mayors to end the coastal woodworkers' strike had caused a substantial delay in moves toward a settlement.

"We were perfectly happy to meet with them," said George Mitchell, secretary-treasurer of the district.

"They in no way embarrassed us nor did anything in the way of hampering negotiations."

"I arranged the meeting between Mayor William Moore of Courtenay and district IWA president Joe Morris on Thursday. I was with Mr. Morris when he met Mayor Moore Friday."

Mr. Mitchell said the provincial government seems to be stymied and doesn't "know what to do about this dispute."

"They have no one of sufficient stature available to the who might be able to effect a settlement. I think this is what is behind Mr. Wicks' statement."

Mr. Wicks said Friday that the efforts of the mayors to end the 40-day strike had caused a "substantial delay" in reaching a settlement.

The troubled situation in B.C. coast loggers' strike bristled with harsh words and some ill-feeling today as the walkout neared the end of its sixth week without any positive sign of an early settlement.

The developments, in capsule, were:

● Two Island mayors blasted Labor Minister Wicks for saying their mediation attempts were only aggravating the situation.

● Head of the lumber operators scoffed at the mayors' settlement try as "mistaken good intentions."

● Courtenay loggers' union officials accused of misappropriation of funds.

● B.C. Federation of Labor promises new support drive for strikers.

● Opposition Leader Robert Strachan blames large lumber operators for prolonging walkout.

● Logging industry spokesman warns continuance of strike or settlement at woodworkers' terms would cripple Island centres.

● Newly-appointed B.C. Power Commission chairman Dr. Hugh Keenleyside mentioned as a possible mediator.

DELAY CHARGED

The attack on Mr. Wicks quickly followed his assertion Friday that attempts by the mayors of Nanaimo, Port Alberni and Courtenay to bring the two sides together had caused "a substantial delay in moves toward a settlement."

He described their intervention as "most unfortunate."

In reply, Nanaimo Mayor Matteo called on the minister to explain his remark, while Mayor William Moore of Courtenay snapped, "This is a typical Wicks' statement."

"All we were trying to do is get the two sides at the bargaining table again. How this can cause any harm to the situation is beyond my comprehension."

"We simply did what he (Mr. Wicks) should have done a month ago."

Mr. Moore said he had "suspicions that Wicks and the premier are going to do something about the strike soon."

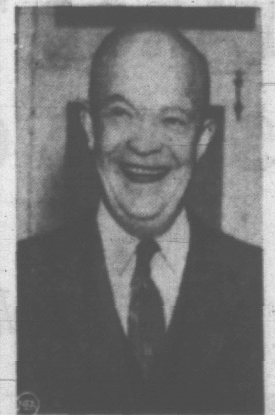

Mayor Loran Jordon of Port Alberni was not available for comment.

OFFER APPRECIATED

In Vancouver, John Billings, president of Forest Industrial Relations, representing the lumber operators, said the mayors' offer to help was "understandable and the spirit in which it was made is appreciated."

"But the offer is based on the mistaken belief that if the two parties could only be brought together an agreement would automatically follow."

"Our trouble in settling this strike does not come from lack of talks or inability to contact Continued on Page 3

TOURIST SINGS PRAISE OF ISLAND'S RANGERS

W. M. Hawkins of Los Angeles has words of praise for Vancouver Island's forest rangers. "They are co-operative, courteous and hospitable," he wrote to Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau. Mr. Hawkins said he toured Vancouver Island and spent a night at the camp at Elk Falls. "Your rangers were most helpful," he wrote.

Quadra Is. Ferry Tenders Aug. 25

CAMPBELL RIVER—Tenders were called Tuesday for a Quadra Island-Campbell River ferry and will be returnable Aug. 25. Comox MLA Dan Campbell said this week.

He spoke in reply to Don Huntley, president of Quadra Island Ratepayers' Association, who said a week ago that Highway Minister P. A. Gagliardi told him tenders for the proposed car ferry might not be called for a month.

Building of the ferry will be co-ordinated with progress on Tye Plaza, a reclamation and waterfront development scheme to incorporate stores, a hotel, parking space, marina and a ferry landing.

The scheme was launched by W. S. Mullett of Campbell River, then was taken over by Marvell Construction Co. of Vancouver, which now is nearing completion of a breakwater, first part of the project. One of the main factors to tip the scales in favor of the highly contentious waterfront project was the fact that it was to include the ferry landing.

The Quadra Island group is disappointed that work has not proceeded on the ferry slips also. It is estimated the ferry itself will take five or six months to build.

2-Day Festivity Over Labor Day Holiday Weekend

LAKE COWICHAN—Invitations are being extended to Robert Strachan, MLA, and W. F. Matthews, MP, to attend the annual Labor Day celebrations here.

Water sports, log-birling and firemen's sports are to take place on the day previous to Labor Day.

An offer has been received from the Nanaimo Pipe Band to attend and take part in the celebrations.

Large Island Parks Area To Be Explored

The first large-scale expedition to explore Strathcona Park left today for the mountainous recreational area west of Campbell River.

The party organized by the Alpine Club of Canada, Victoria branch, will also scale Mount Golden Hind, a 7,210-foot peak, the highest on Vancouver Island.

In charge of the expedition is Syd Watt, of Duncan, well-known mountaineer.

It consists of 12 members, including a botanist, prospector, forester, mining engineer and official of the provincial parks branch.

The group and supplies were flown from Buttle Lake to Burman Lake where a base camp has been established for the week's expedition. They will walk out.

The party's main objective will be to assess the recreational value of the park.

TO EXPLORE LAKES They plan to explore seven unnamed lakes, a glacier, several rivers, as well as Donner Lake, situated in the westerly portion of the park.

With the exception of Buttle Lake, Donner Lake is the largest in the park. Little is known about the recreational aspects of the lake.

A complete survey of plant life will also be made by botanist E. J. Greig of Royston. The provincial parks branch is represented by Robert Ahrens, newly-appointed chief of the parks planning division who in the past 10 years has carried out extensive reconnaissance work in the location of new park areas.

The expedition will provide the parks branch with a good picture of the recreational value of the area which has never been fully explored since the park was formed prior to the First World War.

It is also timely in view of preliminary discussions now under way between deputy Recreation Minister David Turner and the CPR to annex to Strathcona Park the 35,000 acres of E & N land in the Forbidden Plateau.

The move would transform Strathcona Park into one of Canada's best Alpine wonderland parks.

OPEN VERDICT

Double Murder Mystery

NANAIMO (CP)—A coroner's jury here Friday returned an open verdict in the deaths June 27 of a South Wellington couple.

The jury said Andrew (Curly) Kostynuk and his wife, Lizzie, were killed by an unknown person or persons.

Coroner Dr. Henry Lewis said: "The case is not cleared up by any means."

The Kostynuks were found by neighbors stabbed to death in their home.

Volunteers Save Indian Village

TOFINO—Volunteer firemen from here who rushed by boat to the nearby Indian village of Optsate Friday were able to confine a fire to one home, and save two others in immediate danger.

At one time it was feared the whole village might be threatened.

The fire, of unknown origin, destroyed the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ned George and their three children.

The local firemen, led by deputy chief Robert Barr, took a portable pump with them and used sea water to quell the fire. The village consists of from 50 to 60 frame homes.

WHITE GANG BEATS NEGRO IN LONDON

LONDON (Reuters)—A gang of white men attacked a 60-year-old Negro in the race-tense Notting Hill district of London.

Olanzo Briggs was taken to hospital with a suspected fracture of the cheek and skull. An iron bar and knife were found after the attack.

About 6,000 West Indians live in Notting Hill, the centre of activity by groups seeking to drive non-white immigrants out of Britain.

Parks Work Volunteers Called Off

(From Duncan Bureau) CHEMAINUS—Volunteer work parties at the community park under development at Fuller's Lake have been called off until such time as the municipality can provide more top soil.

IWA members recently cleaned up the area between the road and the lakeshore, raking it free of shale and stones. Some top soil was dumped and spread, and further work parties will be held when additional top soil is available to cover the area to be seeded.

Several planters have been constructed throughout the park and local organizations will be asked to take over their upkeep and planting of flowers.

'Mostly Sun' For Sunday

Bombings Charged

TUNIS (Reuters)—The government said tonight that French planes made two separate bombing attacks on Tunisian soil today and flew a reconnaissance mission over Tunisian territory.

Haiti 'Invaded'

BALLOON

at Cape Canaveral. It carried a movie camera to photograph the earth from an altitude of 300 miles. But the capsule carrying the camera was not found.

If the Cape Canaveral balloon had gone into orbit, it would have been the third successful U.S. satellite to circle the earth in a week. Last Friday a Thor-Able rocket shoved a 142-pound paddle wheel satellite into orbit, and the baby moon still is radioing back important space information.

The balloon-moon was designed to show just how much drag the super-thin atmosphere up to an altitude of 1,000 miles or so would have on such a large, light object.

It would have been the first launched by the U.S. visible to the naked eye.
